Of course quite a crowd was on the street at the time and not anxious for so much company the man made haste to turn his car and back-track the way he

Blair county authorities knew the would-be robber was headed that way and had telephoned the number of the tags on the automobile and when the man turned around at Pine Grove Mills the car was promptly identified by the tags. Royal Kline, one of the expert marksmen of the village, ran into his home and grabbed his rifle, and returning to the highway fired several shots after the fleeing car, puncturing one tire. Big Membership Drive for Bellefonte MANY CASES CLEARED Y. M. C. A. Next Week.

The Bellefonte Y will put on its big membership drive next week. It will start early Monday morning and close Thursday night. The slogan will be '500 in 4 days," and the men who are backing the drive are hoping the limit will be easily reached. To make it a success, however, will mean a hearty response from the people of the town -boys, young men, men not so young, and women regardless of age.

The number seems almost too low when the culture, refinement and education of the people of Bellefonte eration. It would be only natural for every one to be associated with such an organization as the Y.

Bellefonte has never fallen down on contributing liberally to every worthy cause, and the local Y is all of that. It promotes a four-sided programphysical, mental, moral and socialin an endeavor to develop 100 per cent. men, women, boys and girls.

Today some of the greatest men in the United States are standing behind the Y as they have never done before. because they have learned of the wonderful work the association is doing.

The Kiwanis club of Bellefonte, is standing behind the Bellefonte Y in an effort to put the drive over, and they are determined to make the "500 Harry McCloskey. in 4 days" a reality. Will you do your part by becoming a member?

A. W. Kyler, of Port Matilda, had a thrilling experience and miraculous escape from death last Thursday highway job in that locality and was driving to work in an old Ford car. As the hour was quite early he did not anticipate any trains abroad on the Bald Eagle Valley railroad but as he got on the crossing the locomotive of an extra train, B. W. Naturally every person who saw the accident expected that Kyler had been killed outright, but when the train stopped he crawled from the wreckage of his own car unhurt with the exception of a few slight cuts and bruises. The old Ford, however, was ruined beyond redemption.

-Mrs. John Lemon, of Gatesburg, was in Bellefonte on Wednesday. It was the first opportunity we have had of knowing the wife of our departed friend, the Captain, and it revealed a contributory cause to the habitual geniality that characterized him. No man could have lived as long as Mr. Lemon did with his good wife without having had added to his own pleasing nature some of hers. She was here with a little family party comprising her son, C. B. Lemon and his wife, from Great Lakes, Illinois, and her daughter-in-law, Mrs. Clarence Lemon, of State College. Mr. Lemon is in the naval service and stationed at Great Lakes. Having a thirty day leave he and his wife motored in to Centre county for a nice long visit with his mother and that they are all enjoying it was very evident when the family party honored this office with a call Wednesday morning.

-A party of friends furnished the transportation and the opportunity for Walter Gherrity to make one of his periodical visits to Bellefonte on Tuesday. We don't recall just how many years ago it was that Walter, over night, changed his status as one of the best known and popular young men of Bellefonte to that bordering on a recluse. He couldn't have more effectually effaced himself had he taken orders and entered a monastery. As assistant to the late William H. Wilkinson, in China Hall, then Bellefonte's most pretentious store of its kind, Walter was a star. His uncle Pat-grand old soul that he was- lived alone in the heart of the Seven mountains. As we have said, one day Walter was in the midst of everything, social, political and sporting that went on in Bellefonte, the next he had, without cause or necessity taken up his abode with his uncle in the solitary fastness of a mountain retreat that was then as far removed from the pleasures that had interested Walter as the poles are apart. Unusual as it was who is there to say that the change was not for the better? Occasionally now Walter comes back to visit the scenes and friends of his other life. He comes with a clear sparkle in his eyes, a physique showing every evidence of wholesome life and an expression void of a semblance of the worry and welter that is all too evident in that of most of us who wonder why he traded such a life as we lead for one in God's clean, impressive solitude?
