The Farmers of the United States are not yot out of the woods, but the outlook of the coming year is favorable

A year ago wheat for May delivery was selling at $1.07. It is now $1.83. Corn was selling at 73c. It is now $1.33. Rye and oats are both twice the price of a year ago.

The live stock industry depressed, but the outlook for improvement is good.

The farmers form the largest consuming class, and prosperity for them means good times for all.
