—Fire at the new office of the American Lime & Stone company, at six o'clock on Tuesday morning, did damage estimated at from two to three hundred dollars. The awning was entirely destroyed, the top of the window was burned away and the fire burned from the ceiling of the first floor up between the studding to the top of the second floor before the flames were extinguished.

CATTLE AND HOG KILLERS ARRESTED.

Two Men Confess to Killing Hog in Brood Pen of Western Penitentiary and Carrying home the Meat.

George Taylor, his wife, Mabel Emil Shawley Taylor, and Paul Hetrick, a discharged convict from the western penitentiary, were arrested on Tuesday on the charge of killing a two year old Jersey-Guernsey heifer belonging to Edgar Fisher, of Bald Eagle valley, and converting the meat to their own use, and their arrest uncovered the very sensational fact that on the night of November 9th or 10th the two men drove to the western penitentiary at Rockview where Taylor climbed into the brood pens, stuck his knife into a 125 pound hog and after it had bled to death they hoisted it out of the pen and carted it to their home in the old Charles Schach house on Muncy mountain. The officers who made the arrests on Tuesday found the meat of the hog as well as the heifer.

The start of this story dates back to November 14th and the scene on the old Kitchen farm below Milesburg now owned and occupied by Edgar Fisher and family. Mr. Fisher has a nice herd of young cattle and on the 14th of November they were pasturing in a clearing on the side of the mountain in Kitchen's gap, some distance from the farm buildings. Mr. Fisher's boys were up in the clearing on the date above mentioned and found all the cattle there. The next day when they went to drive them to the barn the Jersey-Guernsey heifer, the pet of the flock, was missing. Mr. Fisher went to the clearing to investigate and found the head of his prize heifer, evidence that the young animal had been killed and carried away.

The next day he came to Belleville and consulted district attorney James C. Furst. The result was that Mr. Furst accompanied him to the clearing and they were able to follow the trail where the carcass of the animal had been dragged down the mountain and across a small run, the overflow from the Milesburg reservoir, where they found the forequarters of the beef, the animal having been cut in two and the hindquarters carried off. Investigations were carried on quietly until Monday of this week and every trail led to the Schach house on the mountain, occupied by the Taylors and Hetrick. The result was a search warrant was sworn out and on Tuesday morning sheriff Harry Dukeman, constable Howard Smead and policeman W. H. Geissinger went to the Schach place where they found Mrs. Taylor and Hetrick. They were both placed under arrest and a search of the cellar revealed the meat of the heifer salted down, and also the meat of a hog. The meat was confiscated, as well as the tools with which the killing had been done and the woman and man brought to the Centre county jail. Taylor was working at the Titan Metal company and he was arrested a little later.

After their arrest both men agreed in the story that on the evening of November 14th they took a twenty-four calibre rifle and decided to go down to where a flock of wild turkeys had been roosting and shoot a turkey on the roost. To get there they had to cross the clearing in which Fisher's young cattle were pasturing. Most of the cattle ran at their approach except the heifer, which, being a pet, made no attempt to get away. Being in need of meat the men decided to kill the heifer and Hetrick shot the animal. After cutting off the head and taking the insides out they dragged the carcass down to the run mentioned above but could not get it up to their mountain home, as it weighed about 300 pounds. They then decided to cut it in two, take the hind quarters up first and go back for the forequarters, but by the time they got the hind quarters home and cut up it was after midnight and they did not go back after the rest of the meat.

It was while the men were being quizzed after their arrest that the story of the killing of the hog and carrying it away from the western penitentiary came out.

Taylor has served time in the western penitentiary for bigamy and his wife has also been before the court on several occasions. Hetrick is from York county, having been sent to the eastern penitentiary from there. He spent fourteen months in that institution and was then transferred to the western penitentiary at Pittsburgh and thirty days later to Rockview. After seven months at Rockview he was discharged almost a year ago and for some months worked at the Whiteoak quarries. Of late, however, he had been living with the Taylors on Muncy mountain.

Col. Reynolds Elected President of Whiteoak Quarries.

At a meeting of the directors of the Whiteoak Quarries, last Thursday evening, Col. W. F. Reynolds, who had been vice president of the organization, was elected president to succeed the late Edward H. Richard, deceased, and A. Fauble was chosen vice president. No change was made in the managerial staff.

Stabbing Affray Unravels Peculiar Marital Situation.

Joseph Carvelli, whose Italian name is Guiseppe Carvelli, was the victim of a stabbing affair by his supposed wife, Pasqualine Presta, on Sunday evening, and the fact that the woman was devoid of skill in the handling of the knife is the only reason why Carvelli is alive today. The unpleasant incident also revealed a peculiar marital situation in the lives of the two people.

According to the story Pasqualine Presta, or “Pauline,” as she is now known, came to this country quite recently to marry one of her countrymen who had courted her near Italy's sunny skies. But when she arrived she discovered that cupid and the fickle god of fortune had played her false, as her swarthy suitor had married another woman. Instead of pining her life away she promptly looked around for another available man and soon found him in the person of Joseph Carvelli, and on October 20th they went to the register's office in the court house and took out a marriage license.

The long, legal looking paper given to them they believed a testimony of civil marriage and they at once went to housekeeping up at Morristown, in Buffalo Run valley, Mr. Carvelli being in the employ of the American Lime & Stone company. Notwithstanding the fact that they started right in to live together as soon as they received the marriage license they decided to have a religious ceremony performed and had their banns read in the Catholic church, intending to have the church rite performed on Wednesday morning of this week.

On Sunday evening, however, they quarreled, but the cause thereof could not be learned. In any event the woman grabbed a new butcher knife from the table and attacked her husband. He received several cuts on the left hand in an endeavor to ward off her blows but finally she struck him on the right breast with such force that the knife penetrated all his clothing, cut a gash on his breast several inches in length, and the point of the knife striking the bone was snapped off at the hilt.

Neighbors hurried in and the woman was taken into custody and placed in the Centre county jail. Carvelli was brought to Belleville and taken to a physician's office who soon ascertained that his wounds were not serious and after dressing them he returned home.

On Monday morning Carvelli went to the district attorney's office and told the story of his domestic troubles and while he preferred no charge against the woman he insisted that the district attorney give him a divorce right away, quick. On being told that getting a divorce took months of time he instructed Mr. Furst to start at once. The latter began to investigate and it was then discovered that the pair had not been married at all.

The woman in the case, after being taken to jail refused to talk and appeared quite ill and a physician being summoned found her suffering with a bad case of tonsillitis. Her actions in general were so queer that the court appointed a commission to inquire into her condition and after a complete examination the commission reported that they found her of unsound mind. Whether this has been caused by her illness, could not be determined, but it is just possible that her condition was the reason for her aggravated attack upon her husband.

A Peculiar Auto Fire.

During the latter part of last week a gentleman from Snow Shoe drove his Chevrolet coupe to the Decker Bros. garage on south Water street to have some minor repairs made. The car was run into the garage and stored temporarily among a lot of other cars. On Monday when workmen had time to look the car over they discovered that a large portion of the inside of the body had been burned. Inasmuch as some one was in the garage all day on Sunday, when there was no indication of a fire, it is presumed it occurred on Sunday night. The flames, however, did not reach the gas tank and did not break out through the sides or top, and the general belief is that lack of air in the closed coupe caused the fire to die out before it gained enough headway to break out through the sides or top of the car.

County Institute of Y. P. Workers.

Every county in the State is being instructed in the big advance movement of the churches and Sunday schools in securing more effective and co-operative work for young people of the State. A staff of specialists are being sent out by the State Sunday School association to conduct institutes in every county. Miss Esther I. Williams, associate director of Y. P. work, was assigned to Centre county and the institute was held on Monday afternoon and evening, in the Methodist church, Belleville. Twenty-three Sunday schools were represented and the attendance fifty-three. The coming merger of the denominational Y. P. societies was explained and the unified program of work outlined. Interesting discussions on the every day problems of the school and church were discussed very frankly.

A Small But Earnest Meeting for the Hospital.

Probably no more than eighty people responded to the call for a county meeting to discuss the future of the Belleville hospital last Monday night. It was a small but very earnest gathering and so interested were those who did attend that it was almost eleven o'clock before they adjourned.

Judge Quigley called the meeting to order. After a brief resume of the purpose for which it had been called he asked for nominations for a permanent chairman. The Hon. A. G. Morris was nominated, but declined and then Dr. A. M. Schmidt was named and elected.

Dr. Schmidt called on Geo. R. Meek, president of the board of trustees of the hospital, for a statement of its present financial condition and an expression of the board's thoughts as to what should be done to insure the hospital's future and render the institution more efficient in its service to the public. Mr. Meek referred, of course, to the recommendations of Mr. Wright, the New York expert, which were published in the county papers last week and then showed that the hospital deficit for the year 1922-'23 was $734.14. This, with outstanding bills contracted prior to June 1st, 1922, and unpaid, made the indebtedness for current bills $2,823.42 on June 1st, 1923. As the hospital will receive $4000.00 per annum less from the State for the next two years than it has in the past and as its income will probably not be greater than it was last year it is reasonable to assume that on June 1st, 1925, its present current debt will have grown to be $12,291.70. That is if there is no public movement to make up for the apparent annual deficit of $734.14 and the $8,000 reduction in the State aid.

It will be recalled that Mr. Wright suggested changes in the building at an approximate cost of $75,000. This item added to the maintenance needs above stated made it appear that if it was deemed practicable to go ahead it would be necessary to raise nearly $100,000.00.

General discussion followed as to the possible success of such an undertaking. Mr. Goodling, Rev. Romick, Mr. James Aikens, Mr. Harvey and Mr. Scott, the State College delegation, all spoke. Prof. C. L. Gramley and Mr. Detweiler, of Rebersburg, spoke. Judge Quigley, John Blanchard Esq., Roy Wilkinson, Robert F. Hunter, James R. Hughes and others from Belleville entered into the discussion; all of them expressing the earnest conviction that the hospital is rendering a distinct service and should be carried on.

Then Rev. Romick divulged that State College borough is contemplating the building of a hospital of its own and the propriety and necessity of such a venture was discussed. The conclusion is to this new angle of the situation was to the effect that it would be better to have one good hospital than two that would have to fight always for existence, especially since it was revealed that experience has proven that one fifty bed institution will serve all the normal needs of a community no greater in population than Centre county. When it was taken into consideration that Phillipsburg and Rush township are already served by the Cottage State hospital in Phillipsburg it became apparent that the Belleville hospital is ample to serve all the remaining sections of the county.

In the light of this conclusion the State College folks decided to consult with and advise their Chamber of Commerce of the apparent inexpediency of undertaking a hospital movement for that place. Largely on the ground that it would be better to have one well supported than two struggling institutions; especially since State College could have its own ambulance and get patients here in very little longer time than it would require to move them to an institution located there.

Rev. Maynard moved that it be recorded as the expression of the meeting that the project to raise $100,000 be endorsed. There was a rising vote on the question and all but four voted aye.

While it was not as large nor representative a gathering as was hoped for the spirit of the meeting was plainly for a drive. The hospital board will probably meet tonight to consider ways and means of conducting the campaign, though nothing final will be done until after the State College people have been given opportunity to discuss the suggestion that they abandon their project and join in the move to convert our institution into one central county hospital that will serve all and be supported by all outside of those served by the hospital at Phillipsburg.

Will Drink a Cup of Tea and be Sociable.

Everybody up in Ferguson township knows Rev. D. Y. Brouse, pastor of the Methodist church at Mount Union. He is a brother of W. H. Brouse, of Boalsburg, and until quite recently his mother lived at Pine Grove Mills. The pastor evidently is not getting the desired kind of team work from his congregation, according to the way he talked to his members on Sunday evening.

“You're not sociable and friendly enough,” he said, and some of the older people appeared terribly shocked, while others simply smiled. “Many of you visit friends after church and have a cup of tea, etc.,” he continued. “Next Sunday evening, after the sermon, we'll all go to the church social room and have an informal chat over a cup of coffee or tea. It may serve to make you more genial.”
