Mr. and Mrs. Grover C. Corl are mourning the death of their seven week's old daughter, Etta Viola, who died on Tuesday of last week, of pneumonia. Burial was made on Thursday.
Mrs. Caroline Bailey, wife of Warren Bailey, died at her home in Springfield, on January 12th, as the result of a stroke of paralysis. She was a native of Lewistown, Pa., and the remains were taken to that place for burial last Friday.
Last Friday night fire destroyed the hog pen, wagon shed and corn crib on the W. H. Goss farm, tenanted by F. W. Corl. Forty hogs and pigs were in the pen, two brood sows and seven pigs being burned to death. In the wagon shed a corn planter, chop mill and sleigh went up in smoke and about 300 bushels of corn on ear were also destroyed. The State College fire company responded to a call for help and by the use of chemicals saved the house and barn. The loss is partially covered with insurance.

Boalsburg lodge No. 896 I. O. O. F., celebrated the fiftieth anniversary of its institution last Thursday evening with a big banquet. Over two hundred members and guests were present. Prof. Whitehead officiated as toastmaster and a number of very interesting responses were made. Mr. Smith told of the organization of the lodge fifty years ago by Capt. W. H. Fry, and the only one of the original charter members present was D. W. Meyers. Mrs. E. W. Hess presided at the piano and led the music. All in all it was a very successful affair.
