How Apple Growing Can be Made Profitable.

A large number of Centre county farmers have old orchards that, by using a little care, could be made profitable; also a number of farmers are planning new orchards, according to R. C. Blaney, county extension association representative.

Choosing the right varieties is an important question to be considered, and especially so to those planning to go into the business. Fruit growing, unlike other forms of agriculture, is a permanent industry. If one raises hay and cabbage, and they are not paying, he can change his crop to corn or wheat in a year's time, but the fruit tree is planted for a life-time, and mistakes made in the beginning may hely record to the pervisors of the Board of Road Supervisors of Ferguson township, mean the difference between success and failure 15 to 20 years later, states R. S. Snyder, fruit extension specialist at The Pennsylvania State

"Hundreds of varieties of pome and drupe fruits have been described in fruit publications," he says. "However, only a few are of commercial importance today. New and better kinds may be developed, but the grower should limit the number of varieties he uses, and allow others to experiment with new and doubtful ones.' In every region four to six well known varieties are most profitable, and it is best to select three or four from this list. New and doubtful varieties should be planted in limited quantities. The problem today is to select a suitable variety that will covere a constant of the problem. er a very wide range of conditions, namely: Color, market, size, flavor, keeping and shipping, Snyder points out. Some soils will produce a better type of Baldwin apples than others, type of Baldwin apples than others, and the same is true of other varieties. Every fruit grower should thoroughly analyze all his conditions and then select his varieties. The following apples recommended by the Pennsylvania State Horticultural Association will applied the control of the same transfer. tion will answer the question for Pennsylvania growers.

There are five leading varieties, named in order of importance, for wholesale or car-lot plantings in each region. They are: Stayman, York, Grimes, Jonathan and Rome in the southern region (Adams and adjoining counties); Styman, Smokehouse, Grimes, Rome and Delicious in the southeastern region (east of York city and south of North Mountain); Baldwin, Northern Spy, Stayman, Rome and McIntosh in the northwestern region (east of Sunbury and Troy); Baldwin, Northern Spy, Rome and Stayman and Stark in the western region (west of Greensburg, Kit-tanning and Corry); and Stayman, York, Rome, Delicious and Jonathan in the central region (for northern half, use varieties of the northwestern Leading varieties recommended by Snyder for local market planting, arranged in order of season of marketing are: Southern region, Summer Rambo, Grimes, Jonathan, Delicious, Rome and Stayman; southeastern regions, Smokehouse, Grimes, Jonathan, Delicious, Rome and Stayman; northeastern region, Baldwin, Northern Spy. Rome and Stayman; western region, Wealthy, Baldwin, Rome and Stayman; and central region, Jonathan, Delicious, Northern Spy, Rome and Stayman.

Snyder also lists for local market planting a group of secondary varieties. For the southern region in the order of marketing they are: Yellow Transparent, Wealthy and Smokehouse; southeastern region, Yellow Transparent, Williams, Summer Rambo, Wealthy and Stark; northwestern, Wealthy, Delicious, Rhode Island Greening and Stark; western region, Jonathan, Delicious, Wagener and Northern Spy; and central region, Baldwin.

This Chart Shows Why your Electric Light Bills are Higher in Some Months than in Others

In winter you depend upon artificial lighting nearly three times as many hours in each 24 as in summer.

In June the average use of electric light, in a residence, is 2 hours and 35 minutes a day.

In December the average use of electric light, in a residence, is 6 hours and 50 minutes a day.

This is perfectly natural. As the summer days lengthen, the "electric light hours" become shorter and as the winter days become shorter the "electric light hours" grow longr.

There are other reasons, too, why your bills in the fall and winter are larger than in the spring and summer, good reasons that show it is simply the result of the season's changes; your more extensive use of electric light, and not the fault of the electric light company

When summer is over, vacations are over. Everybody is home again; more rooms are occupied; more light is needed.

Long evenings-late bed-times. The outside cold keeps us indoors. The soft, cozy glow of electric light makes reading a pleasure. The newspapers, magazines, study, or a good book, music, and games pass the evening quickly. It is bed time before one knows it.

More entertaining is done-parties at home for the grown-ups and little folks. Sometimes the house fairly radiates with the good cheer of electric light.

Think this over carefully and you will see why your winter electric light bills can reasonably triple those of Summer.
