Miss Maude Hartman and three lady friends visited at the home of Mrs. John Herman and family the past week. The young ladies are all so genial and pleasant that their visit was greatly appreciated.

The P. O. S. of A. festival was a decided success. Everything passed off very nicely and the members were much gratified with the financial returns. The camp is a most commendable aggregation and deserve success. Mrs. Mary Evey has returned from They had charge of the Memorial services here and left nothing undone to show respect to the old soldiers. Only two of the latter are now living here, John Griffith and L. A. Miller, but hirty-six graves in the local ceme-tery tell the story of their passing. These graves were all decorated.

My housekeeper is now away on her vacation and I am chief cook and bottle washer. Naturally I think I am about as proficient in the art as most men. I never go hungry, as that is one thing I was taught by a good mother. And this leads up to the fact that on Sunday evening I was highly favored when my good neighbor, J. Duncan Herman, brought me a delicious supper prepared by Mrs. J. D. It consisted of the best half of a domesticated rabbit with all the side dishes—just the kind of a meal Mrs. Herman knows so well how to prepare. Mr. and Mrs. Harry Atcherson are making the most of their spring vaca-tion. In their new car they left here on the night of May 31st, motored to Washington, D. C., took a run down into old Virginia, then returned to Washington, visited Baltimore and motored over to Philadelphia for a look at the Sesqui. They returned home on Saturday night but left again humanity, those who do something worthy of commendation and lasting western Pennsylvania, Buffalo, Niagawestern Pennsylvania, Buffalo, Niagara Falls and into Canada, expecting to be home by the 15th. Harry says he is determined to see all he can now, for while we are here today we may be in eternity tomorrow. Miss Maude Henry accompanied Mr. and Mrs. Atcherson on their southern and eastern trip and had a delightful time.

Rev. Homer C. Knox. of the Bellefonte Methodist chursh, was our Memorial day speaker, and everybody who heard him was deeply impressed as his talk was able and extremely interesting. True manliness seems to be one of his striking attributes and that gives tone to his oratory in which we found piety without bigotry; morality without austerity; earnestness without sentimental weakness. His efforts are not of the spread-eagle style. There were no rhetorical displays of language, no sophomorical lugging in of figures for the purpose of ornamentation. What he said was pertiment and in the plainest and most effective English. Hence it is that his address was so much appreciated. Rev. Knox is the right man in the right place, and no mistake.

Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Radle visited among friends in town Saturday night and Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Boop and family, spent the week-end with friends at Lewisburg.
