

"My China Doll" Was a Pleasing Show.

It is not often, these days, that we get a musical show that has either continuity or music. "My China Doll," as produced at the Moose Temple theatre Wednesday night, had both. It had a theme to hang its lyrics to and principals who could interpret them.

"My China Doll," in a less pretentious way, is somewhat after Fred Stone's "Jack-o-Lantern" in conception and was staged wonderfully well for a show doing "the sticks."

Outstanding in the cast was Barbara Bronell, a piquant little person, who did so much in action and dancing that we certainly had no right to expect much in her voice, though it was perfect for her speaking parts. William F. Murphy and Tom Crowley supplied the comedy and both were clever; the former registering in the best musical number of the show in his trio with "the Rose" and "the Daffodil." Roy Peck, as "Sing Song" gave a lot of character action to the part. Betty Montgomery evidently is carried merely for her good voice, but she combines with it the ability to lend gracefulness to the action as well.

Brown and Toner have been giving Bellefonte more really good shows than we have seen here in one season for years. With "the Bat," "the Cat and the Canary," "Meet the Wife," "Dante" and "My China Doll" already seen there will have to come some very exceptional offerings if these are to be surpassed.

Her Conscience Pricked Her.

A report is current that during the week a certain merchant in Bellefonte received an anonymous letter enclosing ten cents and with it a note in a woman's handwriting in which she said:

"A number of years ago I was in there and picked up a piece of black ribbon one inch wide, and it measured not more than twelve inches in length, but I didn't pay for it. Every time I pray that piece of ribbon comes up before me. So here's ten cents. I know it wasn't worth more than 25 cents a yard. There's no need for my name. God knows me now, and I want to enjoy Thanksgiving."

Meyers—Stere.—Fred E. Meyers and Miss Mary Stere, both of Bellefonte, were married at the parsonage of the Baptist church in Hollidaysburg, at noon last Saturday, by the pastor, Rev. J. S. Bromley. They will make their home in Bellefonte following a brief wedding trip.

Death of Mrs. Harding.

Marion, Ohio, Nov. 25.—Florence Kling Harding, widow of Warren G. Harding, twenty-ninth Chief Executive of the United States, died here early last Friday.

The end came at 8:55 a. m. at the White Oaks sanatorium of Dr. Carl W. Sawyer, where she had been fighting for life for the last few weeks.

Except for a short interval of residence in Washington, Mrs. Harding has lived at the White Oaks Farm since the death of President Harding in August, 1923. She went there primarily to be under the care of the late Brigadier General Charles E. Sawyer, who had been personal physician to her husband while he was Chief Executive, and who had been her physician for twenty years.

She became ill shortly after the death of Dr. Sawyer early this fall, which it was believed, brought a relapse in her condition. Burial was made in the Marion cemetery on Monday.

Gems of Fabulous Value

One of the most wonderful, privately owned collection of gems in the world, is the property of Mr. Abdul Cafoor, an Indian gem collector. The collection embraces two immense sapphires, one priced at $80,000, a bag of 8,000 pearls, an aquamarine as large as an apple, a $50,000 cat's-eye set in diamonds, a string of pearls which took 30 years to complete, and sapphires the size of plums! This is not an inventory of the treasures in Aladdin's cave, but merely an accurate description of a few of the jewels belonging to this noted collector. The queen of Rumania and the king and queen of Norway are among the few who have seen the collection, which is guarded night and day.

Long Time in Space

A number of vicious mules had just arrived at the camp and a new recruit made the common mistake of approaching too near to the business end of one of them. His comrades caught him on the rebound, placed him on a stretcher and started off for the hospital.

On the way the invalid regained consciousness, gazed at the blue sky overhead, experienced the swaying motion as he was being carried along, and shakily lowered his hands over the sides, only to feel space.

"My land," he groaned, "I ain't hit the ground yet!"

Eating From Cans

Due to the tremendous demand for goods packed so that they could be easily shipped, the World War with its huge orders for corned wattle and many other goods was the greatest impetus the canning industry has had since its introduction in America in 1815.

In 1914 the value of all canned food products here was placed at $23,000,000. Today it is well above the $600,000,000 mark. Peaches are said to be the most popular of canned fruits and salmon leads among the sea foods.—Popular Mechanics Magazine.
