INTRODUCTIONS AND HOW TO MAKE THEM.

By L. A. Miller.
I was asked by a friend to give my views on introductions, and how to make them. This is a rather embarrassing proposition. Much good has been accomplished, and also great harm has resulted through over-doing the proposition.
In spite of everything that has been done in the way of precautions and guards against the intrusions into society of persons objectionable in many ways, those people not only get into good social circles but often take a prominent place therein. This is the main reason why the greater care should be observed in the matter of introductions. That introductions are a necessity is conceded; if people were not introduced in a proper and formal way the large majority would pass their lives without acquaintance, knowing none outside of their relatives.
Indiscriminate introductions are a horror, and it is thought by some that there should be a law against it. Many persons have a mania for introducing friends to every one they meet; the consequence being that undesirable acquaintances are violently and rudely thrust upon inoffensive men and women who have done nothing to merit such barabrous treatment.

When two persons have been formally introduced, certain definite obligations rest upon them which good breeding requires them to honor. They may not meet without recognition; they must treat each other civilly, and, if they do not desire the acquaintance to go beyond formality, the fact may be signified without rudeness, by a polite bow. This is modified in the case of ball room introductions, it being optional with the lady whether she afterwards recognize a gentleman with whom she may have danced. Nor does etiquette require that gentlemen who have met casually at the house, or in the rooms of mutual friend, shall recognize each other afterward. They certainly may do so if they like, but if they choose to do otherwise, no social rule is broken. When young people are introduced to one older in years, and secure in social position, it is a graceful act on the part of the latter to extend his hand, and to speak a pleasant word or two by way of encouragement.

Rioters Must Serve Jail Sentences.
Ebensburg, Pa., July 1.—Refusing the motions to set aside judgment and for a new trial in the cases of eighteen alleged members of the Ku Klux Klan and ten Lilly residents, convicted of affray and unlawful assemblage in connection with the fatal rioting at Lilly, the night of April 5th, Judge Thomas D. Finletter, of Philadelphia, today sentenced the twenty-eight men to pay the costs of the prosecution and to undergo two years' imprisonment in the county jail, the terms dating from their incarceration.
In the cases of three other Lilly residents convicted of the same charges Judge Finletter granted a motion for arrest of judgment. These three men are Jeremiah Leahay, John P. Bradley and Robert Monahan.
From the bench Judge Finletter stated that he did not wish to inflict cruel sentence and said "but the fact cannot be overlooked that the defendants' actions brought about the death of three Lilly citizens."

Gives Antitoxin Forcibly to Cut Diphtheria.
Lebanon, Pa.—Having forcibly administered antitoxin to members of the faith tabernacle, a cult of faith curers, local health authorities are hopeful of checking the spread of diphtheria, which in three weeks has caused the deaths of nine persons. All the victims were members of families of the faith tabernacle and all the authorities declared, had been denied medical attention.
Five of the deaths occurred in the family of Mrs. Charles Roth, her husband and four children dying since April 21. One of the children died while the funeral of another was being held. Mrs. Roth had refused medical treatment for her family. She and four surviving children were inoculated, although she would not give verbal consent, but submitted without protest.

Pest Threatens State Plum Stock.

Plums will be scarce in this part of northeastern Pennsylvania unless some means is found to kill off the blackmat pest, local experts say. It is playing havoc with local orchards and this district, which supplies many towns in the east with the fruit, will not have many to ship this summer. Farmers up to this time have been forced to cut down all infected trees and burn the twigs.

We are Headquarters for Washing Machines and for All Electrical Household Needs
Moreover we see to it that every household appliance we sell you does the work we represent it will do. In other words, when you buy a Washing Machine or a Vacuum Cleaner or an Electric Iron—or any other household appliance at this store, you get something more than a high grade appliance—you get high grade service on that appliance as well. And high grade service on an electric appliance amounts to actual insurance of day in and day out use of what you buy.
And another thing. The appliances we buy for you are the best in their field. In Washing Machines, for example, we carry the world-famous line of
A B C Electric Washers
And every woman who knows anything about Electric Washers knows the quality-reputation back of the wonderful A B C Line.
So, when you need anything electrical for your home—no matter whether it's a small iron to put the curl in your hair, or a big machine to take the drudgery out of your washdays, you'll find it here at Electrical Appliance Headquarters.
And remember, too, when you buy it you are getting a personal service that sees to it that what you buy is always kept in order and kept running.
