

Two Very Good Bouts at Wednesday Nights' Exhibition.

The second boxing exhibition staged by the Bellefonte Amusement association, at the Moose Temple theatre, Wednesday, drew a small crowd and turned out to be a much more interesting contest than the first.

The opener was a four round bout between K. O. Duncan, of Steelton, and Young McGee, of Sharon, bantamweights. The boys gave a very fair account of themselves and they went the limit of rounds; Duncan having been given the decision on aggressiveness.

The second bout between Young McCoy, of Sunbury, and Sol Blum, of Lewistown, started off as though it might result in something, but lasted less than a half minute into the second when Blum caught McCoy with a straight right to the jaw and he went down for the count. He was still on the floor when the contestants for the third bout appeared at the ringside.

The third bout was scheduled for six rounds between Roy Davis, of Sunbury, and Battling Wilson, of Johnstown. Neither one of the boys showed much science but they were willing to fight and the first had scarcely gone a minute until Wilson caught Davis with a left swing and sent him to the floor for the count of three. He was groggy when he got up and rushed in to a clinch to save himself until he could clear up. From that to the bell they fought viciously. The second round had gone scarcely a minute when Wilson landed a right and left to the head that had Davis ripe for a K. O. but he fell into a clinch and was fouled by Wilson. The decision was given to Davis on the foul.

The windup was between Kid Lavang, of Sunbury, and Fighting Lawson, of Philadelphia. It was scheduled for eight rounds and went the limit with Lavang always in the lead. He had Lawson very groggy at the bell on the first and the bell on the eighth undoubtedly saved him from a knock out. Lavang is really the only fighter who showed any class in the entire contest. He seemed almost as fresh at the finish as at the start and could probably have finished his man easily had it not been for Lawson's peculiar style; keeping his head so low that there was little chance to get to his jaw. Lawson took considerable punishment gamely, however.

The battle-royal, with Fred Johnson, Leaman Lyons, Henry Gross and Harry Turney, all blindfolded, was the real fun card. The boys were given gloves for both hands this time and "haymakers" were flying in all directions. Any one of them would have sent all the real fighters down for the count at the same time, but luckily none landed. It was a great bout.

Notable Violinist to Play in Bellefonte

His Bellefonte engagement is for one night only at the Moose Temple theatre. Seats will be $1.00.

CENTRE HALL.

Great was the excitement caused by Sunday's cyclone in Pennsylvania. The roads were filled with cars going to and from the various wrecked buildings.

The entire community was greatly shocked on Monday afternoon, when it was made known that "Billy" Smith had suddenly dropped over dead in the yard.

On Monday Mr. B. D. Brislin returned from Hartford, Conn., where he spent Easter with his daughters, Mrs. Beulah Bohn and Mrs. Roxanna Robertson.

Mrs. J. F. Kramer, who had been at the home of her brother, Reuben Garis, near Greensburg, returned to her home on Friday, bringing her year old nephew with her.

J. D. Meyer, of Tyrone, accompanied by his mother and cousin, Mrs. Jenkins, made a trip to Lewistown on Tuesday, to take Mrs. Jenkins' mother, Mrs. Amanda Lukenbach, to her daughter's home. On their return they stopped in Centre Hall for a short time.

Ground Beautifying.

Hardy plantings give permanent effects, and will grow more beautiful each season. Some bedding plants and annuals may be used also with effect, but where we are planting our own grounds for our home for an indefinite period we can get far better results if we use mostly hardy trees, shrubs and plants for our general planting. We need not plant all at once, but we can plan for the whole and work to our plan as we may. It takes years to obtain the full effect of some kinds of plants and these should be planted first, but we can use temporary plantings to help out in the mean time. There are a good many fine plants that can be made very effective on short notice, and even a good showing may be made with annuals from seeds in one summer. These quick effects are especially valuable for those occupying their homes but temporarily.—Successful Farming.

The Romance of Gingham

Some fabrics come and go. But gingham, having twined itself about our hearts long, long ago, remains supreme, the fabric of a dozen uses. It is as old as we are yet as young, in its gay new 1925 designs, as the tiny child its plaided perkiness adorns. This is Gingham Week—when prices are lowest and assortments largest.

At kitchen windows let Gingham curtains flutter gayly in the summer breeze, shyly beckoning with its blue checks the first golden patches of summer sunlight.

And on your children Gingham frocks and suits look always neat and trim. You may choose them in patterns that dance and sing almost like the little folks decked in them.

For slip covers on porch and bedroom furniture use Gingham. Its crisp folds and sunny colors will lend a bit more cheer even to sunny days.
