I did not know before they left that there was any fighting at all along the road they were to take. Bill kept that from me. I suppose he knew I would have objected strenuously. It was rather foolish of them to go just now but they had planned the trip several weeks ago and didn't want to break their plans. I have had two letters from Bill, the second one written on the second day out, and they had not run into any fighting then. Two days have gone by now without any word and I am just a little bit worried. There are rumors that Chengtu will change hands, speaking in military terms, before very long. There is a great deal of lafooing being done these days, by the soldiers. It is a horrible custom, but the soldiers want men to carry things the men dare not resist, for the solweek one day on our road to school we passed thirty-six men being pulled the college. along the street by soldiers, their hands bound with ropes. On Friday morning the gates of the city were closed and we were unable to go to school. Some people said they were closed because it was feared troops were coming up from down country to storm the city; others said that the gates were closed on account of the lafooing. Many coolies were leaving the city and hiding because they did not want to be taken by the soldiers. diers locked the gates. They were opened later in the day and were open yesterday and today. ## State Forest Monuments Within Reach of Bellefonte,

Nine State forest monuments, comprising more than seven hundred acres of woodland, have been established by the State Forest Commission for the use of the public. All are located in State forests and virtually covered with a growth of heavy timber. They are all accessible and convenient for public use for motoring parties and picnics. Two of these monuments are accessible to Bellefonte and Centre county motoring parties, namely:

Bear Meadows State Forest Monument .-- In the midst of the Seven mountains, Centre county, and accessible from Bellefonte. It contains many plants seldom found in other parts of the State and is much used by botanists.

Joyce Kilmer State Forest Monument.-Located on the north slope and summit of Paddy mountain, Union county, in Bald Eagle State forest. The tract is four miles south of State highway No. 27, between Lewisburg and Bellefonte. It was named after Joyce Kilmer, who wrote the poem "Trees," and died in world war service in France. Gypsies are welcome to camp in this monument, as Kilmer had remarked if he ever owned a piece of woodland he would permit them to use it.
