

NEWS ABOUT TOWN AND COUNTY.

The ladies of the Reformed church spent Thursday afternoon of this week at the nurse's home, sewing for the hospital.

No very serious auto accidents were reported in Centre county on Sunday, notwithstanding the fact that all roads were congested with travel.

Spring Mills Lodge I. O. O. F. is considering the proposition of organizing a band within its ranks, that is, if the preliminary expense is not deemed prohibitive.

The summer session for teachers will open at State College on Monday, with optional courses of six, eight or ten weeks. An attendance of two thousand is expected by Dean Chambers, who has charge of the summer school.

Motorists and others who travel the Black Moshannon road between Philipsburg and Snow Shoe are contemplating petitioning the county commissioners to have the road improved. While the road is used extensively it has been greatly neglected the past few years and is badly in need of repairs.

Joseph Shaughnessy, who fell on the pavement in Tyrone five weeks ago and broke his knee cap, is still confined to the Bellefonte hospital, where he is undergoing treatment. He is unable to bear any weight upon the injured leg and his physician has decided to put the knee in a cast which will probably enable him to get around with the use of crutches.

Any man in Centre county who is in need of summer clothing should consult the advertisement of the Fauble store on the seventh page of today's paper. Some of the biggest bargains ever offered in any Bellefonte store will be found therein. As this sale will last but ten days you will have to act quickly if you want to get the advantage of the big reduction in prices.

Members of the old Troop L, who served in France during the world war, will be interested in the announcement that one of their number, Frank W. Cadwallader, of Philipsburg, was married at Selinsgrove last week to Miss Katherine Keiser, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Keiser. Mr. Cadwallader is a cousin of A. Clyde Smith, of Bellefonte, and he and his bride will live in Philipsburg.

Scenic patrons will find a two weeks' ahead program published in the "Watchman" this week, and every picture will be worth seeing. In fact each and every one should appeal to all lovers of the screen and the only way to be sure of seeing all the good ones is to be a regular. After tomorrow night the opera house will be closed for several weeks while the interior is being repaired and painted.

Postmaster Brumbaugh, of Altoona, has received permission from the Postoffice Department to send all airplane mail to Bellefonte for transportation west instead of to Cleveland, Ohio, as other towns and cities in the State have been requested to do. Hence letters mailed in Altoona up to six o'clock or a little later in the morning can be sent to Bellefonte on the morning train and reach here in time to be put on the mailplane west at 12:20.

Mrs. Susan Spangler, of Centre Hall, who had quite a sick spell early last week, is reported as resting comfortably the past few days and her condition is not regarded as being unduly serious. Mrs. Spangler, who is the mother of Col. J. L. Spangler, of Bellefonte, will be ninety-six years old on August 2nd, if she is spared until that time, and is probably the oldest person in Centre county. Up until her sick spell last week she had enjoyed remarkably good health for one of her advanced age.

Just twenty-four more days of legal trout fishing remain until the close of the 1924 season, and the man who has not yet caught his share had better get busy. Of course few fishermen have hogged the limit this year, as weather conditions have been unusually favorable for the trout ever since the opening day on April 15th. While the trout season is nearing its end the bass season opened on Tuesday. The only stream in Centre county where this species of fish is found is in lower Bald Eagle creek, but they are plentiful enough there to afford good sport to bass fishermen. Some of the streams in nearby counties are well stocked with bass and a number of Bellefontes make annual pilgrimages to their favorite retreats.

Metal signs pointing the direction and giving the distance to surrounding towns were erected in Bellefonte during the past week by the State Highway Department, and will be erected at all important junctions and cross sections of state highway in the county. While not an innovation by any means it is something that will prove of inestimable value to the traveling public. Every day dozens of autoists passing through Bellefonte have been compelled to stop and inquire how to get out of town, and now, when they become acquainted with the fact that signs have been put up they will experience little difficulty in locating the right street. One sign in the Diamond points the way to Tyrone and Altoona, and Lock Haven and State College, while one on Bishop street points the way to Lock Haven and Lewistown. Out at the High school building another sign has been erected and also one at Spring and Linn streets.

Fast Air Mail Inaugurated on Tuesday.

Some five years or more ago postmaster Paul Brosius, of Lock Haven, sent invitations broadcast over central Pennsylvania inviting people to come to that town and witness the maiden voyage of the pathfinder airplane, which would fly westward seeking suitable landing places for post-office aviation fields, as the government was about to establish an airmail route between New York and Chicago, and he had beaten everybody to it by having Lock Haven selected as the site for the landing field in this section. The writer was among the crowd that journeyed to Lock Haven to see the "flying machine" come in, but we failed to see it. The ship was so late in reaching that place that we were probably home before it arrived there.

The aviator, the late lamented Max Miller, looked the Lock Haven field over and promised to report on its availability later. On his next trip, several weeks later, he landed in Bellefonte, and he was so much more favorably impressed with the facilities offered here that this town was recommended instead of Lock Haven.

But the above is only a prelude to the fact that on Tuesday, when the first fast airmail plane reached Bellefonte among the crowd at the aviation field to witness its arrival and departure were more Lock Haven people than there were residents of Bellefonte, all having motored up to witness a sight which has become such an everyday occurrence here that the hum of the airplane motor creates no excitement whatever.

Apropos of the inauguration of the thirty-four hour mail between New York and San Francisco, W. L. Smith, one of the veteran fliers, drove the first plane from New York to Chicago. It carried 450 pounds of mail and reached the Bellefonte field almost on the minute of its scheduled time, 12:20 p. m. The plane was replenished with oil and gas and was off again in less than ten minutes. Through mail only was carried on this ship. A second ship followed within fifteen minutes carrying what is deemed the local pouches. One hundred or more letters were taken on from the field post-office. Those were placed in packages for Cleveland, Chicago and contiguous points, and in a few minutes the plane was on its way west. The first plane east did not pass through Bellefonte until Wednesday, but it carried San Francisco mail which left there on Tuesday morning.

Two Young Men with Stolen Car Arrested in Bellefonte.

On Sunday evening sheriff E. R. Taylor received a telephone message from Centre Hall to be on the lookout for a big Jordan car with Connecticut license tags and carrying two young men. The car had been stolen at Meriden, Connecticut, by the young men who were on their way west. Meriden authorities had traced them to Lewistown but the officers there got the word after the young men had left that place on their way across the Seven Mountains. Lewistown officers telephoned to Centre Hall but too late to catch the men there. They had just left for Bellefonte after trading a spare rim for gasoline.

As soon as sheriff Taylor got the message he jumped into his car and accompanied by chief of police Harry Dukeman drove down to Milesburg and back out the state highway towards Axe Mann, and also down past the aviation field without getting any trace of the car, but when he returned to Bellefonte he found it parked in front of the Bon Mot, next to the "Watchman" office. The young men were nearby and they were promptly taken into custody and escorted to the Centre county jail. They gave their names as Clifford Ludington, aged 20 years, and Clyde Murray, aged 19, and told the sheriff that notwithstanding the fact that they had driven right through cities and towns they had not been molested by the police until they reached Bellefonte. But this would likely have been the end of their journey, if they hadn't been picked up so soon after reaching here, as they were out of gas and had only a dime between them. They admitted having stolen the car and Meriden officers were notified of their capture.

The Fifth Annual Business Men's Picnic.

The Associated Business Men of Bellefonte will hold their big free basket picnic at Hecla park on Thursday, August 14th, all day and evening. It will be the fifth annual gathering and the committee in charge is working to make it different from any former picnic and much larger in every particular. One of the main features will be an auto show and an auto obstacle race in which Ford cars will be made to talk nutty and climb trees. Joking aside, the race will be one of the biggest freak features ever seen, and will be worth coming many miles to see.

Other features will be boxing bouts for prizes, wrestling contests, a poverty parade, morning and afternoon ball games between two teams of the Centre county league and as a novelty daylight fireworks. Also boating and swimming and all sorts of concessions. Free band concerts will be given at stated intervals throughout the day and an excellent orchestra will furnish music for dancing in the pavilion from morning until late at night. Eating stands on the grounds will furnish meals to all those who do not wish to take baskets with them. Remember the date, August 14th, and make your plans to spend the day at the park.

No Paper Next Week.

The "Watchman" force will take a vacation next week consequently no paper will be issued. The next number of the "Watchman" will appear on July 18th. We trust all our readers will have a glorious time today celebrating the Fourth in a purely American patriotic manner, even though it be "safe and sane."

Farm agent Ralph C. Blaney and bride have returned to Bellefonte from their honeymoon trip and are living with Mrs. C. D. Tanner, in Petrikin hall. Mr. Blaney was married to Miss Dorothy E. Ostermayer, at Haddonfield, N. J., on June 15th and before coming to Bellefonte spent some time at the seashore resorts. Their marriage was the culmination of a romance begun while both were students at The Pennsylvania State College.

Our good brethren of the United Evangelical church are making slow progress on the work of building the much needed addition to their church. The building committee ran up against a big proposition in digging out the hill in the rear of the church, as most of the excavation was through an unusually solid vein of limestone rock. They have now reached that point where they have begun work upon the walls for the extension and their efforts will soon begin to show more marked progress.

A youthful elopement this week was that of Miss Anne Taylor, fifteen year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Taylor, and Charles Rossman, aged seventeen years. They left Bellefonte shortly after dinner on Tuesday, Miss Taylor taking most of her clothing with her. Their going away together was not discovered until several hours later and Bellefonte police were then asked to find the young people, if possible, and bring them home. At the time this item was written, however, they had not been located.

The county commissioners have given their consent to the erection of a permanent band stand on the lawn in the rear of the jail. The stand will be located close to the railing surrounding the concrete wall in the rear of the court house which will in a measure protect the musicians from being closely surrounded by children and others who habitually get as close as they can to the band. There is no denying the fact that this will be an ideal place for the weekly band concerts. The lawn is big enough to accommodate most any size crowd and it will be away from the noise of passing automobiles, which is always very trying on the nerves of the members of the band, especially in rendering concert music.

Boys Should Register Now for Camp Kanesatake.

August 5th to 26th is the time allotted to Centre county boys for their three week's outing at Camp Kanesatake, the beautiful grounds of the Tri-County and State Sabbath School association in Huntingdon county, and inasmuch as all registrations must be made prior to July 26th all boys between the ages of ten and sixteen years who desire to go should lose no time in getting in their applications. All applications must be mailed to "S. S. Applin, Camp Kanesatake, Franklinville postoffice, Huntingdon county, Pa.," and should be accompanied by a check for $6.00, one week's board.

The camp has been wonderfully improved since last summer. Twelve cabins have been erected and wooden floors put in all tents. A big dam has been constructed which affords good bathing and swimming. Athletic fields have been laid out and the dining hall enlarged to meet all possible demands. S. S. Applin, general secretary of the Bellefonte Y. M. C. A., will be in constant charge of the camp and this is assurance that the boys will be carefully looked after.

"Beany" Bathurst Injured in Auto Accident on Railroad.

Ralph Bathurst, of Curtin, but more familiarly known as "Beany," is in the Bellefonte hospital with a fractured rib, right collar bone broken and head injuries as the result of an auto accident on the Bald Eagle Valley railroad crossing just below the Curtin station early last Friday afternoon. "Beany," who works for Major H. Laird Curtin, had taken the family Overland sedan to drive to one of the Curtin farms which necessitated his crossing the railroad. As it was not time for any regular train to pass he likely was not as careful as he should have been and did not notice a draft of four locomotives, three dead and one alive, going east until he was almost upon the track. He could not stop and failed to get across with the result that the car was struck and badly demolished. Mr. Bathurst was thrown aside with the wreckage and was picked up unconscious. He was brought to the Bellefonte hospital and for thirty-six hours his condition appeared quite serious but on Sunday he began to improve and his permanent recovery is now only a question of time.

Ordinarily when Mr. Bathurst made such trips he took with him the children of Mr. and Mrs. Curtin, but at the last moment on Friday something turned up to prevent their going, and it almost seems providential, for had they been in the car all would probably have been badly injured if not killed.

Centre County Storm Swept on Saturday Night.

The devastating and death-dealing storm which swept over the northern and eastern portion of Ohio and western Pennsylvania late Saturday afternoon extended over two-thirds of this State before it spent its violence, but fortunately was not as destructive hereabouts as further west, although considerable damage was done in the way of uprooting trees in orchards, etc.

The storm struck Bellefonte shortly before ten o'clock on Saturday night and for almost half an hour blew a terrific gale. A big shade tree in front of the George Kelly home on Spring street was blown down, falling across the street to the Methodist church. The tree, however, had been almost entirely rotted off at the ground, only a few roots holding it in place. One of the tall trees on the terrace at the Humes home on Allegheny and Howard streets was split in twain and the falling portion completely demolished a nice bed of tomatoes in the garden.

On Spring street a large branch was blown from one of the shade trees in front of the Holz property, falling across the street and landing on the big cable of the Bell Telephone company, where it lay until Monday morning. Almost every street in Bellefonte had its quota of limbs blown off the shade trees and in many instances these fell upon wires of the Keystone Power corporation and telephone companies, putting both the electric light and many telephones out of commission.

The same condition prevailed throughout Centre county, falling limbs causing the telephone companies considerable damage and annoyance. Up the Buffalo Run and Halfmoon valleys the storm was unusually severe and very few orchards escaped without having from one to four or more trees blown down, while the ground was plentifully strewn with broken off limbs. Nittany and Pennsylvanias also felt the force of the storm, but so far as can be learned at this writing no buildings were damaged.

The storm was accompanied by thunder and lightning and followed by rain which continued all night. It was the first severe thunder storm we have had this summer.

Through Nittany valley the storm was not nearly so disastrous as was the one that swept through there at noon on the Wednesday previous.

Many trees were uprooted but no great damage was done to buildings or fences. In and about Hecla park the devastation seems to have been greatest. A number of trees in the Park were blown down and in McMullen's orchard several apple trees were laid low. A beautiful locust that stood in front of McMullen's lodge was blown over, wrecking the northwest corner of the front porch.

Prospecting for Coal on Nittany Mountain.

Wouldn't it be surprising if Bellefonters should wake up one of these fine mornings and learn that a coal mine had been opened up almost at their doors? And such a thing is a possibility notwithstanding the fact that geologists have long ago declared it not even a probability of locating coal in this exact section of the State. Just at present two prospecting operations are being conducted on Nittany mountain, not far from Pleasant Gap. One by Ray Noll, on lands owned by the Nolls to the east of the mountain road, and one by Harry Breen on his farm purchased from the Harry Zimmerman estate.

The story that led up to the prospecting is as follows: Mr. Breen had water piped from a small stream on his farm to his barn for the use of his stock, but there wasn't fall enough to carry the water to a new trough he erected. So he dug a ditch to the headwaters of the stream, a good spring at the foot of the mountain, for the purpose of laying a pipe from the spring to his barn. The next morning the water was covered with an oily, green, substance which he thought might indicate oil, but upon inquiry of people who are supposed to know was informed that the indications were more favorable for coal than oil.

Consequently he sought advice of an experienced coal man who, after looking the ground over, advised him where to dig if he desired to prospect for coal. Mr. Breen now has men at work sinking a shaft and has struck a vein of slate similar to the outcroppings and coverings of all coal deposits. This slate has been compared to the slate covering the B vein in the Snow Shoe region and is pronounced identical. Of course, no coal has yet been found but Mr. Breen feels hopeful he is on the right track. In fact it was the good prospects of Mr. Breen that induced Ray Noll to start prospecting at another point on the mountain.

The jury in the condemnation proceedings brought by the Bellefonte school board against the defunct Bellefonte Gas and Steam Heating company held another session on Monday morning and heard additional testimony pro and con. After considering the testimony the viewers will make a report, but as it looks now the case will eventually get into the courts and probably result in long drawn out litigation before the issue is determined.

At their regular meeting next Monday evening the Bellefonte school board will elect teachers to fill the several vacancies yet remaining in the Bellefonte corps of teachers.
