Route of the Franklin Highway.

The Benjamin Franklin Highway is made by linking together the State Highways that have already been established in the several States; thus forming a great transcontinental highway which will relieve the other highways that have been established of their congestion enabling the traveling public, whether commercial or tourist, to travel with ease and comfort, as the Benjamin Franklin Highway avoids the congestion of the large cities, and follows the water grade, especially avoiding the mountain hindrances in the east, by crossing the Allegheny mountains at Summit, Pa.; and with a steady grade up and down, and without its dangerous curves. The numbers now are as follows:

No. 1. From Atlantic City across the State of New Jersey to Philadelphia; No. 13 from Philadelphia to Harrisburg, Pa.; No. 3 from Harrisburg to Ebensburg, Pa.; No. 33 from Ebensburg through Indiana, Kittanning, and Butler to Newcastle, Pa.; west from Newcastle through to the State line of Ohio, where you take Ohio's No. 17 to Tiffin, Ohio; from Tiffin to Findlay, Ohio, No. 106; from Findlay to Ottawa, Ohio, No. 22; from Ottawa through Van Wert to the State line of Indiana No. 109.

The State Highway Commission of Ohio, has given this route its entire distance through Ohio the Ohio State Route No. 17, but the changes will not be made in the numbers on the highways until next year.

At the State line of Indiana you take an unnumbered highway through Decatur to Huntington. It is marked on the telephone poles MCH. This strip of road has not been numbered on the State Highway System of Indiana, but it is understood that it will be soon put on that system.

From Huntington you take No. 7 through Wabash, Peru, Logansport, Monticello and Kentland to the State line of Illinois. Here you take Illinois State route No. 8 through Wetseka, Gilman, Fairbury, Gridley, El Paso, Washington, Peoria, Elmwood and Gibson to Burlington, Iowa; there you take No. 8 across that State to Omaha, Nebraska, where you meet a U. S. numbered highway known as No. 30 to Salt Lake City, and from there you take U. S. numbered highway known as No. 40 to San Francisco.

This road as outlined above is a Federal Aid road its entire distance except a few miles between Van Wert and Ottawa, Ohio, and the few miles between Findlay and Tiffin, Ohio, and a short distance in Indiana County, Pa. It is the hope that this will be put on the Federal Aid system so that its entire distance will be aided in construction by the Federal Government.

PAUL C-84, Brockton, Mass.

PILGRIMS DID NOT LIKE THE TURKEY.

In spite of the statements of popular historians roasted turkey with giblet gravy and with cranberry or apple sauce was a very popular Sunday and holiday dish in many places many years before turkey became standardized as the central dish of the Thanksgiving day dinner in Plymouth Colony and among the Puritans and their descendants settled along Boston bay and the north shore of Massachusetts.

The story that turkey was the mainstay of the Thanksgiving day dinner of the early colonists of New England seems to have come from the pen of a visiting Englishman at Plymouth, who described his travels in a book published in London just after the great fire.

He also told the absurd story of the starving condition of the pilgrims and of their being reduced at one time to a dinner of three grains of corn. The fact was that none of the early or late colonists could have starved at Plymouth or elsewhere along the north or the south shore, as the sea teemed with fish and shellfish and the woods were alive with game. As late as thirty years ago Brant Rock and Marshfield, near Plymouth, Mass., were resorted to by hundreds of hunters of wild birds, and to this hour deer and wild bird shooting is good in Plymouth county.

What the pilgrims and the Puritans craved in the early years of their settlements were roast beef and mutton, pork, wheat, oatmeal and barley bread, venison pasties made from the red deer stock, native to England; jams and jellies from English fruits preserved with brown sugar from the orient and English mead, ales and Holland spirits. Most of them disliked Indian corn in all forms of products for human consumption, and they disliked oysters, clams, lobsters, mussels, scallops, turkeys and native venison. It was only when marriages of the early English settlers and their descendants in New England with Indians brought about many persons of mixed blood that the English prejudices against certain native American food products passed away. To this day English travelers find some of our foods which we consider delicious strange to their palates. Matthew Arnold, traveling in America, was asked to taste griddlecakes. "Try them, my dear," he said to his wife; "they're not nearly so nasty as they look!" As lately as fifty years ago many families in New England of undoubted descent from the pilgrims and Puritans regarded roasted or baked turkey as an Indian dish and would have none of it at any time, preferring for Thanksgiving day dinner roast beef, a saddle of mutton, pork spareribs, roast goose with apple sauce or farm raised ducks with barbery sauce. The wild turkey was saved from extinction in New England only because the farmers noticed that those birds and the partridges served well in ridding the farm lands of insects and weeds.

Severe Winter, With Cold Summer in 1927, is Forecast.

Late spring frosts, a snow storm in June and frost during July. Previous to that one of the most severe winters ever experienced.

These are the forecasts for the coming winter and summer as made by Herbert J. Brown, long range weather forecaster, of Washington, D. C., in speaking before a session of the Lancaster Chamber of Commerce recently.

They apply, according to Brown, to the United States as a whole, but especially to this section of the country. The year 1927, he declared, will be a repetition of the summerless year of 1816.

—Poolscap was originally so called because the watermark in the paper was a jester's cap and bells.

Disturbed Sleep.

Caused From Bladder Irritation is Nature's Signal of "Danger Ahead."

Joseph Dow, R. 53, Trenton, N. J. says: "My rest at night was disturbed 10 to 20 times. Lithiated Buchu has reduced this and entirely relieved me of that terrible burning and smarting. I was told there was no help for me. I want others to know and will tell or write my experience."

Lithiated Buchu is not a patent medicine. The formula is on the package. It acts on the bladder as opium salts do on the bowels. Drives out abnormal deposits, lessens excessive acids, thereby relieving the irritation which causes "disturbed sleep." Keller Laboratory, Mechanicsburg, Ohio. Sold at all drug stores.

What Is a Diuretic?

EVERYONE knows that a laxative stimulates the bowels. A diuretic performs a similar function to the kidneys. Under the strain of our modern life, our organs are apt to become sluggish and require assistance. More and more people are learning to use Doan's Pills, occasionally, to insure good elimination which is so essential to good health. More than 50,000 grateful users have given Doan's signed recommendations. Securely a community but has its representation. Ask your neighbor!

THANKSGIVING.

One day we might forget our cares. The selfish needs that fill our prayers, And turn our pleading into praise, Acknowledging God's gracious ways. We have had home and daily bread, And thank Thee for full tables spread.

If death has claimed our very best, We thank Thee for a loved one's rest; And praise that Providence can bring Sweet water from each bitter spring. For things we have not understood We thank Thee, Giver of all good.

For leading nations through their strife Into a larger, better life We thank Thee, knowing war will cease Before the coming Prince of peace; And for the care that broods above Each soul we thank Thee, God of love.

Twenty-Three Accidents Every Minute in the Day.

One person in every nine in the United States meets with an accident every year, and one out of every ten deaths is chargeable to accidental causes, according to a newly completed survey just made public. The survey figures show that there are upwards of 12,000,000 accidents every year in this country, 23 every minute and 1,380 every hour.

Annually more than 100,000 persons lose arms, feet or hands as the result of accidents. In New York City alone there are some 36,000 cripples—half of them under sixteen years of age.

The annual economic loss to the United States is estimated at more than five billions of dollars.
