The Keystone Power corporation started work on Tuesday morning on the construction of their new line to Zion and Hecla Park. Inasmuch as a number of people at Zion have their homes already wired and fixtures in they are anxiously waiting for the completion of the line to that town.

On Tuesday afternoon, about five o'clock, one of the Academy students drove Mr. Hughes' Reo car up in front of the Academy and left the motor run while he ran into the building. The vibration of the motor loosened the brakes and the car ran down the hill and crashed into the barn of T. Clayton Brown, not only damaging the barn but almost completely ruining the car.

Jack Morrison and Robert Baney came within an ace of getting an involuntary bath, between three and four o'clock on Monday morning. Driving out south Water street in Baney's car they ran onto the pavement below the falls and knocked off two of the iron standards and broke one of the guard rails. It was a close call from going down over the stone wall into Spring Creek.

On Sunday evening Richard Mabus, son of Mr. and Mrs. Blaine Mabus, started on a trip to Oak Hall, driving a Ford car reconstructed into a "bug." Out near the Independent Oil company's plant one front wheel collapsed and the young man was thrown from the car, sustaining injuries which necessitated his being taken to the Centre County hospital. Fortunately no bones are broken and while he suffered considerably from shock and a general shaking up no serious consequences are anticipated.

There were just 1253 paid admissions to the two nights performance of "Cheer Up," at the Richelieu theatre Thursday and Friday evenings, and after all bills were paid and a division made with the promoter, the sum of $505 was left to turn over to the Kiwanis club for their underprivileged child movement. It is understood that the project the Kiwanis has in view is a clinic for crippled children to be held in Bellefonte, the money to be spent in bringing here an eminent specialist to have charge of any cases brought to the clinic.

HUNTERS PREPARING FOR THE DEER CHASE.

Hundreds of Armed Gunners will Trek to Centre County Mountains Within Next Few Days.

The 1926 deer hunting season will open next Wednesday and the next few days will witness a general exodus of hunters to the mountainous districts of Centre county, all eager to be on the ground, with camp all in order, for the morning of the opening day. Naturally the greatest number of Centre county hunters will flock to the Seven mountains, and the big influx from all sections of the State will also go into that locality, where most of them either have permanent camps or their regular camp sites where they have been pitching their tents year after year. The Seven mountains have been the most prolific field for deer hunting the past four or five years, and it is only natural that the man who wants a good chance to get his deer should go where they are the most plentiful. And, according to reports, there is no end of deer in that locality, the only question will be the number of bucks of legal status.

But the Seven mountains are not the only deer refuge in the county. They are in the Barrens, in the Nityan mountain chain, on Brush mountain and on the Alleghenies, though the latter are not populated as thickly now as they used to be ten and twenty years ago. But the hunting party that goes into the Barrens, from Waddle up to the old Juniata ore mines, is just as likely to run across a deer as the man in the Seven mountains. Little Sugar valley is also another good deer country, and the McMullen-Yarnell crowd will probably be found there this year as they have the past four or five seasons.

Every season during the past three years a monster buck, the monarch of the forest, has been seen in Green valley below Pleasant Gap, and a number of hunters have made a try at bringing him to earth, but he seems to bear a charmed life. He is described as having a ponderous pair of antlers that seemingly have a spread of a yard in width. A huge deer supposed to be the same buck has been seen in that locality during the summer, and we are constrained to wonder if any hunter will prove the lucky shot this year.

Reverting to the Seven mountain region, motorists who have crossed from Bellefonte to Lewistown within the past month, going by way of the detour, have counted as high as forty-two deer seen in going one way, while it is nothing unusual to see anywhere from half a dozen up. Of course the most of the deer are probably does but there will naturally be a fair percentage of bucks.

On Tuesday morning trainmen on the westbound train on the Lewisburg railroad counted seventeen deer at Cherry Run, and among them were several fine bucks. In fact the men aver that hardly a day passes that they do not see a number of deer as the train speeds through that section. While every man cannot get his deer the Watchman wishes all success and would like to have every hunting party make an effort to get to this office next Wednesday evening, without fail, a report of their first day's hunt. If out of reach of a telephone but in touch with a game warden ask him to report your kill.

Young Men Offer Blood to Save Sick Companion.

The Watchman last week referred to the very serious condition of Joseph Hoy, in the Clearfield hospital. He is suffering with tuberculosis of the bone and this week it was decided by the physicians at the hospital that blood transfusion was the only thing that would prolong his life. When this fact was made known six young men of Bellefonte and Milesburg, members of the Bellefonte chapter of DeMolay, to which Joseph belongs, volunteered to give of their blood to save the life of their young friend. The six were Andrew Runkle, Clarence Thompson, Joseph Herman, James Bower and Hoy Royer, of Bellefonte, and Willis McClellan, of Milesburg.

They went to Clearfield, on Monday, in the Runkle and Royer cars and, all submitted to the blood test, which showed that of Joseph Herman and Willis McClellan to be similar to that of the sick young man and the two of them tossed a penny to see which one should have the privilege of supplying the blood and it fell to the lot of McClellan. Young Hoy had a blood transfusion early in the summer to which he made quick response and it is hoped the same result will follow this one.

Rockview Penitentiary Raises Big Crop of Potatoes.

While practically every farmer in Centre county had all kinds of trouble this fall getting their potatoes out of the ground, and quite a number of them have still some to raise, the overseers on the prison farms at the Rockview penitentiary kept plugging away digging their tubers rain or no rain, with the result that they got their entire crop out, and it was some crop at that, something over eleven thousand bushels. And none of the potatoes showing any indication of rot or brown spots.

Two of the lines are from the most exclusive makers of Christmas Cards in America. School Children to Rebuild "Pennsylvania House."

School children of Centre county are in their annual campaign for orphan children in the Near East Relief schools in Greece, Palestine and Armenia. The pupils of our schools have been supporting a group of refugee orphans there the past years and the interest thus aroused in the people of Bible lands was reflected in all their school work. Geography, history, and other students benefited directly from the keen interest which the children have in this philanthropy.

This year sympathy in the Near East has been further stimulated by the recent earthquakes, which centered in the great city of orphans maintained by the Near East Relief in Central Armenia. One of the buildings severely damaged by the quakes was "Pennsylvania House," a large dormitory housing 500 of the refugee orphans who are supported by the Pennsylvania schools.

The earthquakes resulted in 500 deaths and the destruction of 12,000 Armenian homes, but fortunately none of the children in the American orphanages were killed, and only a few were injured. The earthquakes began on October 22nd, shocks continuing with gradually diminishing violence for more than three weeks. During this period, the number of shocks averaged five per day. It is now believed that the worst is over, although slight tremors will no doubt recur from time to time for several months.

Already, in the midst of severe winter weather, the children of the American orphan city are beginning to repair the damage to their buildings. Funds that Pennsylvania school children will raise this year will go for repairing the earthquake damage and caring for children made homeless in this great catastrophe.

Uncle Tom's Cabin Coming.

The Mason Bros. "Uncle Tom's Cabin" will appear at the Moose theatre on Monday, November 29th, matinee and night. No play ever written is better known in all parts of the United States to all classes of people than "Uncle Tom's Cabin," not even the plays of the immortal Shakespeare, for the play of slavery has been given in every village and hamlet in this broad country, and it has been estimated that it is being played somewhere in this land of ours on every day in the year. Mason Bros. have given it a handsome mounting, and as played by their company, the play leaves nothing to be desired, either in scenery or players. A large company of negroes are with the company and will be seen in plantation pastimes and festivities.

The role of Uncle Tom is in the hands of Frank Finney. The company is a large one numbering thirty people, six Siberian bloodhounds and a car of special scenery. Prices, matinee, 15 and 50 cents; night, 35, 50 and 75 cents.

A class of fourteen new members was confirmed in St. John's Episcopal church, Bellefonte, on Sunday, by Bishop J. H. Darlington, of Harrisburg.

PRISONER PREFERS DEATH TO LIFE IN PENITENTIARY.

Climbs 150 Foot Smokestack and Plunges Head First Down the Inside of It.

Preferring death to life in the penitentiary Nick Rost, a Washington county prisoner at Rockview, climbed the iron ladder to the top of the big smokestack at the heating plant of the new cell block, on Friday evening, then plunged down head first on the inside of it where his dead body was found on Saturday afternoon. The smokestack is 150 feet in height but the man's entire fall down to the clean-out door back of the boilers would be about 170 feet.

Rost, a native of Austria, was sent up from Washington county for two and a half to five years for voluntary manslaughter. His short term was up on October 26th, but he was being held for a portion of his maximum term. He was present at the supper-time roll call on Friday evening but when the final check in was made at nine o'clock that night he could not be found. Naturally the thought occurred to prison officials that he had made his escape and the detail of state police in Bellefonte was notified and penitentiary guards dispatched to various points on a search for the man.

On Saturday morning a thorough investigation was made to ascertain, if possible, how the man got away but not a clue could be discovered. There wasn't a cut in the wire stockade and it didn't seem possible that he could climb over the twelve foot barbed wire enclosure, so that considerable mystery surrounded his disappearance. The mystery was intensified on Saturday forenoon when a fellow prisoner informed deputy warden McFarland that Nick had declared to him that he "would kill himself." Search around the prison grounds, however, failed to reveal Rost, either dead or alive.

And the mystery of his disappearance went unsolved until after two o'clock on Saturday afternoon. The fireman at the heating plant was annoyed because of a poor draft on the fire under his boilers. Going to the rear of the big battery of boilers he opened the cleanout door under the big smokestack and was horrified to find the body of a man in a crouched position, head downward. Prison officials were promptly notified and the body removed from the stack, and it was then discovered that it was the body of the missing prisoner. He had evidently climbed up the ladder under cover of darkness and had made his fatal plunge unseen.

Rost was 33 years old and so far as known had no relatives in this country. An inquest was held for the purpose of officially determining the death as suicide, after which the body was buried in the penitentiary cemetery.

Prospective Airmail Bidder Visited Bellefonte Last Week.

E. C. Dickerson, of Chicago, said to be the oldest airplane pilot in the United States and the man who was largely instrumental in organizing the companies which are now carrying airmail from Chicago to Seattle, Wash., and Chicago to New Orleans, was a Bellefonte visitor last Thursday night. He made a flight here from Chicago and on Friday morning continued on to Hadley field, N. J. Mr. Dickerson, it is said, is a prospective bidder for the carrying of the night airmail between New York and Chicago and his purpose in making the flight last week was to obtain first hand knowledge of what pilots are up against in such weather conditions as prevailed on Thursday and Friday.

Mr. Dickerson stated while in Bellefonte that if he decided to put in a bid and was successful in securing the contract, that he would fly his ships over the present course of the night airmail, retaining the landing fields in Bellefonte and at Cleveland and Bryan, Ohio.

Word has reached this office that Aaron C. Kepler, of Ferguson township, has been handsomely remembered in the will of his uncle, the late Aaron C. Kepler, of Lancaster. In fact rumors place his legacy as high as half a million dollars. We hope it's true. We always like to hear of foreign money coming to Centre county and if the potato wizard of Ferguson township gets his hands on half a million he is likely to revolutionize potato growing in that end of the county.

Bellefonte Academy Downed by the Pitt Freshmen.

The strong Bellefonte Academy football team lost its first game of the 1926 season to the Pitt Freshmen, at Lock Haven, on Saturday. Two thousand people saw the game and the general opinion was that the best team won, although some critics were disposed to think that the Academy did not put up its best game. The score was 20 to 0, all the points being made in the first half. In the second half the Academy took a brace and for a time displayed considerable aggressiveness but they were not able to make much progress against the Pitt defense. In the very beginning of the game the Pitt yearlings uncorked a few criss-cross passes that completely outwitted the Bellefonte players, and it was this play that enabled them to score three touchdowns.

It is only fair to the Academy team to say that they couldn't have been caught in worse physical condition anytime during the season than they were on Saturday. Eight of the regular players were handicapped with injuries, some of whom never got into the game and the others played only a small part of the time. Had all the men been in the pink of perfection the story might have been different.

The Academy game booked for Scranton yesterday was cancelled and the final game for the season will be with the Dean Academy, of Boston, Mass., at Williamsport tomorrow.

The Academy has booked a game with Randolph College, at Cisco, Texas, for Christmas day and Mr. Hughes is in correspondence with two other teams, one in southern Texas and one in Oklahoma, for a game on New Year's day; all of which means that the Academy team will get another trip to the south-west during the Holidays.
