

PENNSYLVANIA HUNTING ACCIDENTS MUCH LOWER DURING SEASON OF 1924.

During the 1924 hunting season, the Board of Game Commissioners made a greater effort to collect more complete data regarding hunting accidents than has heretofore been attempted. Cards containing the detailed information desired were furnished to each district game protector with instructions to report all hunting accidents in his district. In addition to these cards, information has been secured from newspaper clippings.

A total of 38 fatal and 131 non-fatal accidents were reported for the entire State during the 1924 season, as against 55 fatal and 106 non-fatal accidents during the 1923 season. One hunter was killed in mistake for a ground hog and one in mistake for a deer. One person was injured in mistake for a ground hog, one mistaken for a wild turkey and one for a rabbit. All five of those shootings were absolutely unnecessary and avoidable. Prosecutions will be pushed to a conclusion as rapidly as possible.

In spite of a State-wide educational campaign against carelessness with firearms waged by the Board of Game Commissioners for a number of years, forty per cent. of the hunting accidents which occurred last year were self-inflicted. It would be difficult to determine just how many of the remaining accidents were the result of carelessness, but it is a safe bet that a very large majority of them were avoidable.

The following table shows the different classes into which the hunting accidents last season are divided, the kind of firearms used and the locations where such accidents occurred.

Sportsmen's organizations are urged to give these figures the widest possible publicity and through their organizations start an active educational campaign against carelessness to reduce injuries and loss of life by at least fifty per cent. this coming fall. Now is the time to plan your campaign!

The American pig crop is a short one this year, according to figures just received by county agent R. C. Blaney, on a pig survey run by the United States Department of Agriculture. They show a decrease from 28 per cent. of the number of sows farrowed last fall in the whole county as compared with 1923.

Sows bred to farrow this spring were 94 per cent. of the number that actually farrowed in the spring of 1924. Hog production, according to this same report, promises to be smaller this year than in any year of the last ten.

With conditions of the hog industry such as those quoted, it will be particularly timely and profitable to save a good sized litter. The following five points in the care and management of the sow and her litter are very important. Clean out the farrowing pen. Wash pen thoroughly with boiling water and lye and put in fresh bedding. Wash the sow, particularly her udder, with warm water and soap. Carry (do not drive) pigs to fresh pasture when two weeks of age. Have fences tight so that pigs cannot get back to old hog lots.

Such a system of sanitation is very valuable was brought out in the results of a questionnaire sent to over a thousand farmers in one of the corn belt States last year. Where this system was followed an average of eight pigs per litter were raised. Where it was not followed, an average of less than five pigs per litter raised. This indicates that one or two hours spent in cleaning the pen, washing the sow and caring for the litter in a sanitary manner was worth about three and a half pigs. At the present price of grain each pig farrowed is worth five dollars to the owner. Two hours spent in cleaning up is therefore worth $15.00 to the owner.

TWENTY YEARS ADDED TO SPAN OF LIFE IN PAST EIGHTY YEARS.

Twenty years have been added to the span of human life during the last eighty years and the end is not yet. One hundred years from now man may confidently expect to live to the ripe age of 150 years and a few centuries later he may even hope, with some chance of his hope materializing, to be immortal.

This is a rosy picture of the future painted by Sir Ronald Ross, famous British scientist, who claims that the length of human life has been increased by 50 per cent. during the last century, largely by medical science in the treatment and prevention of disease.

"Eighty years ago," according to Sir Ronald, "the average London man lived 34 years and 7 months and the average London woman lived 38 years and 4 months.

"Today the average length of life of the London man is 53 years and 9 months and of the London woman 59 years. These are the figures I have gleaned from the official statistics.

"That miraculous progress will not stop. A great scientist at the Pasteur Institute in Paris has said that in 100 years' time man should live to the age of 150. Why not?

"A famous American doctor has suggested to me that we should all be immortal. Who can tell what scientific investigation may bring? No one can say how long we may live when we are free from the ravages of germs.

Sir Ronald has dedicated his life to that work, the freeing of humanity from the ravages of germs. The Ross Institute at Putney, named after him, and designed to rival the Pasteur Institute in Paris, has just begun work. The work of the institute will be confined to research, originally with tropical and other diseases; but the subjects of research will not be limited.

"Our investigations must be speeded up," says Sir Ronald. "Our country must give more to medical research. At present we are spending only about $900,000 a year, which is a penny per head of the population, on the investigation of diseases which are killing millions of people.

"We should spend at least $5,000,000—that is—only six pence a head—every year—the cost, say, of a couple glasses of beer. If a penny per head can add twenty years to life, what could six pence do? The prospect is boundless.

"We are still baffled by many diseases. We have not discovered the germs which cause smallpox, measles, scarlet fever, and a number of tropical diseases. We have not solved the cancer problem. Even the common cold is a mystery.

"Science, if given a chance, will conquer these ills."

A father took his son of four years to the incubator in the cellar to see the eggs hatch.

Said dad impressively: "Isn't it queer how the little chicks get out of the shell?"

"Huh," replied the youngster, "What gets me is how they get in there."

Department of Forests to Co-operate With Railroad for Safety.

An experiment to have trees assist in preventing forest fires while at the same time add beauty and furnish timber, is to be tried in Tioga county. Co-operating with the New York Central Railroad, the Department of Forests and Waters is to plant 9,600 pine trees at the famous Johnson bend, in Pine Creek Gorge.

Due to the heavy grade at this curve, it is a constant danger point, one which both the railroad and the department wish to eliminate.

In foreign countries, pines are planted along the railroads, the result being that in a few years the dense screen afforded by the trees catches escaping sparks which slowly sift to the ground, safe, thus causing no fire.

This is the first experiment of this kind known to be tried in this country and it is hoped every one will try to give this area a little extra care for a few years.
