WONDERS OF THE WEST.

As Seen from the Auto of the Emerick-Crawford Party.

Cheyenne, Wyo., July 28, 1924.
Editor of the "Watchman":

In a previous letter we told of our trip from Bellefonte to San Francisco and while in the latter place we took the drive around the Twin Peaks, visited Golden Gate park, the museum and art gallery, the largest any of us had ever seen, and made a trip to Lincoln park, which affords a fine view of the Golden Gate. In this park stands a flag pole which represents the western end of the Lincoln highway. And now for our trip from Frisco to Cheyenne, Wyoming.

Leaving San Francisco at noon on July 12th we turned north by the coast road through San Rafael, passing through miles of vineyards and fruit country, and through Ukiah into the big tree country. California has not advertised this section to any extent, but to us it was one of the most interesting portions of the State. The roads are principally gravel but very good. We drove through the big redwood trees for one hundred miles, and they certainly are big compared to our virgin trees in the east. They average from 20 to 28 feet in diameter and from 250 to 300 feet in height, standing so thick that in many places the road we traveled had to be literally hewn through this monarch forest, from two to three feet having been trimmed off the trees on each side of the road to make it the required width. The trees grow right down to the water's edge, while the ground is covered with beautiful ferns from five to seven feet in height. We saw miles of country which, it is alleged, has never been trampled by the foot of man. It is the most stately and beautiful natural scenery any of us had ever seen. Through the big trees we also got wonderful views of the ocean.

The writer has visited the Yosemite valley and the Wavona big trees; Sequoia park, where the largest trees in the world stand in Big valley, but they are far apart and not in a dense grove. This grove has been set aside by the State of California as a park and is visited by thousands every year. At one place along the road there is a restaurant, the entrance to which is through a large tree about 30 feet in diameter. The centre of the tree is dead and had been burned out by fire, leaving an opening eight feet wide and twenty feet high. This was utilized as the entrance to the restaurant.

As originally planned our trip would have been from Crescent City to Grant's Pass, Oregon, but various tourists informed us that some seventy miles of the mountain road were very bad and advised us to take the coast road to Bandon, Oregon, which they claimed presented scenery of wonderful beauty. And this we found to be correct, but we were compelled to travel over about sixty miles of one way road, with very few passing places. But it really seemed as if an All-seeing Providence guided tourists over this stretch as almost every time we met a car it was near a passing place. There were many places where we could look from the car into the ocean, a thousand feet below, and our road a veritable ribbon along the cliff only wide enough for one car. It was a very thrilling ride but the more timid members of the party were not exactly thrilled, so frequent stops were made to permit them to enjoy the scenery. This narrow road is probably one reason why this section of the State is not more fully advertised as a big attraction.

However, a road is being built along the coast in Oregon by the federal government and when it is completed it will no doubt get the bulk of the tourist travel. It is possible, however, to get to this park by driving north about 150 miles and then south, but we would not advise the Oregon coast road to any but those of stout hearts and steady nerves.

From Bandon, Oregon, we motored east to Roseburg, where we connected with the Pacific highway, then continued north through the fruit country to Portland. A seventy mile side trip up the Columbia river yielded some splendid views and roads. We spent the night at Hood River, which is located at Mount Hood, one of the highest mountains in the Cascades and which towers 11,225 feet above sea level. The mountain top is covered with snow all the time. Along this highway we passed a number of beautiful water falls, one of which is 770 feet high. The road passes through several tunnels and along high cliffs, but is quite wide and perfectly safe.

Returning to Portland we continued to Tacoma, Washington, and from thence went to Shelton, where we spent a day with a sister of Mr. Crawford. It was the first time they had met in nineteen years and the visit proved most enjoyable. From Shelton we drove up the west side of Puget Sound to Bremerton, where a government naval base is located. A large number of battleships were at anchor in the harbor and hundreds of sailor boys were in evidence. We crossed the Sound on a ferry, over an hour's trip, that proved a delightful diversion. This landed us in Seattle where we spent the night and following day taking in the sights of the city. Everybody praises the northwest and we prefer the southwest. However, that is natural, as we boost Bellefonte at every opportunity.

Leaving Seattle we turned our faces towards the rising sun and drove to Spokane, Washington. We found all the roads in Oregon and Washington very good, except the coast drive in Oregon. Gravel roads seem to predominate. In Washington we drove 277 miles in ten hours, all over gravel roads. The principal industries in Washington and Oregon are fruit growing and lumber. We saw a number of large saw mills and an abundance of big timber. We also drove through the famous Shookum apple orchards.

Leaving Washington we came east through the northern part of Idaho, passing through Kellogg, where the largest silver smelters in the world are located. Our trip was then across the Bitter Root mountains into Montana, continuing southwest through Anaconda and Butte, the great copper country, and into the Yellowstone park. We cannot say much for the roads of Montana. They are very poor and neither the State nor local authorities seem to be making any effort to keep them up. We spent two days and nights in the park, which is known everywhere as the most wonderful of Uncle Sam's play grounds. We saw the hot water geysers spouting steam and hot water to a height of from 125 to 175 feet, and just a short distance away are beautiful springs of cold water. There are hundreds of these hot springs and geysers.

One night in the park was spent at Old Faithful Inn and the next night at Lakeside Hotel. These hotels are models of unique and modern architecture. The lobby of Old Faithful Inn is built of logs and large enough to house an ordinary modern hotel. Its imposing grandeur is a sight worth seeing. We visited the lake and the grand canyon of the Yellowstone.

Leaving the park by the east entrance we drove past the Shoshone dam, the next to the highest in the world, and through the canyon to Cody, Wyoming. This drive is exceedingly interesting and any one visiting the park should make it a point to enter or leave by the Cody road. It is a narrow road, passing through six tunnels and along high cliffs, but perfectly safe for a careful driver. At one point on the road we met a party from California going into the park. They had a trailer hooked onto their auto and this they were unable to steer as they attempted to back down the road. This resulted in the driver emptying some of his vials of wrath at our party, even though we helped to get the trailer to the side of the road so we could pass.

Our drive led through the Big Horn valley, through irrigated farm country and over prairies to Casper, Wyoming, which is the great oil centre of the northwest, reminding one of our own Oil City and Franklin. This is near where the Teapot Dome is located, the place made famous by recent congressional investigations. At Parkerton there are hundreds of oil wells, one of which was on fire. It was a great sight. Thence over the prairies to Cheyenne (Chenenny), which is the capital of this State.

We will leave here tomorrow over the Lincoln highway for Old Bellefonte, which we expect to reach in about ten days. We all wish that right now we could have a drink from the big spring. We could easily down a gallon or two.

THE CRAWFORD-EMERICK PARTY.

(The party arrived home Tuesday evening, tired, dusty, but with a wealth of experience.—Ed.)

Buried Under a Load of Wheat.

C. M. Dale, the well known farmer and dairyman of Ferguson township, had a narrow escape from death by suffocation last Thursday. He was riding on top of a load of wheat when the wagon upset, burying him beneath an avalanche of sheaves. Several men worked like trojans for five minutes before he was uncovered. His face and head were badly bruised and his glasses smashed to atoms, but he was fortunate in escaping more serious consequences.

GROVE.—Mrs. Margaret Ellen Grove, wife of Edwin M. Grove, died quite suddenly at eight o'clock last Thursday morning while being conveyed from her home at Prospect, Pa., to the Butler hospital. She had gone to her home at Prospect just two weeks previous after a stay of six weeks or more in Bellefonte, during which period she gave birth to a little daughter. She was apparently in good health until Wednesday night when she was taken violently ill and an operation being necessary it was performed at once without removing her to the hospital. By morning her condition was so grave that it was decided to remove her to the Butler hospital, but she died on the way there.

She was a daughter of Vincent J. and Ellen Cunningham Bauer and was born in Bellefonte on November 29th, 1898, hence was 25 years, 8 months and 2 days old. She was educated in Bellefonte and prior to her marriage to Edward M. Grove taught several terms of school. The early years of her married life were spent in Bellefonte but a year or two ago they moved to New Castle where Mr. Grove is in the employ of the State Highway Department. Only recently they moved to Prospect. In addition to her husband she is survived by two daughters, Catherine Elizabeth, aged three years, and Anna Laurie, six weeks old. She also leaves her father, V. J. Bauer, at Greer, W. Va.

The remains were brought to Bellefonte on the late train on Friday evening and taken to the home of Mr. Grove's parents, Mr. and Mrs. D. A. Grove, on east Bishop street, where funeral services were held at three o'clock on Saturday afternoon by Rev. W. P. Ard, of the Lutheran church, of which she was a member, after which the remains were taken to Shiloh for burial in the cemetery there.

McCULLEY.—Mrs. Agnes A. McCulley, widow of the late James T. McCulley, passed away at her home on Bishop street at nine o'clock on Tuesday morning, of exhaustion, the result of her advanced age.

She was a daughter of Dennis and Maria Meyers McCafferty and was born on Bishop street, Bellefonte, on June 28th, 1836, hence was 88 years, 1 month and 8 days old. Her entire life was spent in Bellefonte and vicinity and she passed away on the same street on which she was born. Living to the age of over four score and eight years Mrs. McCulley saw Bellefonte grow from a hamlet into the town it is today, and being possessed of a remarkable memory she was able, up until her recent decline, to recall with great exactitude many interesting events in the early history of the town. She was a life-long member of the Catholic church and always a devout worshipper.

She was twice married, her first husband having been Lieut. John A. Bayard, a brother of the late Col. George A. Bayard, by whom she had one daughter, now Mrs. Howard Spangler, of New York city. Her second husband was James T. McCulley, who died a number of years ago but their four surviving children are James A., Joseph V., W. Frederick and Marion J. McCulley, all at home.

Funeral services will be held at the Catholic church at ten o'clock this (Friday) morning by Rev. Father Downes, after which burial will be made in the Catholic cemetery.

ADAMS.—Robert F. Adams, a well known resident of Unionville, was stricken with paralysis, on Monday of last week, while standing in front of the hotel in that place, was carried home and died within an hour.

He was a son of Nelson and Eliza Adams and was born in Northumberland county almost seventy-four years ago. He came to Centre county when a young man and for many years lived in Phillipsburg but recently bought the old Russell home at Unionville and moved there. He married Arvilla White who survives with the following children: Wilbur C. Adams, of Tyrone; Mrs. A. C. Weaver, of Erie; Harry, of Lock Haven; Edward, of Broad Top; Everett, of Pitsburg, and Mrs. J. L. Morgan, of Dudley. He also leaves one sister, Mrs. F. F. Conner, of Warriorsburg.

Funeral services were held at his late home at two o'clock last Thursday afternoon by Rev. J. F. Andreas, and burial made in the upper Unionville cemetery.

Two Chances To Get an Auto Free.

Next week every one will have a chance to get an automobile without any other cost than that of the transportation to the points where they will be given away.

There are no strings to either gift. They are not to be of the Indian kind. All you need to do is be at Hecla park on the 14th and Milesburg on the 16th and have a ticket to any of the events that will be presented and your chance will be as good as any person's.

The annual Business Men's picnic will be held at Hecla on the 14th and Wetzler's band day at Milesburg on the 16th. At each place a new Ford car is going to be given to some one and we hope it will be you.

Mrs. Paul McGarvey, one of the efficient teachers in the Bellefonte schools, is further qualifying for her work by taking the summer course at State College, specializing in modern geography, history and civics. Mrs. McGarvey goes up to the College early in the morning, attends her classes and lectures, returns early in the afternoon and devotes the balance of the day to looking after her own home.

Shuster—Green.—A wedding at Media, last Saturday, was that of Dr. William Weaver Shuster, of Bellefonte, and Miss Esther Carpenter Green, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. William L. Green, of that city, the ceremony taking place at noon in the Christ Protestant Episcopal church. Rev. H. W. Fulmeier, of South Dakota, officiated and the attendants were the bride's sister, Miss Anne S. Green, as maid of honor, and Homer Heim, of Philadelphia, best man. Henry H. Lee, of Moylan, and S. S. Riddle, of Harrisburg, officiated as ushers.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of white georgette and lace, with a tulle veil caught with orange blossoms, and carried a bouquet of brides roses, lilies of the valley and orchids. The maid of honor wore a dress of powder blue georgette, a picture hat and carried Ophelia roses and delphinium. Richard Crockford played the wedding march. A wedding breakfast was served at the home of the brides brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Lee, at Moylan, and later Dr. and Mrs. Shuster left on a wedding trip through the Middle west.

The bride, who is a graduate of the Media High school and Swarthmore College, has for several years been connected with the State Children's Aid society. Dr. Shuster is a graduate of Lafayette College and prior to enlisting for service in the world war served as supervisor of the Media division of the Pennsylvania railroad. He served over seas and for sixteen months was a first lieutenant in the aviation corps. He came to Bellefonte almost two years ago and is now engaged in practicing his profession as a chiropractor. At the conclusion of their wedding trip Dr. and Mrs. Shuster will go to housekeeping in the McClure apartments on Bishop street.

Painfully Injured in Auto Accident.

Bruce Krumrine, wife and baby and two sons of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Neal were painfully injured in an auto accident near the William G. Furst farm on the Buffalo Run road, late last Friday night. The Krumrines live on the Frank Clemson farm and that evening the five people above mentioned and Mrs. Robert Neal had taken a run to Stormstown in Mr. Krumrine's Ford car. When nearing the Furst farm Mr. Krumrine experienced trouble with the steering gear and becoming alarmed Mrs. Neal had Mr. Krumrine stop the car and she got out. The latter then started the car and as he approached the culvert in the road near the Furst place the gear again stuck and he gave it a quick turn which threw it entirely over, and rendered the car unmanageable and it struck the end of the culvert, turned over and throwing the occupants out onto the hard road.

Mr. Krumrine suffered painful contusions of the right side of the face, his right arm and shoulder; Mrs. Krumrine's face was cut, her jawbone broken and body badly bruised while one of the Neal boys suffered a badly injured leg.

Do You Want to Get Into Welfare Work?

A three month's probation course in Social Case work will be given by the Associated Charities of Pittsburgh, this fall, beginning October first. The course is open to college graduates between the ages of 21 and 32 who possess the necessary qualifications for the work.

The adjustment of family difficulties whether they arise through unemployment, illness, domestic infelicity, physical or mental handicaps, calls for highly trained sympathetic workers of whom there are only too few. The field is a remarkably interesting one and there are boundless opportunities for variety of experience. The course is free and a limited number of working scholarships are available.

For further information address Miss Mary J. R. Condon, director of training, Associated Charities, 535 Fulton Building, Pittsburgh, Pa.

Railroad Station Destroyed by Fire.

The station building at Beech Creek, on the Bald Eagle Valley railroad, was totally destroyed by fire last Friday night, together with all its contents. D. A. Barlett, of Bellefonte, is the agent at Beech Creek, but he was in Bellefonte at the time the fire occurred, having come up on the afternoon train to remain over Sunday. The flames were discovered about eleven o'clock and had already gained such headway that nothing could be done to save the building. It is not known at this writing how the fire originated but P. R. R. company officials will make an investigation to determine the cause, if possible. No decision has been announced as yet as to whether the station will be rebuilt.

Gray's Church Sunday School Picnic Tomorrow.

The Sunday school of Gray's church in Patton township, will hold an old-fashioned basket picnic tomorrow in Hartsock's grove, just west of Paradise.

It will be more or less a community affair and every one is invited. There will be no refreshment stands, no lolly-pops and flap-doodles for sale. Just a fine old-fashioned picnic where the eats are spread on the ground and every body has a good time.

For Sale.—"New Florence" oil stove, three burner. Practically good as new. $10.—W. C. Cassidy, E. Bishop St. United phone.

Bellefonte's Winning Streak Continues

Bellefonte's baseball team has not yet met its Waterloo, but continues its winning streak by playing good, fast ball. Last Thursday's rain merely delayed the trouncing Millheim got on Tuesday evening of this week when Bellefonte won 2 to 1. State College defeated Centre Hall on Thursday by the score of 8 to 2 and on Saturday the Centre Hall fans went down before Bellefonte's ponderous batting by the score of 10 to 8. State and Millheim broke even in a double-header on Saturday, State winning the first game 10 to 2 and Millheim the second 1 to 0.

For Bellefonte Montgomery registered his first victory on Saturday. He went to Lose's rescue in the first inning, and although he was touched for eleven safeties during the remainder of the game, most of them came after the side would have been retired but for various errors of omission and commission by his team-mates. Lose was greeted by a heavy bombardment of Centre Hall base hits in the first. His control was faulty, causing him to put too many through the middle. The boys from the other side of the mountain certainly can hit a fast one in the groove.

Bill Kline and Sweng Smith shared batting honors for the locals with three hits each. By the way, Kline shows up as one of the most improved players in the league this year. His work in the field and at bat has been top notch. He is hitting .310 and fielding 1000 so far.

Here's hoping Henny will have many more days like Saturday. For the first time this year he had his old-time curves and control, and when he is right he's hard to beat. Following is the standing of the teams:

	W.	L.	P. C.
Bellefonte	17	3	.850
Millheim	11	10	.523
Centre Hall	7	13	.350
State College	6	15	.286

Tomorrow Bellefonte will play at Millheim and State at Centre Hall, while next Thursday's games will both be played at the Business Men's picnic, State and Millheim in the forenoon and Bellefonte and Centre Hall in the afternoon. Fans from every town should go to Hecla park to see these games.

Bald Eagle Creek Closed to Fish Baskets and Racks.

The State Department of Fisheries has closed Bald Eagle creek for its entire length to fish baskets and racks to make an experiment with the stream. An appeal to close a portion of the stream in the vicinity of the mouth of Fishing creek to baskets and racks had been made to the department by the Clinton county Fish and Game Association, the members of which feared that game fish would be caught and destroyed in the baskets.

The department recognized in the appeal an opportunity to experiment in stocking with different kinds of suitable species of fish and determined to close its use entirely to all except hook and pole fishing. Perch and pike are two of the species of fish to be introduced into the waters of the Bald Eagle, and experienced fishermen believe the stream well adapted to these fish.

Complaint is being made by residents in the neighborhood of Cherry alley of garbage being thrown into the alley. The person or persons taking this means of disposing of garbage, is not only risking trouble with the borough authorities, but such actions being contrary to all laws of public health, very severe punishment may fall to their lot.

The Ladies Aid society of the Pleasant Gap Methodist church will hold a festival in Noll's grove, at that place, tomorrow evening. All the seasonable delicacies will be on sale while the Milesburg orchestra will be there to play for the enjoyment of those who attend.

On Wednesday morning Mrs. William Hart, of north Spring street, tripped on a shaker that had been left hanging on the grate bar of the kitchen range and fell to the floor, sustaining injuries to her face and head.

Only one more month until the opening of the public schools, and it seems only a short time since school and college commencements were almost a daily program.

Members of the A. M. E. church and Sunday school picnicked at Hecla park yesterday.

Ladies Night Drew Large Crowd.

The weekly Kiwanian luncheon on Tuesday was changed to an evening dinner at the Brockerhoff house, owing to its being ladies night, and this probably accounts for the large crowd present. W. Harrison Walker Esq., was chairman of the Kiwanian committee which made the arrangements, and they (the arrangements) were perfect in every detail. The dinner was served at 6:30 and it was past nine o'clock when the assemblage adjourned with the singing of "The Star Spangled Banner."

Between the dinner courses, there was music, speeches and other entertainment. Kiwanian Tommie Richardson, of Williamsport, furnished an amusing monologue and Cal Bathurst and Nat Gaunt, of Lock Haven, did some clever stunts. A witty toast to the ladies was proposed by Kiwanian Sloop and Mrs. Olaf Risen sang several Norwegian songs in a very pleasing soprano voice.

Attendance prizes given by Charles Schlow included a parasol and box of handkerchiefs, the former being won by Mrs. James Harter, and the latter by James K. Barnhart. Each lady in attendance was presented with a lovely bouquet of sweet peas through the courtesy of Mrs. J. O. Stutsman, of Rockview.

Band Concerts or Vaudeville?

It might have been the excessive heat, it might have been the repertorial liver, it might have been that it was more of an attempt at vaudeville than any previous performance, but certainly the Wednesday evening band concert sent us home with the feeling that we'd been neither entertained nor amused.

The band, as usual, executed well, but the program was a monotonous sequence of selections all in practically the same tempo. Not a number except the last calculated to put life into anything and it was so repressed as to leave the impression that the band has lost all its old time reputation for putting some dash into the rendition of a march or gallop.

The patter skit might have been very clever in its dialogue but as the young gentlemen who presented it talked to one another and not to their audience what they said was missed entirely by every one further than twenty feet from the stand.

There was one performer in the string quintet who deserves special mention. We refer to the young man who had sense enough to shout "Stop!" to his companions when they all started on different keys and beats.
