AND AFTER THAT, FRIGIDITY

Arctic Cold Followed on Somewhat Pointed Comment Made by Mrs. Watson.

Mrs. Watson was what many people might describe as a "bridge fiend." A day was a failure for her if she did not play at least two or three rubbers of her favorite game—and usually it was a half-dozen or more rubbers.

"Oh, Mrs. Watson! I have been told that you are almost an authority on the game of bridge, and I am so anxious to have your opinion on our playing here this afternoon. Just what do you think of our game?"

"What do I think of your game?" Mrs. Watson repeated slowly. "Well, really, you play a very interesting game, but I believe I like bridge better."—Kansas City Star.

RESTING PLACE FOR THE ARK

Tradition That Has for Centuries Pointed Out Mount Ararat Is Not Recognized Locally.

The identification of Mount Ararat, with the mountain upon which the Ark rested, is at least as early as the adoption of Christianity by the Armenians. But there does not appear to have existed in the neighborhood of Ararat an independent local tradition of the flood, and the mountain is still locally known not as Ararat, but as Masis to the Armenians, and as Agri Dagh to the Tatars.

As late as the month of May the colossal mountain is covered with snow to a level of 9,000 feet below the summit. But by the month of September the snow canopy is confined to the Great Ararat, and the limit of perpetual snow on the side facing the plain on the north is not less elevated than from 13,500 to 14,000 feet above the sea.

Kitchener's Choice of Title. When Sir Herbert Kitchener was elevated to the peerage, the new peer had the greatest difficulty in selecting his title.

"I don't think it's a bad idea," was all that Kitchener said. He evidently thought well of it, for those are the names by which his baronetcy was patented.

Pilot-Fish Sometimes Betrays Shark. In olden times people believed that the pilot-fish used to guide and protect ships. The fish would swim before the ship when all was well, but would disappear, they said, if rocks or land were near, so as to warn sailors. It is a fact that the pilot-fish swims with ships and sharks, but it is not with any intent to guide or protect.

When swimming with a shark the pilot-fish keeps just ahead, and if he finds food, dashes about and flops his tail on top of the water to attract the shark's attention. Then, when the great fish comes up, he shares the meal with it. But often when sailors throw a baited hook over the side of their ship the pilot-fish betrays the shark and leads it to the baited hook.

Oxford. Passing through the long, small, oblique streets in which the long, gray, battered public face of the colleges seems to watch jealously for sounds that may break upon the stillness of study, you feel the most dignified and studious of cities.

My friend and I wandered forth in the luminous early dusk. We reached the bridge that underpins the walls of Magdalen and saw the eight-spired tower, delicately fluted and embossed rise in temperate beauty—the perfect pose of Gothic—wooling the eyes to the sky that was slowly drained of day.—Henry James.

Bluefish Ocean Glutton. The bluefish is a rough and ready fighter, but he is a rapacious rascal, as well, and probably more destructive to other fishes than any creature which inhabits the sea.

A school of bluefish will cut through a shoal of haddock or weakfish with chopping jaws, leaving the water thickly strewn with the remains of their quarry, and then turn round and do it all over again. It is said that he will, following the custom in vogue among ancient Romans, discharge the contents of his stomach to make room for more.

Getting Up Nights

E. E. Mullen, No. Kenova, Ohio, says: "For 10 years I have been troubled with kidneys and bladder. I had to get up 5 or 6 times each night. I had taken many kinds of medicine, but Lithiated Buchu (Keller formula) is the only kind that gave me any relief. My bladder is normal and I have only used the remedy for three weeks. If you want further facts, write me."

Lithiated Buchu (Keller formula) acts on the kidneys and bladder like Epsom Salts on the bowels. It cleans them out, relieving the bladder of many abnormal deposits. These tablets cost 2c apiece. The price makes it possible to place in the formula several drugs which are useful for relief. The formula is on the package. It is not likely you have ever taken anything similar. Try a few tablets for backache, scalding, scanty or high-colored urine, and frequent desire at night.

Be sure to get the Keller formula Lithiated Buchu at all drug stores, or write Keller Laboratory, Mechanicsburg, O., or locally at C. M. Parrish Drug Store, Eagle Bldg., N. Allegheny St., Bellefonte.
