The remains of I. Newton Gordon, which have been in a receiving vault in New York city since his death there on May 10th, were brought to Bellefonte last Friday and buried in the family lot in the Union cemetery. They were accompanied here by the deceased's nephew, Dr. John Gordon, a son of the late Hon. Cyrus Gordon, of Clearfield.

The new drinking fountain has been put in place out at the big spring and the wire fence completed on the north, west and south sides. All that now remains to be done is the erection of the iron fence on top of the stone wall in front, the installation of the five lights on the stone pillars and the leveling up and sowing to grass of the new plot south of the spring.

Neither the Bellefonte Academy nor the Bellefonte High school played football last week. Each one cancelled their game for good and sufficient reasons, the Academy because Georgetown University insisted on dictating the appointment of officials, while the High school refused to play Yeagertown because its team was stuffed with semi-professional players.

Football fans in Bellefonte and Centre county who may be itching to see a good game tomorrow cannot do better than motor to Altoona and take in the contest between the Bellefonte Academy and Pitt Freshmen, which will be played on the cricket field. Game will be called at two o'clock which will afford ample time to return home in time for the evening meal. This is one of the best games on the Academy's schedule and will be well worth going to Altoona to see.

We are now convinced that the old-time sayings have no standing in fact and there is no reliance to be placed on the weather prophets who predict a long, hard winter because of the long hair on a toad or some other animal. According to one of the old saws the weather of the last Friday in the month governs that of the ensuing month. On the last Friday in October it snowed from early morning to night and almost half of November has passed and we haven't had a bit of snow since, we are thankful to say.

It is estimated that twenty thousand people attended the Penn State-Notre Dame football game, at State College, last Saturday, notwithstanding the drizzling rain that fell during the greater part of the contest. And while they saw a battle royal the game ended in a scoreless tie, as neither team was able to cross the other's goal line. Opinions differ as to what the result would have been on a dry field and sunny day, but as that is only conjecture, it is very evident that the teams were pretty evenly matched.

RECEIVER OR RECEIVERS NOT YET APPOINTED FOR CENTRE COUNTY BANK.

Court Gets Petitions and Hears Argument on Appointment of Receivers for Centre County Bank.

A special session of court was held on Wednesday morning in connection with the appointment of a receiver or receivers for the Centre County bank. N. B. Spangler representing the creditor's committee and James C. Furst attorney of record in the equity proceedings, stated to the court that since the petition for the appointment of a receiver was presented to the court on October 30th, a petition signed by twenty-six depositors had been filed requesting the court to appoint three receivers instead of one. The attorneys also presented a petition signed by some six or seven names attached to the aforementioned petition in which they asked that their names be stricken off the first document and they be permitted to join in the petition for the appointment of but one receiver. Another petition signed by 158 depositors was presented in which the court was asked to appoint but one receiver.

Mr. Spangler stated that the one argument used against the appointment of Ivan Walker alone as receiver was that, being a trustee for the John M. Shugert and Mary M. Harris estates he would naturally be interested in taking care of their individual creditors first, but that the story had no foundation in fact. That there would be at least $20,000 left from the Shugert estate to go to the bank's creditors after all individual claims are adjudicated. He further protested against the appointment of three receivers because it would in his opinion entail greater expense and possibly cause more turmoil and further delay in the settlement of the bank's affairs.

Ex-Judge Ellis L. Orvis, who represented the petitioners for the appointment of three receivers, stated to the court that he wanted it distinctly understood that neither he nor any of the depositors who signed the petition he represented had any personal feeling against Mr. Walker. It was sincerely their belief that three entirely disinterested men, or women if the court felt disposed to appoint them, would be able to effect a settlement of the bank's affairs more expeditiously and with less friction than one man, and especially Mr. Walker, who is trustee for the two bankrupt estates. In answer to Mr. Spangler's assertion that the John M. Shugert estate would net about $20,000 for the bank's creditors he stated that he was informed that in the neighborhood of $30,000 worth of individual claims had already been filed and that other claims are likely to come in.

In further support of the appointment of Mr. Walker Mr. Spangler stated that he had so far collected $20,000 worth of accounts that had really been outlawed by the statute of limitation; had gathered together $62,000 of the bank's assets and had paid off some of the bank's obligations to other banks and gathered in liquid securities which have been paying interest right along. Judge Orvis stated that if Mr. Walker had been able to collect $20,000 worth of outlawed paper that three receivers might have done much better.

After all the attorneys had had their say the court took all the papers and will announce his decision later.

While we are convinced that three receivers would be much better than one we will not discuss the question at this time. It should, however, have impressed those in the court room Tuesday morning that it was the attempt to have three appointed that squeezed out the first crumb of information that the creditors of the bank have been able to get in three years and a half. From what we have been led to believe not even the creditors' committee had knowledge of how much in funds were in hand, how much the litigation has cost or anything else about the affairs of the defunct institution.

The attempt to broaden out the receivership, give it the benefit of three minds instead of one, did that much good at least. It got the information to those most interested that there is $62,000 in cash ready for distribution.

As for the charge in the Centre Democrat of yesterday morning that "Geo. R. Meek has opposed every move in the proceedings to date, resulting in three and a half year's delay" anybody with the wit of a flea knows that all the delay there has been caused by the bungling manner in which the proceedings have been brought.

And, further, Geo. R. Meek has offered the only constructive suggestions that have been given to the creditors since the bank failed.

Red Cross Roll-Call Begins Today.

Russell Blair, chairman of our annual Red Cross Roll Call, says he is not superstitious about Friday, the 13th, when launching so good a work and will start his helpers out this afternoon from the health center in Petrikin hall, to give YOU an opportunity of enrolling in the Red Cross, whose many activities are set forth on page 2 of this issue.

Read that record and the story of "Jimmy," on page 4 and you will surely want to have a share in this helpful work.

Billy Sunday Coming to Bellefonte on Monday.

Through the instrumentality of the Bellefonte Ministerium, and by special invitation of Rev. Reed O. Steely, Billy Sunday and his entire retinue will visit Bellefonte next Monday morning and will hold services in the United Evangelical church at ten o'clock. The great evangelist is now engaged in conducting a six week's revival campaign in Williamsport and every Monday morning goes out to some town within reach and holds services. This accounts for the visit he will make to Bellefonte next Monday.

With Mr. Sunday will be his renowned musical leader, Homer Rhoads as well as other departmental leaders in his evangelistic work. Their visit here will probably afford the only opportunity the people of Bellefonte and vicinity will ever have of hearing this wonderful religious exhorter. In case the United Evangelical church is not large enough to accommodate all who want to hear him an overflow meeting will be held in the United Brethren church.

Financial Rally at the United Evangelical Church.

The congregation of the Bellefonte United Evangelical church again demonstrated, last Sunday, that it can pay quite as well as it can pray.

It was the occasion of a financial rally to reduce the debt incurred by the recent building of the handsome and best arranged Sunday school room in town. Rev. William B. Cox, of Harrisburg, the presiding elder, was here and preached the sermon at the morning session and the Hon. Albert W. Johnson, U. S. Dist. Judge, delivered a splendid address in the evening. Both were inspirational in the extreme and contributed to the spirit that rose to meet the mark of $2,000 that was hoped would be raised that day.

Under the devoted leadership of their young pastor, the Rev. Reed O. Steely, this congregation, relatively small when compared with some of the other churches of the town, has given all of them an object lesson in giving. The $2,000 they gave last Sunday brings the total of their gifts to this special cause up to $6,000 for this year.

J. Orvis Keller Promoted at State College.

J. Orvis Keller, for three years head of the industrial engineering department at State College, has been promoted to head of the engineering extension department to succeed Norman C. Miller, resigned to become director of industrial extension at Rutgers University, in New Jersey. Mr. Keller will assume a portion of the work of his new appointment at once but will not take active charge until the end of the first semester, on or about February 1st.

Mr. Keller is the eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Keller, of Bellefonte. He graduated at State College in 1914 and spent several years with large industrial concerns throughout the country before returning to State College to accept a professorship. For several years past he has been a special lecturer for foreman training classes for the extension department and has conducted short courses in summer at the college for foremen, superintendents, managers and other industrial executives.

R. L. Dollings Company Officials Sent to Penitentiary.

Those Centre countians who lost their money in the R. L. Dollings company may be interested in knowing that two of the head officials have been sent to the federal penitentiary at Atlanta, Ga. They are William G. Benham, former president, who drew a seven years term, and Dwight L. Harrison, former secretary, sent up for six years. Both are residents of Ohio, where the parent company was promoted. While the exact amount of money lost by Centre county investors in the Dollings company was never disclosed it is known to be well up in the thousands.

Under a recent law oysters must now be sold by count and not by measurement, and like all laws it has resulted in increasing the price of the luscious bivalve beyond the reach of the average man. Bellefonte dealers are selling at two and three cents apiece or one dollar a quart in sealed containers. The latter is an increase of twenty cents a quart over last year's price.

A society known as the B. D. K. society has been organized by a group of Howard High school students for the purpose of publishing a High school paper. This paper will be known as "The Progressive," and will appear about the 18th of this month. The students are showing a great interest and are confident of its success.

OLD, COSTLY FURNITURE WENT UP IN SMOKE.

Fire on St. Paul Street, Monday Evening, Caused Alarm on West Side.

The burning of Arthur Foreman's workshop, on the west side of St. Paul street, on Monday evening, developed a raging fire which for a time caused considerable alarm among every resident and property owner on the west side. Considerable wind prevailed at the time and the air was filled with a shower of flying sparks and cinders, but fortunately no other buildings caught fire with the exception of the house occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Gowen Thomas, next door to the burned building. The north side of that house was badly charred and a portion of the roof burned, while the interior of the house was pretty badly damaged by water.

The building destroyed was the Edward Overton property and was located between the John Bower house, occupied by Gowen Thomas, and the negro Masonic hall. It had recently been leased by Arthur Foreman as a work shop and a large part of the furniture he had for repair had been moved into it. In fact the building was crowded with furniture of all kinds, some of which had not yet been touched, some on which work was in progress and a number of pieces completed and ready for delivery. In fact Arthur had gone to the shop and built a fire in the stove to warm up the place in order to put the finishing touches on some furniture he intended delivering to State College owners on Tuesday.

After building the fire he went over home for a few minutes and when he returned the entire lower portion of the building was a mass of flames, so that it was impossible for him to get in and save anything. The building had been burning probably ten minutes before the fire alarm was given but following the alarm the fire companies were quickly on the scene, and while it was impossible to save the burning building they kept the fire from spreading.

While the fire was at its height some good-intentioned persons pushed Rev. J. A. Mills' automobile from the Jack Houck garage just across the street out into the street but could get it no further because the brakes were on. A burning cinder fell on the top and the top and cushions of the seats were burned. Rev. Mills had no insurance on his car and Arthur Foreman did not have insurance on his workshop or the furniture stored therein, so that the loss is total.

Centre County Hunters are Getting Few Birds.

Everybody has heard the story of the Irishman and his proverbial flea, and that is the situation most Centre county hunters are in this season regarding wild turkeys. So far only one has been brought into Bellefonte, and that was by J. I. Young on the opening day of the season. Other hunters who have gone into well known turkey territory day after day have found plenty of signs but the elusiveness of the bird baffled all efforts of the hunters to bag any of them. Pheasants, also, are about as scarce as wild turkeys, and while a few of them have been seen very few have been bagged.

So far rabbits have furnished the only worth-while sport. The cottontails are quite plentiful everywhere and quite a number of them have been killed. Squirrel, however, are scarce and very few of them are being killed.

While the opening of the deer hunting season is over two weeks away most of the hunters are already laying their plans and getting their outfits in order for that momentous event. As the opening day will fall on Tuesday hunting parties will begin moving mountainwards the Saturday previous in order to get their camp in shape for the opening morning. While small game is scarce deer seem to be as plentiful this year as last, and old-time hunters are anticipating their usual supply of venison.

State College Hunters Bagged a Big Bear on Tuesday.

The bear hunting season opened on Tuesday and twelve members of the Homan hunting club, of State College, motored to the Allegheny mountains for an early chase before the woods are invaded by deer hunters and bruin driven to his den by fright. They returned to Bellefonte a little after three o'clock in the afternoon with a 250 pound bear, which fell before the unerring aim of Frank Homan. The party saw several other bear but got only the one lucky shot.

Of course the primary object of their visit was the football game at State College, but the thought of being back among their Centre county friends for a day or so must also have been an incentive for the members of the Krumrine family. Mr. and Mrs. Krumrine have not been here much since their removal to Philadelphia and we understand that Mr. Gilliam and his daughter, who is now in this section before, Charles is connected with the Liberty Title and Trust Co. of Philadelphia, and has already attained an enviable position among the younger banking men of that city.
