Pageant to be Big Attraction at Grange Encampment.

The big encampment and fair to be held by Centre county Grangers at Grange park, Centre Hall, September 1st to 7th, will be the fiftieth annual gathering and to commemorate the founding thereof the management has prepared an elaborate educational pageant as one of the big features of the encampment.

More than 400 people will take part in the pageant, which will provide continuous entertainment and inspiration for over two hours. Color effects, beautiful costumes and interpretative dancing are special features that will make the program very spectacular.

Men, women and children from ten communities of Centre county are taking part in the event and rehearsals are being held frequently to perfect the portrayal. Present plans call for the pageant to be given at the national meeting of the Patrons of Husbandry at Pittsburgh in November. This is one of the most elaborate spectacles ever presented by a rural organization in Pennsylvania.

The first scene following the introduction represents "Spring or the Planting Season," and shows the beginnings of the Grange with its original purpose of organization for fraternity. The second episode, suggesting "Summer or the Growing Season," portrays the broadening of the Grange program and activities to solve the many problems of agricultural production.

The final scene is representative of "Fall or the Harvest Time," and shows the Grange of today, ready to reap the harvest of its fifty years of organized effort, confronted by the great national problems that are a challenge to the farming industry.

Every day promises to be a big one at the encampment and fair, and the bustle and stir of active preparation is apparent everywhere on the park as the date for the opening draws nearer.

Applications for space in every department and many inquiries relative to exhibits and premiums are coming in to the secretary.

A play ground under proper supervision will be established for the children.

Arrangements are being made for entertainments day and evenings on park and auditorium.

The usual Harvest Home services will be held Sunday. A camp singing is planned for Tuesday.

The Centre County Veterans' club has a fine program planned for Wednesday. Free admittance to those wearing the proper Veterans' badge.

In the afternoon the program will be supplemented by addresses on educational subjects. Dr. J. M. Thomas, of The Pennsylvania State College, and L. H. Dennis, head of the bureau of vocational education, will lead in prominence as speakers and all are urged to hear them on this important subject.

Thursday will be Grange day. John A. McSparran, State Master; Philip H. Dewey, State lecturer; a representative of National Grange; Prof. Bressler, Centre county lecturer, and many others of note in Grange and public affairs will be presented. An effort is being made to secure the presence of charter members of Centre county Granges for Thursday's meeting.

The reformed church of State College will present a play in the auditorium on Thursday evening and from the preparation given it those who attend will be well entertained.

Admission will be charged to auditorium Thursday evening. Reformed church benefit. Grange park will be open and tickets on sale at the gates beginning Thursday, August 30th. 50 cents admission to all 14 years of age and over. Good for the week. All under 14 years admitted free.

Automobiles, 50 cents; good for the week. Excursion rates on all railroads. All trains stop at park. Special trains Thursday only.

Mrs. Catherine Bell, wife of Judge Singleton Bell, of Clearfield, died in the Clearfield hospital at an early hour on Monday morning, following an operation for gall stones and adhesions. She was fifty-one years old and is survived by her husband, one son and two daughters.

ISHLER.—Mrs. Jamime Garbrick Ishler, wife of John P. Ishler, of State College, died quite suddenly at an early hour on Monday morning while on an auto trip to Atlantic City for the benefit of her health. For some time past she had been subject to heart attacks and her physician advised taking her to the seashore. Consequently a party composed of Mr. and Mrs. Ishler, Mr. and Mrs. Robert A. Kerstetter and Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Bouse, left State College early Sunday morning to motor to Atlantic City. They traveled leisurely during the day and reaching a point six miles below Lancaster pitched their tents and went into camp for the night. Mrs. Ishler was apparently enjoying her experience but at midnight she suffered a severe attack and passed away at 1:10 o'clock. They were able to secure a physician for her but she was beyond help when he reached the camp. An undertaker was secured there and the party all returned by motor on Monday.

Mrs. Ishler was a daughter of Jacob and Elizabeth Garbrick and was born in Marion township on August 31st, 1855, hence was not quite sixty-eight years old. On December 18th, 1872, she married John P. Ishler and the early years of their married life were spent in Bellefonte and Spring township, finally locating on a farm in Benner township where they lived many years. The Ishler farm was one of those purchased as a site for the new western penitentiary and since that time, or during the past ten years, Mr. and Mrs. Ishler have made their home at State College. Mrs. Ishler was a life-long member of the Lutheran church and a woman whose religious principles were exemplified in her daily life. She lived to see her family of children grow into worthwhile citizens and all in comfortable circumstances.

In addition to her husband her family includes the following sons and daughters: William Jacob Ishler, of State College; R. F. D.; Martin Luther Ishler, of Zion; Henry Emanuel, of Pleasant Gap; Mrs. Robert A. Kerstetter and Mrs. W. R. Gentzel, of State College; John G. of Boalsburg, and Mrs. Clyde Bouse, of State College. She also leaves one brother, Jacob Garbrick, of Bellefonte.

Funeral services were held at her late home at State College at 2:30 o'clock on Wednesday afternoon by Rev. J. F. Harkins, after which burial was made in the Shiloh cemetery. Her former pastor, Rev. Stonecypher, returned and assisted in the conduct of the services.

WAY.—Miss Celia Way, one of the oldest residents of Unionville, died last Saturday as the result of a stroke of paralysis sustained eight days previous. She would have been seventy-eight years old on Tuesday and passed away in the house in which she was born and where she spent her entire life. She was the last survivor of her generation and for many years had lived with her cousin, Ellis Way. Funeral services were held on Tuesday morning, burial being made in the lower Unionville cemetery.

PEARCE.—Louise Pearce, ten year old daughter of Russell and Catherine Meese Pearce, of State College, died on Saturday evening following an illness of some weeks with Bright's disease. In addition to her parents she is survived by four sisters and one brother, Margaret, Ione, Dorothy, Harold and Madeline. Funeral services were held on Tuesday, burial being made in the Pine Hall cemetery.

Some Late Summer Changes.

Karl W. Bashoar, the junior member of the new proprietors of the Gamble mill, has secured the part of the Parker house on Spring street, vacated by the Rev. Evans family, and took possession of it at once, going there from Mrs. J. E. Ward's, where they have been since coming here from Millersburg.

J. Gilmore Wilson, an engineer with the American Lime & Stone Co., with Mrs. Wilson, have moved from the Bush house to the Grace Mitchell bungalow, on north Spring street, which they have leased furnished.

Mr. and Mrs. Norman Kirk are preparing to go to the Undercoffer place just south of town; expecting to go there from Dr. M. A. Kirk's, as soon as the place is ready for occupancy.

Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Shalcross have leased the furnished home of Mrs. Harry Valentine on west Curtin street and moved there from the William Chambers home, where they have had apartments.

While Philip L. Beezer was being brought home from the Geisinger hospital, at Danville, on Wednesday afternoon, he suffered a stroke of paralysis as the car was traveling through the Woodward Narrows, and his condition yesterday was considered quite serious. Mr. Beezer, who has not been in good health for months, was taken to the hospital two weeks ago for examination and treatment. Mrs. Beezer was with him and it was because of his desire to return home that his son Arthur went to Danville on Wednesday and brought him to Bellefonte in the car, Mrs. Beezer accompanying them.

Last Thursday night a collision occurred on the concrete state highway between the Bald Eagle Valley road and Runville between cars driven by "Gander" Meyers, of Bellefonte, and D. B. Reesner, of Snow Shoe. Mr. Meyers' car was pretty badly wrecked and he suffered an injury to his left leg. Mr. Reesner accepted the blame for the accident by paying for the damage done Meyers' car.

Circuit Court of Appeals Affirms the District Court in the Centre County Bank Case.

On Monday the Circuit Court of Appeals for Pennsylvania handed down an opinion in the case of Geo. R. Meek, Florence F. Dale and Andrew Breeze, alleged partners, vs. the Centre County Banking company.

The case was argued in Philadelphia last March and was an appeal from the ruling of the district court at Sunbury, Judge Witmer sitting, to the effect that the three persons named should answer the petition of John M. Shugert, praying that the banking company and its individual owners be adjudged bankrupts.

While Mrs. Dale and Messrs. Breeze and Meek deny that they are partners in the Banking company the appeal was taken on a question of jurisdiction; the appellants arguing that there is no process of law by which they can be taken into court upon such a petition as Mr. Shugert filed. The question of fact or of the merits of the individual contentions did not enter into it.

We are not advised as to what the future steps in the litigation will be. Or what action is permissible. An appeal to the Supreme court of the United States from the opinion of Judge Davis of the Circuit court is possible, if the Circuit court grants permission to take such an appeal. If an appeal should not be taken then the alleged partners must answer the amended petition of Mr. Shugert to the District court and show cause why they should not be adjudged bankrupts. Such action on their part might eventuate in trials by jury of the three individuals to establish the fact as to whether they were or were not partners in the Banking company at the time it went into liquidation.

The opinion of Judge Davis follows:

John M. Shugert, George R. Meek, Mary C. Harris, Florence F. Dale, Andrew Breeze and Lavina Katherine Harris conducted a banking business at Bellefonte, Pa., under the firm name of Centre County Banking Company. Lavina Katherine Harris died and while her estate was being administered in the Probate Court of Centre County, John M. Shugert filed a petition in his own name and in the name of the partnership in which he alleged that he, individually, the partnership and his partners were all insolvent and prayed that he, the partnership and the partners individually, be adjudged bankrupts. After the service of subpoenas on all the partners personally except Andrew Breeze who was served by publication, the appellants filed petitions praying the court to dismiss Shugert's petition in bankruptcy for two reasons: First, Shugert was without authority, without consent of his partners, to have the partnership and the individual members thereof adjudged bankrupts; and second, the partnership cannot be adjudged a bankrupt because the estate of Lavina Katherine Harris, constituting part of the partnership estate, was being administered in the Probate Court of Centre County. Authority of one partner to institute proceedings in bankruptcy involving his partners individually and the partnership was conferred by section 36 of the Act of 1867, but this authority, they contend, was omitted from the Act of 1898 and this omission shows that Congress intended to repeal the authority granted in that section. But section 5 a and c, of the Act of 1898 provides that:

(a) "A partnership, during the continuation of the partnership business or after its dissolution and before the final settlement thereof, may be adjudged a bankrupt. (c) The court of bankruptcy which has jurisdiction of one of the partners may have jurisdiction of all the partners and of the administration of the partnership and individual property."

General Order No. VIII provides that: "Any member of a partnership, who refuses to join in a petition to have the partnership declared bankrupt, shall be entitled to resist the prayer of the petition in the same manner as if the petition had been filed by a creditor of the partnership, and notice of the filing of his petition, to have the partnership and the individual members thereof adjudged bankrupts, as provided by law and by those rules in the case of a debtor petitioned against."

Appellants contend that the above section and General Order refer to involuntary and not to voluntary petitions in bankruptcy. General Order No. VIII was promulgated by the Supreme Court pursuant to section 30 of the Act of 1896 and had the force of law. This section provides that: "All necessary rules, forms, and orders as to procedure and for carrying this act into force and effect shall be prescribed, and may be amended from time to time, by the Supreme Court of the United States."

So far as the language of section 5 provides for the adjudication against "anyone" of the partners or by "any creditor" of the partnership. There is nothing in the language of section 5 of the Act of 1898 restricting adjudications to involuntary petitions. It simply provides that "the partnership" may be adjudged a bankrupt. Did not Congress in section 5 of the later Act tersely include everything contained in section 36 of the earlier Act? In the absence of any provision in the Act of 1898 to the contrary, we think the true interpretation requires us to hold that it did? If the Act of 1898 had provided that "a partnership may be adjudged a bankrupt" this would have indicated that Congress intended to deny to an individual partner authority to file a petition against the partnership. In that event, the argument of counsel that expressio unius est exclusio alterius would have force. Under the broad authority conferred by section 5 of the Act of 1898 a petition may be filed by "any one" of the partners, and by "any creditor." The legal maxim on which counsel's argument on this phase of the case is based has no application to the facts before us.

General Order No. VIII provides that:

"Any member of a partnership who refuses to join in the petition—shall be entitled to resist the prayer" etc. By the words "join in," the Supreme Court had in mind a voluntary petition filed by a member of the partnership and this petition is distinguished from a petition filed by a "creditor" in which a member of the partnership would not "join in." Judge Lowell held in the case of In re Forbes et al. 128 Fed. 137, 140 that a petition by one partner dispenses with the necessity of proof of any other act of bankruptcy by the partnership and if the other partners do not "join in" the petition, they may resist it just as they might have done if "any creditor" of the partnership had filed an involuntary petition. The opinion received the commendation of the Supreme Court. Francis V. McNees, 228 U. S. 695. Where a partnership is composed of two members and one of the members is adjudged a bankrupt but the other is not, the bankruptcy court may draw to itself and administer the estate of the other to an extent sufficient to pay the debts of the partnership adjudged to be bankrupt. Armstrong v. Fisher et al., 224 Fed. 97; Francis V. McNees, 186 Fed. 481, affirmed in 228 U. S. 695; Youngbluth v. Slipper et al., 185 Fed. 773.

Does the fact that the estate of Lavina Katherine Harris is being administered in the Probate Court of Centre County, Pennsylvania prevent adjudication and administration of the partnership in bankruptcy? "There is an apparent conflict of authority upon this question." Collier on Bankruptcy (2d Ed.) 175. The death of one of the partners does not in any wise affect the insolvency of the partnership. Insolvency does not depend upon whether the property liable to creditors is in the hands of a living surviving partner or in the hands of the administrator of his estate. Proceedings against an insolvent partnership and insolvent partners should not be made impossible because one of the partners is dead. Vaccaro et al. v. Security Bank of Memphis et al., 130 Fed. 436, 443. The contrary view is based on the proposition that the court which first secures possession of the funds shall administer them, but there is no need whatever of conflict over the property of the decedent's estate. Partnership assets are liable primarily for partnership debts. After the individual assets of the estate of Lavina Katherine Harris are administered by the Probate Court if there is a surplus to be applied to the partnership debts, it will be turned over to the bankruptcy court. In re Stem & Co., 127 Fed. 547. The order appealed from is affirmed.

Volunteer Firemen Hold Convention at Clearfield.

At the annual convention of the Central Pennsylvania Volunteer Firemen's association, held at Clearfield last week, changes in the by-laws were authorized which will permit each organization to elect two delegates to the annual conventions instead of one, and increasing the annual dues from one to two dollars. Patton was selected as the place for holding next year's convention. Officers for the ensuing year were elected as follows: President, William Trumbell, of Patton; first vice president, John Mills, of Houtzdale; second vice president, J. F. Ainslee, of DuBois; secretary, John E. Johnson, of DuBois; treasurer, Hon. Harry B. Scott, of Philipsburg, who was also elected an honorary life member; delegate to State convention, John M. Bain, of Clearfield.

At the annual banquet held in the Clearfield exposition building Alex P. Kreher, of Clearfield, the retiring president, was presented with a very serviceable traveling bag. The parade on Thursday morning was a very creditable display and the various athletic contests in the afternoon exceedingly interesting. Over six hundred dollars were awarded in prizes.

Diphtheria Prevention Clinic.

The first diphtheria prevention clinic was held in Bellefonte Tuesday, August 24th, in the Red Cross room. Ninety-six children received their first injection of toxin-antitoxin to protect them against diphtheria. Dr. J. L. Seibert and Dr. David Dale treated the children, assisted by the State nurse, Miss Ethel M. Campbell, and Miss Blanche Hayes, State supervisor. Miss Daise Keichline and Mrs. Blanche Schloss assisted by keeping records.

The second clinic will be held Tuesday, August 28th, between two and three o'clock. Parents who have not had their children treated and desire to do so, must obtain consent permits from Miss Daise Keichline, east Bishop street, and Mrs. Blanche Schloss, High street. These permits must be signed and returned to Miss Keichline not later than Friday noon, August 24th.

The second clinic was held in Lock Haven last Friday; two hundred children were treated. This treatment is not successful unless all three injections are taken.

Capt. Henry K. Ritter camp, No. 65, S. of V., will serve its twentieth annual bean soup feast and hold a reunion in the Cold Spring grove at McClure, Pa., on Saturday, September 29th. McClure is a quaint little town in the Middle creek valley, along the state highway and on the Sunbury to Lewistown railroad. This annual bean soup reunion is a great event there and is usually carried on on quite a pretentious scale.

The Otterbein Brotherhood of the United Brethren church cleared $70.00 at their festival held on the Island, last Saturday evening. The total receipts were about $150.00, and the expenses $80.00.

Tuesday night's dashing rain was sufficient to replenish the many cisterns throughout the county that were getting quite low.

Farewell Reception to Rev. Evans.

Between two and three hundred people, not all of whom were Presbyterians attended the farewell reception given Rev. David R. Evans and family, in the chapel of the Presbyterian church on Monday night, Col. J. L. Spangler was master of ceremonies but the informal character of the gathering made it especially delightful to all present. Naturally bouquets were passed around promiscuously and to such an extent that Rev. Evans was led to remark that it sounded like the nice things said about a man after he was dead.

This assertion was made after the reading of the following resolutions, which were adopted with great unanimity and hearty applause by all present:

Whereas, It has seemed best to our pastor, the Reverend David R. Evans, to request the dissolution of the pastoral relations existing between him and this congregation, and to accept a call from the Knox Presbyterian church, of Kearny, New Jersey; and

Resolved, That this congregation commend him for the strength of his faith in the Presbyterian church and its possibilities for advancing the Kingdom of our Lord; for his zeal in the Christian education of the children and youth of this community and the spreading and deepening of religious faith among all ages and conditions; for the sturdy honesty of his purpose and the vigor of his convictions; for the fearless sincerity of his speech and conduct. That we most heartily commend him for his broad-mindedness, his progressive tendencies, his untiring energy, his general excellence as pastor and preacher; and be it

Resolved, That we give him without stint full credit for whatever there has been of increase in membership, of growth in zeal and interest in the affairs of the church, for whatever there is of larger support for benevolences and the needs of the church, and for a brighter financial outlook than we have had for many years; that we assure him that his "Aim to Serve" has been attained; and be it

Resolved, That we most heartily commend his wife and companion for the faithful way in which she has labored in the interests of the church and for her full accord in all the efforts of her husband in the cause of the Master; and be it further

Resolved, That the congratulations of this people be and they are hereby extended to the congregation of Knox Presbyterian church, of Kearny, New Jersey, in securing his energetic, valued and devoted services; and be it finally

Resolved, That we bid him and his family God-speed in their new field; that we wish them joy in their work, long continuing years of useful service, and the appreciation of the people wherever they may be; and that the prayer of this congregation is that the blessings of their God and ours shall accompany them wherever they may go, uphold their hands and give them power in greater and greater abundance in doing the work of the Kingdom.

Respectfully submitted, J. L. SPANGLER, HELEN E. C. OVERTON, ARTHUR H. SLOOP, Committee.

A quartette of musical geniuses from Tyrone assisted local talent in the musical part of the program while the few speeches were brief and to the point. One episode worth mentioning was introduced by Mr. Charles M. McCurdy, who produced two cancelled notes, one for $900 and the other for $950, which represented the discharged obligations of the congregation. In presenting them for destruction he stated that it was like parting with old friends, as the bank had carried them through two wars, the Spanish-American and world war. The payment of these notes cleared up all such indebtedness of the church, and while the congregation still has one more obligation to discharge to clear them of all debts the unpaid pledges of the recent drive will more than cover it. This is one creditable work Rev. Evans accomplished during the last few weeks of his pastorate, as it will leave the church free of all obligations when a new pastor is finally selected.

But recurring to the reception, in addition to the feast of music and trite speeches refreshments were served and it was almost eleven o'clock when the gathering broke up.

Rev. Evans and family went to Birmingham on Wednesday to attend a conference, expecting to be away until the early part of next week when they will return and ship their household goods to the pastor's new appointment in New Jersey.

The afternoon service at two o'clock will include addresses by Miss Esther Shields, of Korea; Rev. E. C. Armstrong, D. D., of Williamsport, representing the Presbytery of Northumberland, and Rev. George E. Hawes, D. D., of Harrisburg, Moderator of the Synod of Pennsylvania.
