Rural Education Course Attractive.

One of the many new features that have been added to the coming summer session is a composite course in rural education which is already attracting teachers and supervisors of rural schools in all parts of the State. Because of its widely known agricultural school, there is no other institution in Pennsylvania in which all the interests of rural life so naturally converge as in the Pennsylvania State College.

Six nationally prominent college teachers in rural life subjects have been obtained by the college, each to give a special lecture course during one of the six weeks of the session which starts July 6. They include Dr. Orville G. Brim, of the Ohio State University; Dr. J. E. Butterworth, of Cornell University; Dr. Lee L. Dryer, of the State Department of Public Instruction; Dr. Ernest Burnham, of Western State Normal school, Mich.; Mrs. Marie T. Harvey, Missouri State Teachers college; and Dr. M. S. Pittman, of Michigan State Normal college.
