Democratic Watchman. Bellefonte, Pa., October 8, 1926. FOR AND ABOUT WOMEN. DAILY THOUGHT. Our lives are truly at an end when we cream.

are loved no longer.-Landor.

-The explanations given about a smart woman's underwear and accessories are that it is best not to order more than will be needed for a year, as lingerie changes fashion, too, and one can not provide piles of each kind to last a lifetime as was done in the days of one's grandmother. Two elastic girdles are suggested, since to rest one, and wear one, alternately, keep them in better shape. Sets of stockings in the same shade are an economy, because an accident to one stocking does not leave the other of the pair useless. Stockings for day should be gauge 40, for evening, gauge 44. In ordering shoes, it is well to insist upon having them lined in a light colour; otherwise, the stockings may be discoloured by the inside of the shoe. Shoes should always be treed and given a day's rest after a day's wear. If they are worn two days in succession, they, like the elastic gir-dles, are apt to lose their shape more quickly. It should be remembered always that a woman's smartness is to be recognized not only by her underwear, but by everything she wears and the way she wears it. Her character shows in all her surroundingsin her most intimate and infinitesimal belongings.

The details of a costume may make or mar its success.

Because of this and the constant change of fashions, it is necessary to alter many of the still very good coats and frocks at the two important dates of September and March. A simple touch, perhaps: the skirts and coats made shorter, the dress narrower, and the chic will be renewed. One must not fail to look all through one's wardrobe at these two dates if one wants to be fit for every unexpected occasion.

A smart woman has to keep her looks, and, therefore, she looks carefully after her complexion.

A few all-important hints follow. Be careful in choosing powder and makeup. They can ruin the skin. Never put powder directly on the skin. A cream or a lotion should always be used as a foundation. After the make-up is put on, it should be entirely covered with powder and brush-ed off with a soft brush. This takes all the hardness away and makes the face look soft and natural. Except the rouge for the lips, which can be accentuated to an unnatural brightness. the rest of the makeup must be substitute for Nature.

The coiffure is also of the greatest importance. When choosing the kind that suits her personality, type, or the style she wishes to adopt, a smart by Systematic Effort What, asks the Mentor, is the ratio of the words you use to those that are your birthright? Are you rich or poor in verbal currency? If you are an average American, making your wealth of language, your drawing account on the dictionary is not more 3,000 or 4,000 words. Shakespeare's plays contain 15,000 different words. Milton's works half that number. These were writers of prolific thought and phrase, yet even they did not make heavy draft upon the store of nouns, pronouns, verbs, adverbs and adjectives in the English language. For there are a hundred thousand of them in all.

Added to Vocabulary

Some of the authors whose choice and variety of words we most admire-Browning, Stevenson, Benjamin Franklin-made a systematic business of adding to their fund, and there are interesting stories as to their methods of doing this.

"R. L. S.," who became a supreme artificer in the exercise of words, began as a boy to enlarge his vocabulary by deliberate means. Wherever he went he carried in his pocket two books, "one to read and one to write in. As I walked my mind was busy fitting what I saw with appropriate words; when I sat by the roadside I would either read or a pencil and a penny book would be in my hand to note down the features of the scene or commemorate some halting stanzas. Thus I lived with words. And what I wrote was for no ulterior use; it was written consciously for practice."

Robert Browning's novitiate as a poet was spent in "reading and digesting the whole of Johnson's dictionary" -and many an exotic and little-known specimen did he uncover. Emerson prescribed conversation for an impoverished vocabulary. "Science, religion, politics, letters, art, war, or love has its vent and exchange in conversation, and it follows that conversation properly conducted helps to the power of expression in all of these."

woman will try to chooe the most be-coming. If bobbed hair does not fit a woman's type, let her keep away from it. One can follow the general trend of fashion without being a slave to its every manifestation. The smart woman always takes care of her figure. She does not allow herself to get fat. Dieting and exercise should keep a woman's figure in condition. These are the important questions in the smart woman's catechism, and, if the answers are taken to heart, any woman may be smart.

-Information of interest to housewives comes from J. H. Mercer, Secretary of the Kansas Livestock Association. Mr. Mercer points out that there is at present an abundant supply of excellent quality, corn-fed beef on the market at levels from 10 to 15 per cent. lower than they were last year.

As the live-stock raisers have plenty of corn left, beef of unusually good quality will be available for some months. Housewives will be interested in the following suggestions for preparing beef dishes according to recipes which were prize winners in a recent contest.

The following recipe submitted by Miss Eleanor Palmer of Bennington, Vt., is especially timely:

Beef Tenderloin.

1 cup oysters with liquor.

4 tablespoons butter, melted.

1 cup cracker crumbs.

Celery salt.

Salt, pepper. Split the tenderloin, lengthwise. Season with salt and pepper. Mix the oysters with the cracker crumbs and melted butter. Season with salt, pepper and celery salt. If there is not enough of the oyster liquor to moisten the dressing, add a little stock or hot water. Put the dressing between the pieces of tenderloin and sew together. Roast for 30 to 40 minutes, basting often.

There is no more attractive way of serving steak than to plank it. From Miss Beatrice Siegfried of Northampton, Pa., comes this recipe:

Sirloin steak, 11 inch thick.

Mashed potatoes.

Salt, Pepper.

Gossip

Earl Carroll, the theatrical producer, was talking rather bitterly to a New York reporter about his sentence to a year and a day in jail.

"Gossip," he said, "is what made all the trouble. There was too much gossip. I reminds me of the anecdote:

"A very loquacious lady talked a man pretty nearly to death at a dinner party, and then, as she got up with the other ladies to go into the drawing room, she tapped him on the arm with her fan and said:

"'I talk a lot, don't I? But if you men told the truth I believe you'd all admit that you like talkative women better than the others.'

""The others? said the man. 'What

steam Shovel Digs Up Fossils

Fossil hunting for generations has been a back-breaking process of laboriously picking and shoveling remains of prehistoric fauna out of rock and clay 'way out in a sun-baked desert. But times do change. Today a huge mechanical shovel, using electric power from the Cleveland service system, is excavating fossilized fishes which lived in the Devonian period. It is doing it in a suburban region that some day will be overgrown by Cleveland and thereby will be rendered forbidden ground for the excavations of paleontologists. The shovel is digging up geologic information by the ton, its electric power having removed all backbreak from the process

Waterproof Stockings

Mud and rain splashed stockings may soon be things of the past. It is claimed that a new shower-proof stocking, made from artificial silk and treated by a patented process, cannot be marked by mud or water. These stockings can be dyed any color, and in appearance are exactly like any other artificial silk stocking. Another interesting invention in the "artificial silk industry is a process to diminish the naturally bright luster of the fiber. By the adoption of a special finish artificial silk goods can now beimade with the characteristic, dull luster of real silk .--- Chicago Daily News,
