

NEWS ABOUT TOWN AND COUNTY.

The Bellefonte Lumber company have put down the foundation for an addition to their office building.

Think of it. On the morning of the 15th of July, at six o'clock, thermometers in this section registered as low as 46 degrees.

The curb market continues to increase in popularity with Bellefonte housewives, and so far most of those attending the market have been able to dispose of about all the berries and produce brought in.

Mr. and Mrs. Saul Auerbach, of New York city, are receiving congratulations on the birth of their first child, a daughter, who was born in New York Sunday. Mrs. Auerbach was the former Miss Stella Cohen, the eldest child of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Cohen, of Bellefonte.

Robert Roan last week received one full grown and three small parrots from Huntingdon, which have been attracting considerable attention at his cigar and candy store on High street. The young birds were brought from the Canal Zone where they were hatched out in their native element, and have been in this country less than three weeks.

A strange aeroplane came down on Halfmoon hill on Thursday afternoon of last week, the pilot evidently being unable to locate the government landing field south of Bellefonte. Quite a number of people hastened to the Hill in the belief that the pilot had been forced down, but after making inquiries as to his whereabouts he took to the air and sailed east.

The weather prophet who predicted an unusually cool summer ought to have been in Centre county last Friday and Saturday. They were the first two real hot days we have had this summer, but they were torrid enough to make up for a week of cool weather. On Saturday night, however, the temperature dropped almost forty degrees and Sunday was quite cool and delightful.

The National Red Cross has rallied to the relief of those who have suffered from the New Jersey explosion disaster. Hundreds of families are homeless and many have suffered serious loss. Any person in this community desiring to contribute can do so through the local chapter Red Cross. Send contributions either to Chas. M. McCurdy, treasurer, or Miss Anne Fox, secretary.

The scenic is one place in Bellefonte where good entertainment can be had every evening during the week. No other place shows such wonderful motion pictures as those offered to the people of Bellefonte and vicinity by manager T. Clayton Brown, who gets the best pictures made by the leading film producers in the country. If you are not a regular at the scenic get the habit and see all the good ones.

The Street committee and borough manager deserve considerable credit for the way they are fixing up some of the streets of Bellefonte. Curtin street, Lamb, Howard, Wilson, east High, Logan and Mill streets; Reynolds avenue, the street leading up to the Centre County hospital, Race street and Railroad street are among the improved thoroughfares; and several others will be fixed before the program is completed.

All parents of children of preschool age should make their plans to take the kiddies to the State health and dental car, which is now in the western section of Centre county, and which will start its trip through the Bald Eagle valley with next Wednesday at Port Matilda. The car will be in Bellefonte all day of July 28th and up to noon on the 29th. Hublersburg and Pleasant Gap will be next on the program then the car will spend a week touring Pennsylvania. All examinations will be free.

The wheat harvest is at least two weeks late this year. Ordinarily farmers are cutting wheat by the fourth of July and sometimes a day or two earlier, but this is the sixteenth and while some farmers have started harvesting the bulk of the cutting will be done next week. The lateness of the harvesting enabled most of the farmers to get their hay in. Clover was an unusually short crop but the yield of timothy was from fair to good, with the yield from some fields in the county above the average.

Flying westward on Wednesday night of last week pilot Harry A. Chandler, with the night mail from New York to Chicago, ran into a heavy fog bank in the Woodward Narrows and was compelled to fly at a high altitude to escape hitting the mountain tops. In so doing he was unable to see the signal lights along the course and also the lights at the Bellefonte landing field. After flying around for some minutes he dropped a parachute flare but it was swallowed up in the fog so the pilot turned east and flew back to Sunbury where he made a safe landing on the emergency field. With the break of day the fog rose and Chandler took to the air and continued his trip westward.

SERIOUS RAILROAD WRECK ON MONDAY EVENING.

Passenger Train Runs Into Open Switch at "Y," Engine Topples Over.

A serious train wreck occurred in the Bellefonte yards, on Monday evening, when the passenger train due at the depot at 8.16 o'clock ran into an open switch at the "Y" with the result that the big engine left the rails and toppled over on its side, the baggage car was partially derailed but the two coaches stuck to the rails and were not damaged in the least.

Howard Casper, of Bellefonte, fireman of the locomotive, was more or less injured and J. W. Harris, engineer, was slightly injured and suffered from shock, and they were the only persons hurt in the wreck. The two coaches carried sixty or more passengers and not one of them was bumped hard enough to cause a laceration or bruise.

Just who is to blame for the wreck is a matter that the company will have to determine after a thorough investigation. From reliable sources it was learned that the shifting engine and crew had pulled in onto the "Y" from the main track, stopped at the water tank for water then run on up on the north leg of the Y. The switch was open for the Y and locked, the red light showing up and down the main track.

The passenger train was running at a speed of approximately thirty-five miles an hour and apparently neither the engineer nor the fireman saw the red light signal for an open switch until they were almost upon it. It was too late to stop or do anything to avert the wreck which followed. The big engine took the switch into the Y but at the speed it was traveling was unable to hold its balance on the rails on the sharp curve and by the time it reached the tank was listed so heavily to the left side that it struck one of the heavy iron supports of the water tank and bent it in a foot or more, and knocked loose the big water spout from the tank. After passing the tank the locomotive left the rails and ran probably eighty feet before it toppled over on its left side.

When firemen Casper realized that the engine was going he jumped, and in doing so was thrown, being found some thirty feet away. Engineer Harris stuck to his cab and by holding to the window saved being thrown out. Fortunately the cab was not crushed and when the engine came to rest on its side the engineer was able to step out of the cab and was hunting for the firemen when people living nearby reached the scene of the wreck.

When the engine listed heavily to the left the coupling broke between the tender and the baggage coach which naturally threw on the air and brakes. As it was however, the train ran almost a car length after the engine fell over. The front truck of the baggage car was derailed but the two coaches stuck to the rails. Passengers in the coaches heard the crash when the locomotive struck the water tank and realizing they were in a wreck braced themselves for any impact that might follow, and while the sudden throwing on of the air gave the coaches a hard jolt it was not sufficient to throw any of the passengers from their seats.

Both the engineer and firemen were taken to the Centre County hospital and a switching crew and engine pulled the two coaches out onto the main track, after the mail and express matter had been transferred from the baggage car into the front end of the forward coach, and the coaches not being damaged in the least, the train, an hour and a half late, proceeded on its way to Lock Haven in charge of the regular conductor, William McLaughlin.

Two Prisoners Escaped on Sunday, Both Recaptured Yesterday.

George W. Wilson, 36 years old, and J. D. Lord, aged 45, colored inmates at Rockview penitentiary where they had been employed as teamsters, went to the prison barn on Sunday morning to groom their horses, and that was the last time Wilson or Lord was seen at Rockview. They were missed at nine o'clock in the morning and an investigation showed that the horses had not been groomed at all.

Wilson was an Allegheny county inmate, having been sent up for two and a half to five years for burglary. Lord received like sentence in Beaver county for breaking and entering. On Sunday afternoon a report was sent to penitentiary officers that two men believed to be escaped prisoners had been seen in the vicinity of Linden Hall, but guards sent there failed to get any trace of them.

They were both caught yesterday morning down Pennsylvania, between the Old Fort and Spring Mills on what is known as Indian lane. They had stuck close to Nittany mountain during the four days they were at large until driven forth by hunger, and both men, who had stuck together, thought they were many miles away from the prison grounds.

Miss Edrie Walker entertained a number of her friends at a five hundred party, on Tuesday evening, and made it the occasion of the announcement of her engagement to Wilmer G. Smith, of Wilmington, Del. No date for the wedding has been set.

The boy was with his uncle, Frank Stover, in the hay field. The latter was using a tractor to haul a hay loader and the lad was riding the tractor with his uncle. Mr. Stover attempted to make a turn on a rather steep hillside when the tractor upset and rolled over five times. The boy was caught beneath it and so badly crushed that he died within fifteen minutes. Burial will be made at Aaronsburg this afternoon.

At a meeting of the Spring township school board, last week, the contract for the erection of the new consolidated school building at Pleasant Gap was awarded to James O. Longwell, of State College, for the sum of $50,500, his being the lowest of ten bids submitted. This only includes, however, the general building work.

A contract for the heating and ventilating system was awarded to the American Heating and Ventilating company, of Philadelphia, for $3,500. No awards were made for the plumbing and electric wiring because all the bids submitted were not sufficiently specific. The board estimates that the entire cost of the building will approximate $72,000.

As payment they will have the proceeds of a $64,200 bond issue authorized with $6,000 of a balance in the treasury.

DARING BURGLAR ROBS EBERTS STORE AT MARTHA.

Holds Up Mr. and Mrs. Eberts and Takes About $250 from Till. A Suspect Arrested.

About ten o'clock on Tuesday night as Mrs. O. D. Eberts was counting the cash in the till of the Eberts store at Martha Furnace, and her husband was in the wareroom at the rear, a masked man walked into the store and pulling a gun called upon Mrs. Eberts to throw up her hands. Instead of complying she ran to the rear and into the wareroom calling to her husband that the store was being robbed.

Mr. Eberts made a dash for the front room and found the masked man behind the counter helping himself to the contents of the till. The robber drew his gun on Mr. Eberts and demanded, "put 'em up," but instead of doing so the latter ran behind the counter and made for the burglar. When he got within reach of the latter he planted a solid blow on Eberts chin which dropped him to the floor and with the remark, "you got off easy; I might have shot you instead of knocking you on the chin," the robber ran from the store and deliberately walked up the main road until he was lost in the darkness.

When Mrs. Eberts ran into the wareroom she ran out the back door and hurrying to the nearest telephone called Mrs. Thompson Henry and told her that their store was being robbed. Mrs. Henry promptly called her husband, who was attending a board meeting at the Centre County hospital, and the latter notified sheriff Taylor. The latter, with policeman Dukeman and several others hastened to Martha but the robber had completely disappeared.

Mrs. Eberts gave it as her opinion that the robber was a young man by the name of Newman, from Worth township, who has already done time for larceny, but though the officers searched high and low for him on Wednesday he could not be found.

On Saturday night some person gained entrance to the passenger station at Port Matilda by shooting the lock off of the door, and though he ransacked the place pretty thoroughly he succeeded in getting only 72 cents. It is just possible it was the same man who robbed the Eberts store on Tuesday night.

Just as the Watchman was going to press yesterday a report was received that Newman was caught over in Clearfield and Centre county officers went over to bring him to Bellefonte.

On Sunday night register Harry A. Rossman and family were returning from a motor trip to Tyrone and down at the old Central Railroad of Pennsylvania roundhouse he saw a car standing by the side of the road, a man with a gun and another man with his hands high above his head. Believing it a holdup he tramped on the gas and lost no time getting into Bellefonte. The incident, however, proved to be penitentiary guards on the hunt of the prisoners who escaped on Sunday morning. They stopped and searched all cars going from Bellefonte but did not molest those coming in.

Pet Parrot Enjoyed Three Days of Liberty.

Last Thursday afternoon Mrs. R. C. Witmer took her pet parrot from its cage and placed it on the grapevine in the rear of her home on High street while she cleaned the cage. The cage done to her satisfaction she reached for the parrot to replace it in the cage but "pretty Polly" eluded her grasp and taking wing flew over the buildings and took lodging in one of the trees near the residence of Miss Myra Humes, on Allegheny street.

All attempts to coax Polly down during the afternoon and late into the night proved fruitless. By Friday morning the parrot had changed its place of abode to one of the trees at the corner of the Valentine property, on Spring street. There another attempt was made to capture it, but the bird again took flight. On Saturday morning it was located out on the north end of Reynolds avenue and once more members of the Witmer family tried to catch it but it eluded them. Saturday afternoon it appeared on the top of a tall tree on Hillowbank street, just beyond the hospital grounds, and that evening and up till midnight every conceivable means were used to coax it down or capture it, but the bird had taken lodging on the tip-end of one of the topmost branches where it was impossible to get at it.

Early Sunday morning two little girls went out to look for Polly and discovered her sitting on the ground under the tree. They walked right up to the bird and picked her up without any attempt at resistance, and the Witmer family was promptly notified. The parrot evidently had been driven to the ground from hunger and was probably tired of its roaming life.
