Bellefonte, Pa., December 15, 1922.

NEWS ABOUT TOWN AND COUNTY.

The jury commissioners are now at work filling the jury wheel for 1923.

The Pennsylvania State College will close today for the holiday vacation.

If you intend using any of the beautiful Christmas cards we have in stock, come at once and make your selection. Don't delay until it is too late for us to get them out for you.

Dr. Eva B. Roan, optometrist, whose office in Bellefonte has been at the D. Paul Fortney home, will, after January first, have her Bellefonte headquarters in rooms No. 14 and 15, Temple Court.

The Keystone Power corporation has leased the rooms in the Harter building now occupied by the First National Bank and as soon as vacated will have the same remodeled for offices of the company.

Charles E. Dorworth will entertain a party of gentlemen at dinner, this evening, at his home on Linn street. Dr. John M. Thomas, president of The Pennsylvania State College, will be the guest of honor.

A meeting of the executive committee of the Centre county Sabbath School association will be held at the Y. M. C. A. rooms in Bellefonte on Sunday, December 17th, at 2:30 p. m. All members are urged to be present.

At the next regular meeting of the Woman's Auxiliary of the American Legion, which will be held in the Legion's new rooms in the Centre County bank building, the installation of officers for the ensuing year will take place.

Representatives of fourteen Elks lodges met in Williamsport last week and organized the Pennsylvania North-Central district association. G. Oscar Gray, of the Bellefonte lodge, being chosen as a member of the executive committee.

From a notice sent out by the registrar of Dickinson College it is learned that Joseph A. Parrish, son of Dr. and Mrs. C. M. Parrish, of Bellefonte, and a Freshman at the College, has pledged himself as a member of the Phi Kappa Psi fraternity.

The deal was closed this week whereby Sim Baum became the owner of the Mrs. Reeder property on north Allegheny street, better known in recent years as the Shoemaker house. Aside from the fact that he has purchased the property Mr. Baum has made no plans as to what he will do with it.

George Geiss, son of Mr. and Mrs. D. Wagner Geiss, of Bellefonte, who since his graduation at the Pierce business college in Philadelphia had held a good position in the office of a large paper manufactory, has resigned that job and is now in the accounting department of the Pennsylvania railroad, in the company offices at Broad street station.

The "Watchman" office received a nice donation of venison last week from Capt. W. H. Fry, of Ferguson township, and we are candid to admit that it is the easiest and nicest way to get deer meat. Of course one loses the thrills of the chase but the venison tickles the palate just as much as if it had been shot by our own gun instead of our pencil.

Postmaster John L. Knisely is especially anxious that all holders of saving stamps maturing January 1st, 1923, present them as soon as possible at the Bellefonte postoffice either for redemption or conversion into the new issue of savings certificates. Don't wait until the holiday rush is on in the postoffice, as by so doing you will be loading an extra burden on the postmaster and will likely be personally inconvenienced by delay in receiving attention.

That wonderful picture, "Orphans of the Storm," drew large audiences at the opera house both Friday and Saturday nights, and while it, of course, was above the average yet the scenic is showing worth-while pictures every night in the week. A perusal of the program published in the "Watchman" will show you every evening's program and convince you that they are worth going to see. All the pictures are late releases of the best film makers in the United States.

Over 500 students at The Pennsylvania State College, when they leave today for the Christmas vacation, will go with the intention of trying their best to secure at least $1000 each in their home towns for the college emergency building fund for health and welfare buildings. The students have volunteered their services for this purpose while spending their vacation at home, and if all are successful they will add a half million to the college fund which is now about half raised.

The mail carriers working out of the Bellefonte postoffice, and especially those on the rural routes, are in this way making a direct appeal to all patrons not to put undirected letters and pennies for postage in the mail boxes. This request is made because of the fact that during cold weather the carriers cannot get the pennies out of the box without removing their gloves or mittens, thus exposing them to the cold and at the same time considerably delaying them in their work.

FIRST NATIONAL BANK WILL BE MOVED TOMORROW.

Handsomely Remodeled Building Will be Open for Business on Monday Morning, December 18th.

After banking hours tomorrow afternoon the First National Bank of Bellefonte will be moved from the temporary quarters it has occupied the past year in the Harter building, opposite the court house, into its own remodeled building on the northwest corner of the Diamond.

Two years or more ago it became evident to the officers and directors of the bank that the institution had outgrown its quarters at that time and arrangements would have to be made for more space for the working force of the bank as well as more lobby room for its patrons. Different architects were consulted and various plans suggested. Among the suggestions which seemed to meet the demands were those presented by George S. Idell, of Philadelphia, who makes a specialty of bank architecture. He was commissioned to draw up workable plans and submit same to the bank for consideration and at a meeting of the Board of Directors on January 17th, 1922, Mr. Idell's plans were accepted and the contract awarded to the Bellefonte Lumber company. The bank was moved into the Harter building on January 28th and the contractors began work at once. It was the expectation at that time that the work would be done by the first of September but delays in receiving material prolonged the job and rendered it impossible of completion until this week. But now that it is finished Bellefonte's oldest banking institution has a home that compares most favorably with the best banks in Central Pennsylvania.

To inspire confidence and patronage a banking institution must have as leading factors, resources, personnel and equipment. In resources the First National Bank is now in the two million dollar class, its personnel includes men of the highest integrity and its remodeled building gives it an equipment of the utmost efficiency and stability.

While externally the building has not been materially changed the interior has been so improved that it is almost impossible to reconcile it with the old building. Of course the outside walls of the building were cleaned, a new copper roof put on and the main entrance on the corner changed. The high stone steps have been taken away and two easy steps lead to massive double doors of bronze and plate glass which open into a small foyer. From there a flight of four marble steps lead to the lobby of the bank.

The first impression is naturally one of spaciousness and solidity. The lobby extends the entire length of the High street side of the bank while the entire interior is finished in Napoleon marble, bronze and mahogany, the mid-victorian style of architecture predominating in the marble panels dividing the work room from the lobby as well as in the mahogany partitions enclosing the president's room. The walls are of Caen stone imported from Caen in the southern part of France. They are a light cream color, chiseled in block effect and lined with white cement.

The president's office is on the Allegheny street front of the building and is enclosed with a cut down partition of mahogany and double chipped glass. A door leads into the room from the lobby and there is also a connecting door between the president's room and the cashier's room adjoining. The latter room is divided from the work room by a heavy grill partition. The work room is twice as large as it was before and equipped with every up-to-date banking facility. All the desks are mahogany and of the most substantial make. The lighting fixtures are all of bronze of the Louis XVI design, with reflected lights over the counter and at the various cages. In the lobby the heat is all from concealed radiators, while there are four customer's desks built into the windows. These desks are of glass with partitioned shelves beneath for blank checks, notes, etc.

There are seven cages, or windows. The first is that of the cashier, then the paying teller, receiving teller, accounts and collections, Liberty bonds, savings department and book-keeper. Each cage is equipped with a bronze slab and the counters are covered with a slate colored cork linoleum. The floor in the lobby is of marble while that in the offices and work room is of cork, the only one of its kind in Centre county. The partition between the lobby and work room is of marble artistically matched as to color and grain, surmounted by bronze grills and plate glass.

Heavy grillwork divides the main part of the bank from a small corridor in the rear and the big vault. This latter is one of the principal features of the bank. It is built of concrete and reinforced with steel. It is also steel lined throughout, and equipped with the latest design time-lock, burglar-proof door, which weighs six tons. The vault is 9x18 feet in size. The front part is designed for safety deposit boxes, and the present equipment is five hundred, though it has a capacity of two thousand. A grill partition divides the vault, the rear portion, equipped with three strong chests and various other boxes being designed for the bank's own use. In the rear alongside of the vault is a coupon booth and a private telephone booth, as well as the stairway leading to the second floor. At the first landing of the stairway is a toilet and lavatory. The stairs are of marble but hard wood is used on the second floor where the finish is in white.

At the front of the building is the director's room, twenty-one feet six inches square. It is furnished entirely with mahogany furniture and has a cosy fireplace as well as large radiators for heating purposes. In the rear of the director's room is a ladies room, which can be used by customers while looking over their private papers, or as a rest room. In the rear of that is a room for the watchman, and next a large toilet and lavatory, with plenty of space for the installation of a bath, if desired.

Down in the basement is another vault, equal in size to the one in the banking room, which will be used for the storage of records or any valuables that customers might wish to store with the bank. There is also a large work or stock room and the furnace room, where an up-to-date steam plant has been installed. The bank is equipped with a burglar alarm system and every device to make it as safe as possible. Two large lights have been placed at the main entrance, the bronze fixtures being what is known as the Italian renaissance design.

The entire cost of remodeling the bank was approximately $60,000, and the bank officials take pride in the fact that it was entirely a home job. As stated at the beginning of this article the contractors were the Bellefonte Lumber company. The electric work was done by R. C. Witmer, the plumbing and heating by Caldwell & Son; painting by A. L. McGinley, the iron work was furnished by H. S. Moore, the Potter-Hoy Hardware Co., Mahlon P. Smith and the Sutton-Abrams Engineering Co.; the mahogany construction was done by Frank Gross, the copper work by W. T. Twitmore, outside work on building, Conrad Miller. The lettering and signs by Joseph McCuskey. The furniture was furnished by W. R. Brachbill and the rugs by W. S. Katz.

The history of the First National bank dates back to 1856 when A. G. Curtin, H. N. McAllister, J. T. Hale and E. C. Humes organized a private bank under the name of Humes, McAllister, Hale & Co. W. M. Murray, of Pittsburgh, was secured as cashier, but two years later he was succeeded by John P. Harris. On June 8th, 1864, the First National Bank of Bellefonte was chartered and assumed the interests of Humes, McAllister, Hale & Co., E. C. Humes becoming president and Mr. Harris remaining as cashier. The bank soon gained a reputation as a strong financial institution and continued along with the same personnel until the death of Mr. Humes when Col. James P. Coburn was elected president.

On the first of January, 1898, John P. Harris resigned as cashier and Charles M. McCurdy, of Gettysburg, was selected to take his place. When he came here the bank's resources were approximately $700,000. While Mr. McCurdy made no drastic change in the way of conducting the bank's business he quietly and persistently introduced innovations that brought results and after the death of Col. Coburn in the fall of 1908 he was elected president of the bank. The result is now apparent in the fact that during the time he has been connected with the institution its resources have almost trebled. In fact the last published statement places them at $2,037,399.10. While the capital stock of the bank remains at $100,000 its surplus fund is now $175,000. Since the first of last January, notwithstanding the fact that this has not been a very prosperous year, the bank's resources have increased over $150,000. The very fact that the bank is custodian for such vast resources was one of the reasons why the building was remodeled, and the better to safeguard the funds entrusted to its care the officials will keep on a day and night watchman, John Paul Jones in the daytime and John Galaida at night.

The personnel of the bank includes Charles M. McCurdy, president; W. Fred Reynolds, vice president; James K. Barnhart, cashier. Board of directors, Charles M. McCurdy, W. Fred Reynolds, George M. Gamble, C. C. Shuey, Henry S. Linn, Edward H. Richard, James C. Furst and Thomas B. Beaver. The office force includes C. Edward Robb, Louis S. Shad, Nevien E. Cole, Charles McC. Scott, Miss Ruth Badger and Miss Ethel M. Wetzell.

In closing this article it might be said that ever since the bank had been chartered as a national institution in 1864 it was necessary to renew the charter every twenty years but on July 1st, 1922, a perpetual charter was taken out which will run forever.

As stated at the beginning of this article the bank will be moved tomorrow and thrown open for business on Monday morning, and the public in general is invited to call and inspect the new banking quarters, whether patrons of the bank or not.

"Better Furniture Makes Better Homes."

Spinet desks, gate-leg sewing, davenport and card tables, tea wagons, Windsor chairs, cedar chests, floor and table lamps, candlesticks, "Hoosier" kitchen cabinets, Globe-Wernicke book cases, smoker's cabinets, all make acceptable X-Mas gifts.—At W. R. Brachbill's. 49-1t

With the thermometer down to eleven degrees above zero on Monday morning there was every reason to believe that winter is on its way.

KILLED ON THE RAILROAD.

Harry Johnson Crushed to Death When Engine Runs Down Truck.

Harry Johnson, a well known resident of Bellefonte, was instantly killed at eleven o'clock on Tuesday morning when the big truck he was driving was hit by the engine of west bound local freight near Milesburg and overturned, Mr. Johnson being caught beneath the truck and crushed to death. He was driving the truck belonging to his brother, M. R. Johnson, and was engaged in hauling coal for Miss Julia Grove, of Milesburg. The latter has her coal yard over at Tangletown, where she has a short side track, and which is close to where the spur running into the Keystone Power company plant connects with the main line running from Milesburg to Bellefonte. The freight train had stopped on the main line for the purpose of shifting a car of coal into the power plant. While the engine was in at the plant Mr. Johnson drove up to get a load of coal and in order to turn around had to drive on the crossing over the track running into the Power company's plant.

Miss Grove was standing on the running board of the truck and jumped off to pull out the coal chute when she saw the engine backing out. Realizing that Mr. Johnson could not get off the track in time to avert being run down she screamed and waved to the engineer, L. W. Stonebraker, to stop. So far it has not been divulged whether he understood her signal, or not, but he failed to stop and the engine caught the fore part of the truck, shoved it along the track a distance of twenty feet when it overturned and dragged eighteen feet further before the engine stopped. Mr. Johnson was caught under the truck and crushed beneath one of the rear wheels and a small concrete abutment.

It was some minutes before he could be rescued from the wreck and it is highly probable that life already was extinct. In the meantime the ambulance had been summoned and he was brought to the Bellefonte hospital in the hope that he might revive, but upon arrival there the physicians found him beyond all aid.

Harry Wilbur Johnson was a son of Joel and Lydia Cordelia Reynolds Johnson and was born in the house now occupied by G. Edward Haupt, along the state highway, on February 28th, 1873, hence was 49 years, 9 months and 14 days old. His entire life was spent in Bellefonte and for a number of years past he has been associated with his brother, M. R. Johnson, in the marble business and other work. He was a member of the P. O. S. of A. and the Commandery of the same order.

On July 1st, 1893, he married Miss Anna Miller who survives with thirteen children, as follows: Paul, of Akron, Ohio; Mrs. Henry Miller, of Philadelphia; Claude, of Charleston, S. C.; Mrs. Ralph Hassinger, of Leont; Harry Jr., Fred, George, Joseph, Guy, Helen, Roxey, Donald and William, all at home. He also leaves his aged father, two brothers and three sisters, Mrs. William Hendricks, of Coon Rapids, Iowa; Mrs. H. B. Mallory, of Altoona; J. Curtis, Milton R. and Mrs. W. C. Coxey, of Bellefonte.

Short services will be held at the home on Valentine street at two o'clock this (Friday) afternoon after which the remains will be taken to the United Evangelical church where funeral services will be held by Rev. Reed O. Stealy, after which burial will be made in the Union cemetery.

Court Cullings for the Week.

Squire James W. Swabb, of Linden Hall, served as foreman of the grand jury at the regular session of December court this week, and that is probably the reason why they got through with their work and were discharged on Monday. A number of cases down for trial were either settled or continued.

In the case of D. R. Wilson vs. T. G. Wilson, an action to revive a judgment, a verdict was returned in the sum of $1051.30.

The Fidelity Title and Trust Co., of Pittsburgh, got a verdict against the First National Bank, of Spring Mills, for $5000 and interest on account of a deal in Liberty bonds. This case grew out of the manipulation of a bond salesman named McFeeters. He ordered $5000.00 in Liberty bonds sent to the Spring Mills bank with draft attached. When they arrived at the bank he called there and asked to see them. Then he told the cashier he had sold them to a party in Spring Mills and would return in a few minutes and pay the draft. The cashier gave him the bonds and he disappeared and hasn't been heard of since; the Spring Mills bank being stuck for the value of the bonds.

Commonwealth vs. R. J. DeLong, charged with recklessly and carelessly driving an automobile and failure to render assistance. Indictments quashed because the prosecutions were not properly brought.

Commonwealth vs. C. A. Beckwith, aggravated assault and battery. Prosecutor, E. B. Shirk. Verdict not guilty and costs divided.

Samuel Casher was charged with selling liquor without a license but the defendant was discharged for lack of evidence.

Harold Newman was convicted of larceny and was sentenced to not less than two years and ten months nor more than three years in the penitentiary.

NEWS PURELY PERSONAL.

Mrs. Ebon Bower went down to Millheim on Monday to see her brother-in-law, Mr. Burd, who is seriously ill.

Miss Mabel and Harry Allison, of Spring Mills, spent part of Saturday in Bellefonte looking after some business.

Mr. and Mrs. Ogden B. Mallin will go to Asbury Park early in the week to spend the Christmas vacation at Mrs. Mallin's former home.

William S. Schmidt and Miss Helen Wright, of Johnstown, were week-end guests in the home of Dr. and Mrs. Ambrose M. Schmidt.

Mrs. David Barlett and Mrs. Harry Smith spent several days, the early part of the week, in Philadelphia, doing their Christmas buying.

George F. Corman and Harry F. Weaver, of Rebersburg, were "Watchman" office callers on Monday, the latter being one of the jurors in attendance at court.

James F. Dugan and his brother Desmond, of Osceola, were Bellefonte visitors on Tuesday; having motored over to attend to a little business they had in court.

Gust Mignot, who recently was located at Havana, Cuba, is here for a visit with his father, Boniface Mignot and the family, intending to remain at home for the present.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Elmer Royer and family, of Centre Hall, were in Bellefonte last Saturday doing some holiday shopping and looking after some business matters.

Mrs. Lewis Daggett was a guest of Miss Stull and her party on the return drive to Wyncote, the after part of last week, remaining east for a several day's visit.

Mrs. J. Frank Bradford, of Centre Hall, went out to Cleveland, Ohio, last Saturday to spend ten days or two weeks as a guest of Mrs. J. A. Aiken and daughter, Miss Emma.

Bright and early Monday morning William Carson, of Aaronsburg, dropped in to say "Good morning" and then hurried off to the court house where he was a juror.

Mrs. William Martz and two daughters, Catharine and Anna, and her son, Clayton and his wife, all of Tusseyville, spent part of Friday in Bellefonte, doing some shopping.

Mrs. Grant Pifer, of Wilkesburg, is in Bellefonte for a visit with her mother, Mrs. H. K. Hoy, both being guests of Mrs. Hoy's daughter, Mrs. Clayton Royer. Mrs. Pifer came Wednesday.

Mrs. O. J. Harm, of Snow Shoe, spent a short time in Bellefonte the early part of the week, the half day here being devoted to holiday shopping and in making some delayed preparations for the winter.

Mrs. F. W. Topelt, of Brooklyn, who is now with her mother, Mrs. R. S. Brouse, came to Bellefonte the early part of the week. Mr. Topelt will join her here next week for Christmas and for their annual holiday visit.

Miss Rachel Marshall and her niece, Miss Elizabeth Longwell, will spend the winter with Miss Longwell's brother, in Virginia, having closed their house on Spring street this week, intending to go south at once.

Mrs. G. O. Benner, of Centre Hall, went over to Tyrone last Saturday to visit her niece, Mrs. M. J. McKinney, returning home on Wednesday so loaded down with packages that Santa will surely be in evidence at her home.

Miss Alice Fox, of Bishop street, left Thursday evening, for Millville, N. J., where she expects to spend the Christmas holidays with her sister, Mrs. Howard Gearhart. Returning she will stop for a short visit with friends in Philadelphia.

Mrs. Thomas Moore was called here from Philadelphia a week ago, by the serious illness of her mother, Mrs. William Dawson, who continues in a critical condition. Mrs. William Cassidy accompanied Mrs. Moore to Bellefonte, following a ten day's visit with her in Philadelphia.

Lieut. Col. Frederick A. Dale arrived in Bellefonte Monday night and will spend the month of December here with his mother, Mrs. J. Y. Dale, whose condition at present is very encouraging to her family. Col. Dale is now stationed at Fort Hamilton, having recently been sent north from Oglethorpe.

Miss Margery McGinley, who has been in the Veteran's bureau department at Washington, since leaving Bellefonte several years ago, will be home tomorrow, to spend the winter vacation with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. L. McGinley. Miss McGinley's plans are to return to resume her work the second of January.

Mrs. Katherine Powers Massey came up from Philadelphia Sunday, for one of her occasional visits with her sisters, the Misses Anne and Eva Powers, at their home on east Lamb street. Miss Anne Powers has been ill since spring and while there had been a rapid improvement in her condition during the summer, there has been little change in the past month or two.

Wesley Biddle, of State College, and his daughter, Miss Ray Biddle, were among the Christmas shoppers and business visitors to Bellefonte last week. Until two years ago, Mr. Biddle was one of the well known farmers of Halfmoon valley, but left there to make his home at State College, that his daughter and son might have the advantage of schools which the valley could not offer them.

Mrs. Annie Saucerman, of Altoona, was a brief visitor at the "Watchman" office on Wednesday afternoon, having stopped in Bellefonte while on her way home from attending several butchering fests in Centre county. She came down last week especially for the big butchering on Saturday at the Joseph Peters home up near the penitentiary, then remained for the one at Boyd Sampsel's on Tuesday.

E. T. Jamison, of Spring Mills, has been in town during the week doing duty as a traverse juror. Mr. Jamison says that in his community even soft coal is hard to get and that the last car they had was sent there by a gentleman from Pittsburgh who is interested in the development of the limestone in that vicinity. It is not generally known that the United States Steel Corp. has been leasing large acreages of lime stone in the neighborhood of Spring Mills and expects to begin development work at once. It will be recalled that the Cambria Steel company, now controlled by Midvale, some time ago bought up much limestone territory near Coburn, but the United States is only leasing, though will buy one farm on which to locate its plant.

Mrs. James B. Lane will go to McKeesport Tuesday, with plans for spending the Christmas season with her son Richard and his family.

After spending the summer and fall at her former home in Chambersburg, Mrs. John A. Woodcock returned to Scranton a week ago, for the winter.

James Dawson, of DuBois, was an over Sunday visitor in Bellefonte, coming over on account of the illness and for a visit with his mother, Mrs. William Dawson.

Miss Mary Zeller, of Lock Haven, spent Saturday with her uncle, William S. Zeller, bringing with her a nurse for Mr. Zeller, who has been regarded as seriously ill within the past two weeks.

Mrs. W. F. Reeder left yesterday for a visit in Harrisburg, where she will probably spend the Christmas holidays with friends. Mrs. Reeder has made no definite plans for her return to California.

Miss Elizabeth McCloskey, of Lock Haven, was an over Sunday visitor in Bellefonte, a guest of Mrs. Calloway. Miss McCloskey is a newspaper woman, and a daughter of Clinton county's superintendent of schools.

Col. and Mrs. J. L. Spangler have gone to New York to attend the annual Pennsylvania dinner to be held there tomorrow night. They were accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. James A. McClain, of Spangler, who joined them in Tyrone.

C. B. Nicholson came to Bellefonte early in the week, from Cambridge Springs, where he had been during the month of November. Mrs. Nicholson, who had been at Tyrone and Hollidaysburg for the day, joined him to return to the Bush house, where they are making their home for the present.

Telephone Company Conducting Campaign of Education.

Did you ever take down your telephone eager for a hurry call and then cuss inwardly, if not outright, because of the delay in getting an answer from the operator? Or get riled over the rigid rules of the company in requiring you to give the number? Of course you have, and so have we many times. But did you ever stop to think that you are not the only phone patron, but there are many others just as eager as you for quick service?

These and many other questions are being explained to telephone patrons in a campaign of education now being conducted by the Bell Telephone company of Pennsylvania. To emphasize the points they wish to make clear a regular switchboard, with operator in charge, is used. The demonstration was put on at the meeting of the Woman's club at the High school building on Monday evening, and had previously been given at the Bellefonte Academy.

The switchboard was connected up with a number of telephones in various parts of the room and persons in the audience were invited to put in calls just to show the work of the operator in answering, making connections, etc. To those who have never been inside a telephone exchange, and had no idea of how it is conducted, the work of the operator was a revelation. If the campaign succeeds in educating the public in the correct way of making calls it will do much to improve the service for everybody.

On Wednesday evening, while shoppers were busy in Sim the Clothier's store, there was a sudden cry of "fire," and the conflagration proved to be a bath robe in the store. One of the clerks promptly grabbed the burning garment and threw it into the street. The only explanation that could be conjured up as to how the robe caught fire was that some one must have accidentally touched it with the hot end of a cigar or cigarette. Fortunately it was discovered in time to prevent a serious fire.

Two fire alarms within half an hour on Tuesday evening called out the fire department, but fortunately both scares were burning chimneys on Bishop street and no damage resulted.
