

Big Train Shed at Broad Street Station, Philadelphia, Burned.

Fire early on Monday practically destroyed the train shed of Broad Street station, the Philadelphia terminus of the Pennsylvania railroad. A quantity of mail and baggage and a number of passenger coaches also were consumed. A huge passenger locomotive crashed through the train floor of the shed and was wrecked. The flames spread westward and did not reach the main building containing the waiting rooms and ticket offices. These, however, were damaged by water.

There has not yet been an official estimate of the loss, but it is believed it will approximate at least $1,000,000. A large number of firemen were overcome by smoke, but no one was seriously injured.

The fire started shortly after one o'clock a. m., under the wooden platform in the train shed and spread so rapidly that many passengers in sleeping cars standing on the tracks had difficulty in making their escape. Dense volumes of black smoke soon filled the shed and poured into the waiting room and other parts of the station. Incoming passengers, however, managed to grope their way through and find the exits. Hundreds of persons waiting for outgoing trains fled from the building when the smoke began to come through the windows and doors.

It was under the shed on the street floor that the mail rooms and express baggage and express stations were located. A large force of men with trucks attempted to remove the mail, but they were driven off by fire and smoke before they had completed their job. How much was destroyed or damaged by water could not be learned.

A number of trains were in the shed when the fire started. Some of them were gotten out but a dozen or more coaches caught fire and were burned before an engine could be attached.

Extraordinary efforts were made to keep the fire from spreading to the main building and to nearby structures.

There were nearly 200 passengers in the ten sleeping cars in the station when the fire started. They were aroused and told there was no immediate danger. The cars were pulled out of the shed by shifting engines.

When the big shed was built more than forty years ago it was proudly referred to by the railroad as the "Portal to Philadelphia." It was 707 feet long, 307 feet wide and 100 feet high. The shed covered sixteen tracks and there were eight platforms.

Until the big shed is rebuilt or temporary arrangements made to run trains to the Broad Street station, all traffic will be diverted to the West Philadelphia station.

PLEASANT GAP.

Harry Armstrong and family spent Sunday in Yeagertown.

Leonard Kepler, of Pittsburgh, is visiting here with his mother.

Children's day exercises will be held in the Lutheran church Sunday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Corman, of Lock Haven, were week-end visitors here.

Harold and Ralph Wagner, of Harrisburg, are visiting with their aunt, Mrs. T. E. Jodon.

Harry Dorman had his arm hurt, Tuesday, while working on the Bilger sawmill in Greens valley.

Miss Mary Hile, who had been attending Lock Haven Normal, is home for her summer vacation.

A concrete walk is being laid in front of the Methodist church, which is quite an improvement.

Miss Helen Noll, who has been staying with Dr. Shelley, of Port Royal, is home for a few days, much improved in health.

Our Children's day exercises Sunday last were a wonderful success. Miss Ella Herman and a score of other earnest workers, worked industriously the week previous preparing the multitude of children. They did their work exceedingly well and deserve great credit for their undivided efforts. The real object of Children's day exercises is to give children resources that will endure as long as life; that time will ameliorate, not destroy; occupation that will render sickness tolerable, solitude pleasant, age venerable, life more dignified and useful, and finally death less terrible.

The early instruction imbibed from the teacher's or parent's life, has the strongest influence in forming the future character. Before the mind is mature enough to think for itself, we look to those whom nature has constituted our guardians, to correct and sanction our opinions. In this way the parental and teacher's authority gains a hold upon the mind of the child that never can be annihilated; and happy indeed, would it be if the result were always the formation of a noble and manly character. The contemplation of the period of childhood—the earliest spring-time of life, is replete with most tender interest. We should remember that the system of the child is capable of constant modification; hence it is our duty, as well as our power, in a great degree to impart mentally and physically, that standard of progress and health so essential to the happiness of the child. Of all the acts of folly and cruelty it is to press on infancy the task fitted for youth, or demand from youth the wisdom of manhood. It is sending and scattering the blossoms in order to reach the fruit, which, if obtained, is immature, unnatural, and therefore, unpleasant. God, who, in rendering man the most perfect of His creatures, has evidently made his progress the slowest toward the attainment of his power. That indolence must be conquered and industry excited in children, there is no denying. Parents should at all times give good example and be reverent in deportment in the presence of their offspring. Our Children's day was a glorious occasion and will long be remembered by all participants. It occurs to me that all church organizations that ignore Children's day services are back numbers; lacking enterprise and efficiency.

To Fit Carload of Berkshire Barrows.

What is probably the most important step to be taken by a State swine breeders' organization is the assembling at State College of over a hundred head of Berkshire pigs by the Pennsylvania State Berkshire association. This number of pigs is to be fed, cared for and fitted for the next International Livestock exposition by the department of animal husbandry of the Pennsylvania State College.

At the annual meeting of the State Berkshire association, at Harrisburg, it was suggested by one of the State College specialists that the Berkshire breeders of the State choose as one project for the year assembling of a carload of Berkshire barrows. The thought in mind was Pennsylvania Berkshire representation at the International show at Chicago, which is the world's greatest fat stock show.

State College, through the animal husbandry, offered the facilities of the swine farm, and as a result over a hundred Berkshires are now being selected in the various hog growing communities in the State. The agricultural extension service, through the livestock specialists and the county agents, is assisting in locating and selecting the barrows. It is recognized that if the best showing is to be made at Chicago it will be necessary to have not only a uniform lot of pigs but also the best animals to be found in the State.

E. M. Christen, extension swine specialist, has already located about thirty head of Berkshires in three days' time, in three different counties. By the middle of June it is expected that all the pigs will have been assembled at the college and will be nicely started on feed preparatory to the carload show as a feature of the 1923 International.

W. F. Rishel, of the Pennsylvania stock farm, Centre Hall, will furnish two barrows for this carload exhibit. Mr. Rishel is one of the good Berkshire breeders of the State, and his entries in this first carload exhibit of Berkshires from Pennsylvania, will give a good account of themselves at the International livestock show next December.

Some Folks Think the Counting of Sheep Will Put Them to Sleep.

Counting all the sheep in the world will not bring repose if insomnia is caused by nervousness due to eye-strain.

Reliable physicians will not prescribe medicine for sleeplessness until the patient has had his eyes examined by a thorough optometrist.

Eighty-five per cent. of all ailments are due to overtaxed nerves.

Better have your eyes examined.
