nome last Friday.

Those who visited at the home of port to Penn State's $2,000,000 emergency building fund, when they voted to donate one or two fleeces per man for the next three years. There are more than 20,000 sheep growers in Pennsylvania whose combined flocks total more than a half million head of sheep. Together with the wool crop shorn annually, amounting to 3,300,000 pounds, the sheep represent a total value of more than seven and a quarter million dollars. The action of the growers' associations in the three counties has come to the attention of every sheep raiser in these counties, and indications are that it will spread on Tuesday afternoor went to Derry to other centers of sheep interest.

In the opinion of executive officers of the associations, every farmer who has benefitted from improvements in his methods of feeding and managing his flock, and in the marketing of his wool at the suggestion of county agents and extension specialists from The Pennsylvania State College, will be only too glad to give this boost to the greater Penn State movement.

Making Bad Things Worse.

Winter, as if it were an evil spirit, seems to take delight in making bad things worse. Rheumatism twists harder, twinges sharper, catarrh becomes more annoying, and the many symptoms of scrofula are developed and aggravated. These are common diseases, and it is a wonder that more people don't get rid of them.

Hood's Sarsaparilla has been very successful in the treatment of these com-plaints. It is easily obtained, and there is abundant testimony that its effects are radical and permanent.

In cases where a laxative or cathartic is needed, it is well to supplement Hood's Sarsaparilla with Hood's Pills, which are gentle, thorough and effective.

"'Washington,' Gottesfeld answered.
"'What a liar you are!' said Franckel. 'You want to make me believe you're going to Philadelphia and that's why you say you're going to Washington, but you can't fool me with your lies, I know very well you're going to Washington."

How Carnegie Saved a Dime.

Sometimes even the trivial side of a great man appeals to the public, writes Roscoe G. Mitchell in The Nation's Business. There is one experience I had with Mr. Carnegie. I had a copy of a cable from Berlin relative to some move made by the then Emperor William looking to the promo tion of world peace. My city editor had asked that I get Mr. Carnegie to comment on the cable dispatch. I located Mr. Carnegie at a meeting of the Civic Federation at the Hotel As-When the meeting had concluded and the guests were taking their departure, I rushed over to the speakers' table to have a word with him.

Just as I spoke to Mr. Carnegie, I was surprised to see him dart suddenly on all fours under the table without acknowledging my greeting. I pursued my quarry to his place of refuge. As I crawled under the table, I saw the ironmaster on hands and knees and a worried look on his bearded countenance Before I could drive further into the mystery, Ar. Carnegie's face was beaming. Getting back on his feet, he displayed a quarter and a dime. Happy as a ten year old on a Christmas morning, he explained:

"I had taken this ten cents from my pocket to give to the hat check girl at the door. When you spoke to me I dropped the coin. Now I have recov-When you spoke to me I ered my original coin and an additional twenty-five cents. I tell you, my boy, it is better to be born lucky than
