To Study Industrial Depression in Central Pennsylvania.

Study of the causes of the industrial depression which central and western Pennsylvania have endured for the past few years is to be made under the direction of a citizen's committee, with Dr. Clyde L. King, now Secretary of the Commonwealth, in charge of the work. Dr. King will resign from his State office when the survey gets under way.

This is the first step in an effort to present facts to the citizens of the affected areas upon which intelligent remedial action may be based. Start will be made in the central bituminous field during the present month. The western district will receive attention shortly after the study of the central begins.

Agriculture, transportation, manufacture and mining will form the principal studies, though all phases of industrial and social life of the citizens will be included.

The work will be financed by public subscriptions to the report.

An advisory committee for the central division has just been announced. It includes: W. B. Adams, attorney, Punxsutawney; Dr. W. Frank Beck, farmer, Altoona; W. L. Burchfield, merchant, Philipsburg; Charles Dinger, merchant, Reynoldsville; J. A. Farabaugh, farmer, Bradley Junction; Robert B. Gable, merchant, Altoona; Richard Gilbert, miner, Clearfield; William A. Hagerty, attorney, Clearfield; Daniel Kough, amusement, Windber; Bertram Leopold, merchant, Altoona; James J. Mack, merchant, DuBois; Dwight C. Morgan, publisher, Kittanning; Philip H. Murray, miner, Philipsburg; A. J. Musser, coal operator, Indiana; John O. Reams, merchant, Berlin; Judge S. L. Reed, Ebensburg; Harry B. Scott, coal operator, Philipsburg; Lee T. Shannon, traction interests, Johnstown; H. E. Wagner, merchant, Coalport.

This is a survey of the industries of Central Pennsylvania. The market for each of the essential industries of this section will be studied in order to find out what the market for each industry was in the past, what the market is now, what the future market may well be, and what changes are advisable to get the best possible market for each of those industries. As an aid to this, living costs and working conditions will be ascertained as compared with living costs and working conditions in competing industries elsewhere.

The bituminous region of Pennsylvania is a small empire in itself. It is blessed with a sturdy hardworking people. From such gifts should come an increasing prosperity based on informed community action.

Bellefonte borough councilmen evidently don't believe in laboring on Labor day, as not a quorum was available for the regular meeting of council on Monday evening. Lack of a meeting didn't matter materially, at that. The borough employees were paid on Saturday so they would have money for the holiday, the streets are all in fair shape, the digging of ditches for sewers is progressing, and there was nothing of importance that needed looking after, so why hold a meeting.

Mrs. E. E. Widownson entertained a bridge party of three tables, on Saturday afternoon, in honor of her week-end guests, Miss Jessie Shaw, of New York city; Mrs. William Nicolson, of Indiana, Pa., and Mr. and Mrs. O. C. Moore, of Glenn Campbell. Miss Shaw returned home on Monday and Mrs. Nicolson on Tuesday.

WEAVER.—William F. Weaver passed away at one o'clock on Tuesday afternoon, following some weeks of illness as the result of a general breakdown.

He was a son of Daniel and Mary Ripka Weaver and was born in Brush valley on October 5th, 1852, hence was almost seventy-four years old. When a young man he located, at Pleasant Gap and it was there on February 18th, 1872, he married Miss Jane Gettig, and all their married life was spent there until their coming to Bellefonte about five years ago. For many years Mr. Weaver was keeper of the toll gate at Pleasant Gap until the old pike was taken over by the county. He was a member of the Lutheran church for many years and a good citizen.

Surviving him are his wife and four daughters, Mrs. Edward J. Gehret, Mrs. Edward Wolf and Mrs. Clyde Love, all of Bellefonte, and Mrs. John Herman, of Philadelphia. He also leaves one brother and a sister, Howard Weaver, of Madisonburg, and Mrs. Lewis Rossman, of Spring Mills.

Finally he sold out his interest in the firm to Mr. Shuey and studied for the ministry, eventually becoming a member of the Allegheny conference of the Methodist church. During his pastoral career he filled appointments at South Brownsville, Donora, California avenue, Pittsburgh; New Brighton and Jeannette, having been stationed at the latter place the past two years. You Need Physical Vigor.

Business requires many things of its leaders but none more than physical vigor. Real, personal accomplishment comes from constant intellectual application.

Long hours—no regard for the clock—high pressure work for weeks and months on end, lay many good men low. They cannot stand the gaff. They lack the physical ability to carry through.

In most cases this is due to "No time for exercise." You must find time to exercise or you are headed for the scrap heap. A few hours a week in the "K" gym will add many hours to your productive time. It will keep your head clear, add zest to your endeavor, make business easier, give you inspiration and fellowship.

Stand the gaff by keeping fit. Stop at the Young Men's Christian Association today and sign up for gym.

You will find a welcome from men of your own age, who have learned to live, play, love and serve—as well as work.

A Despicable Robbery.

One of the meanest, most despicable robberies that has been pulled off in Bellefonte in years was that at the home of Mrs. Nicholas DeLallo, on Beaver street, last Friday night, when some miscreant broke into the cellar and carried away three dozen jars of this season's canned fruit and a bushel of potatoes. Entrance to the cellar was gained through a window. When Joe DeLallo went home he saw the light on in the cellar and without a thought of robbers opened the cellar door and snapped off the light. Later he heard a noise but thought it a neighbor's dog and paid no attention to it, so that the robbery was not discovered until the next day. Whoever committed the deed was evidently acquainted with the DeLallo house and the lay of the cellar. Mrs. DeLallo is a widow with a large family of children and the man who would rob her is stooping pretty low.

Two large army transport ships and one flight ship, enroute from Selfridge field, Mich., to Philadelphia, were housed at the Bellefonte flying field on Monday night. The one transport carried eight men, two pilots and most of the others airplane mechanics. The other transport carried two pilots, a photographer and baggage while only the pilot was in the flight ship. The ships reached Bellefonte during the latter part of the afternoon, having trailed the mail plane from Cleveland, and because of the cloudy, rainy weather the pilots decided to spend the night here and complete their flight to Philadelphia on Tuesday morning. They were quartered at the Brouckerhoff house. Pilot Ward, of the mail service, also spent Monday night in Bellefonte.

Six carloads of trunks, baggage of the Freshmen entering State College, have gone through Bellefonte this week enroute to the College, while one hundred or more pieces checked to Bellefonte were hauled up in trucks.
