

PLEASANT GAP.
Prof. Treister spent Monday with his parents in Union county.
The S. Miller family, of State College, were visitors at the J. T. Noll home over Sunday.
One of our lusher remarked the other evening that an unequalled quality of good moonshine at this particular time created a world-wide demand.

The small fruit crop is in excellent shape. The early sweet and early Richmond cherries are far enough advanced that they are out of danger from the ravages of frost; plums are progressing nicely. If frost holds back for a week or two more we can look for an abundant crop.

Money, wisely expended and discreetly used for the benefit of others, is capital deposited in a bank that never fails, and whose dividends are never affected by the rise and fall of stocks in the market. On the other hand, money foolishly expended in "moonshine" is a senseless waste and sure to end in disaster, degradation and ruin.

A number of our Klansmen motored to Millheim on Sunday to participate in the great K. K. K. entertainment. They report having had a wonderful turnout, and an overflow attendance; one-half of the people present were unable to even enjoy standing room. The Evangelical minister of Millheim surely did justice to the memorable supper. The Rev. is a profound classical and theological scholar, well equipped for his work in a class of discriminating students, who considers his hearers worthy of his best efforts every time he opens his mouth.

Miss Edith Herman was recently stricken with a serious nervous breakdown and is suffering with insupportable severity. The doctor calls on her quite frequently, but no relief is in sight. Miss Herman is an enthusiastic church and Sabbath school worker, hence is greatly missed by the Methodist congregation here. We hope for a speedy change in her lamentable condition. There is not a word in our language which has more numerous or more pleasant associations than hope. It blooms in every season of existence and, like the evergreen, it preserves its verdure throughout our entire existence. Hope is the anchor of the soul. Let us hope that she will soon again be normal.

Composition of Celluloid

Celluloid is an artificial substance made by mixing gun camphor, gun cotton and other substances and then subjecting them to hydraulic pressure. A kind of celluloid was made in 1856 at Birmingham, England, but the invention of ordinary celluloid is usually credited to John W. Hyatt of Newark, N. J., who with his brother developed an important industry. The exact process of celluloid manufacture is a trade secret. One method is roughly as follows: Dry gun cotton is well washed and dried and ground fine under water, after which the water is removed and the mass subjected to great pressure. Then camphor and coloring matter are added. Celluloid is used as a substitute for ivory, bone, hard rubber, coral, leather and many other substances. It is not explosive, but easily lighted and burns rapidly.

Airedale and Airedale Terrier

The name "Airedale" is only a shortened form for "Airedale terrier." The tendency now is to drop the superfluous word "terrier" when speaking of this dog. The Airedale terrier was originally bred about 60 or 70 years ago in the valley of the Aire, Yorkshire, England. Hence its name. The breed was obtained by various crosses between the bull terrier, the border terrier, the otter hound and other breeds. The Airedale is one of the largest of the terriers. It has pendulous ears, a black, tan or dark, rough-haired coat, and usually weighs from 40 to 50 pounds. The Airedale should not be confused with the Irish terrier, which is a smaller dog somewhat resembling it in general appearance.

Well, We Did It

Just one week ago we arrived in Bellefonte, to find a typhoid scare at Coleville, and drove out and put into the homes of the poor and sick—whether they had money or not—and today we can print a letter from one who was helped. See Republican and Democrat for others:

"Counts Kill Germ"

Bellefonte, Pa., May 21, 1924.

Dear Friends:

To whom it may concern—about the "Counts Kill Germ." I had been sick for almost three months, and was in bed when the agent came to my door with "Counts Kill Germ." I took a bottle of it and began taking it right away. I have taken it three days, and feel as though I was in a new world.

Yours very truly,
Coleville, Pa. Mrs. Malcolm Peters.

Don't delay; get "Kill Germ" today at Runkle's—or call Bell 330. We want you to sell to your sick friends—salary or commission.
