P. R. R. Erecting Large Ice Plant at Huntingdon.

One of the largest and most modern icing plants in the country will be put into operation by the Pennsylvania Railroad system, at Huntingdon, thirty-three miles east of Altoona, early next spring. The completion of this station, at a cost of approximately $900,000, will greatly facilitate the handling of the large volume of fresh meats, fruits, and other perishable products moving over the Pennsylvania.

Two 700 foot "island" platforms will be provided at the new station, one for the eastbound and the other for the westbound movement. Tracks will be laid on both sides of these platforms, making it possible for each platform to accommodate two trains at one time. Entire trains will move directly to the platforms on main running tracks, the cars will be iced on an average of one a minute, and the trains continued to destination without break-up or change of engines. Delays incident to switching and reclassification will thus be entirely eliminated.

Working to capacity the new plant will manufacture 225 tons of ice daily, with facilities for storing 4,000 tons. Water used in making ice will be of a very high standard, obtained from carefully tested wells.
