The high wind of last Saturday was so terrific down Pennsylvania that it tore a portion of the sheetiron roof off the baggage car on the morning train west on the Lewisburg and Tyrone railroad.

The only candidate voted for in Centre county who had filed his expense account up to the beginning of this week was J. Laird Holmes, re-elected to the Legislature. His expenses were $450 and all bills paid.

The moving of Runkle's drug store from the Bush house block to the Bush Arcade building was completed this week, and it was some job of moving. The store had been located in the Bush house block for more than half a century, having originally been established by the late F. Potts Green.

Deer hunting is now on in full swing but Belleville hunters have no need to hunt for the best motion pictures. Follow the crowd to the scenic and you are sure of seeing the biggest and latest pictures released. Manager Brown has some wonderful films booked for the month of December and the only way to see all the good ones is to be a regular attendant. You'll enjoy the pictures as well as the music of that wonderful pipe organ.

John E. McGinness, former agent for the Tri-State Oil company, in Phillipsburg, was arrested in Philadelphia, last week, on charges of embezzlement and forgery, growing out of the alleged misappropriation of funds of the company and endorsing checks without authority while he was agent at Phillipsburg. Dr. Bright was unmarried and his remains were buried in Philadelphia.

THE DEER SLAUGHTER IS ON IN FULL SWING.

Hundreds of Hunters Invade Centre County and Many Bucks Hanging Up.

By railroad, by motor truck and by automobile hundreds of hunters from all sections of the State, and some from New York and Ohio, invaded Centre county on Monday and Tuesday. While the advance guard came in on Monday the big inrush did not take place until Tuesday. That morning just 144 hunters from the eastern section of the State came up on the Lewisburg and Tyrone from Sunbury, all bound for their permanent camps in the Seven mountains. In addition to those who came into the county by automobile from the western section of the State fifty or more detrained from the Pennsylvania-Lehigh on Tuesday afternoon and left on the Lewisburg for the Seven mountain territory.

Of course the above does not include any of the army of hunters in Centre county. With upwards of six thousand hunters' licenses granted in this county it is a conservative conclusion that sixty per cent. of the holders, or between 3,500 and 4,000 men, are out on the trail, so it can readily be seen that the poor deer has little chance of escape. Driven from the fastnesses of one mountain if he is successful in breaking through the cordon of watchers he runs right into another gang of hunters and the margin of escape is big odds against him.

While it is too early in the season to give any definite report of the first days kill, it is quite possible that a hundred bucks are now hanging up at the various camps in the Seven mountains. The first day's kill averages high, because the deer have not yet become frightened and do not exercise the caution they exert after being chased hither and yon for several days. By next week it will be possible to tell a more complete story of the number of deer slain.

In the meantime it is quite probable that one hundred or more bucks have their heels in the air and their horns on the ground as the result of the first two days of the hunting season in the Seven mountains alone. John Night-hart, of Belleville, and Hugh Daley, of Philadelphia, motored over to Pot- ters Mills before daylight, Wednesday morning, and joined a party of day hunters from that section. They hunted on the first mountain west towards Boalsburg and got two bucks before dinner.

An unknown hunter passed through Belleville about nine o'clock on Wednesday morning with a nice buck strapped onto the running board of his automobile. He had gone over to the Seven mountain district early that morning, shot his buck and was taking him home that early in the morning.

ALBINO BUCK SHOT.
The McMullen-Yarnell hunting party, over in little Sargar valley, not two deer the first day, and one of them was a pure white buck which they estimated would weigh 225 pounds. This is probably the big buck that has been seen the past three or four years in Greenvalley and Little Sugar, and which quite a number of hunters have been trying to bag.

E. C. Musser, Sr., of Pine Grove Mills, was in town on Wednesday and stated that a fifteen year old boy of that section, William Corl, went up on Tussey mountain bright and early Wednesday morning, bagged a three point buck and had it home before eight o'clock. He also said that shortly before noon an auto party of hunters passed through Pine Grove Mills on their way west with two bucks strapped on their machine. They had been to the mountain, made their kill and were on their way home with the venison.

A RHUMATIC ALIBI.
Of course in the big massacre of bucks that took place it was only to be expected that a few does would fall before the deadly aim of the over anxious hunter, but George Spotts, of near Julian, killed a doe and gives his rheumatism as an alibi. Mr. Spotts' two sons and several other hunters in that locality went out to their camp in the foot-hills of the Alleghenies on Tuesday to be ready for an early drive on Wednesday morning. Mr. Spotts did not go out until Wednesday morning and as he neared the hunting ground the other men were already making a drive. Just as he reached an old road he heard several shots just below him and a few seconds later he saw a big buck cross the road into the underbrush. The buck turned and came out again and Mr. Spotts threw his gun to his shoulder but just then he had a rheumatic twinge and was a little slow in pulling the trigger, with the result that he missed the buck but shot down a small doe following close behind. Mr. Spotts brought the doe to Belleville and reported the incident to game protector Thomas G. Mosier.

In addition to the Corl boy others in the Pine Grove Mills section who got deer were Charles Harpster, of the Glades, Wilbur Heffner, a three pronged animal, while Harry McCracken bagged a beauty on his way into camp, which was probably the first buck killed in that section.

Almost the entire male force of the Keystone Power corporation went over to the Seven mountains for the opening day and Paul Miller was the one successful shot, bringing down an eight pronged buck.

From reports reaching this office yesterday the people of Pleasant Gap will be feasting on venison for some time to come. The regular Pleasant Gap hunting club hung up three as the result of their first day's hunt in the Seven mountains but those who went on the trail almost at their back doors did equally as well. Ammon Kerstetter, one of the veteran hunters of that locality, went out onto Nittany mountain with the Sankey brothers, of Pittsburgh, and Ammon got his buck, shooting near the Sand spring.

Other Pleasant Gap hunters who went on the trail over in Greensvalley got three on Wednesday, the lucky shots being William Bilger, Henry Knoffsinger and fourteen-year-old Evan Bilger.

Charles Snyder, of Altoona, motored down Nittany valley and went onto Nittany mountain near the Centre-Clinton county line where he bagged a 265 pound buck and was back in Altoona by noontime.

Centre Hall hunters over at the Sunset club on the Seven mountains got three the first day, while hunters from the same town who went up on Nittany mountain bagged three, one of them a monster five point animal.

The Milesburg hunting club, over in the Seven mountains, hung up three on the first day of the hunt.

Over back of Colyer four deer were seen hanging up at one camp as the result of the first day's hunt, while two and three deer hanging up was an ordinary sight.

WOODWARD CAMP SHOT TOO MANY.
The Woodward Rod and Gun club, with which editor Harter is hunting, shot four yesterday morning and as they got three on Wednesday they are now in trouble because they bagged one more than the limit.

The Roaring Run club, with which the Rev. Homer C. Knox is hunting, got three on Wednesday, and we suppose when the pastor returns home he'll be roarin' more than ever.

HUNTER BURNED TO DEATH.
Up to this time no accidents of any kind have been reported in Centre county but from Clearfield county comes a report of the burning to death of Robert Bell, aged 19, when the hunting camp of the Bald Hill Hunting club, in Girard township, was burned to the ground on Wednesday morning.

There were nine men in the cabin and all were in bed when they were aroused about 2 o'clock by the flames, which had climbed to their sleeping quarters on the second floor. The cabin was burning so fiercely that all had to jump from upper windows to save their lives. When young Bell failed to appear the men made heroic efforts to reach him, but could not on account of the intense heat. Later the charred body was found among the ashes of the camp.

From Cambria county comes a report that in default of payment of fines and costs, aggregating $515, for killing of a fawn doe, Ralph Edmiston, 37, a miner of Blandburg, was committed to the county jail at Ebensburg, on Wednesday, to undergo 515 days' imprisonment. Edmiston pleaded guilty to five different charges growing out of his illegal deer-killing.

Mothers' Assistance Meeting in Belleville Today.

Trustees and workers of the Mothers' Assistance Fund from seventeen central counties of the State will meet in Belleville today in the grand jury room in the court house.

The meeting has been called by Miss Mary F. Bogue, State supervisor of the Mothers' Assistance Fund, and will be the sixth of a series of inter-county conferences held during the past year in different parts of the State.

Reports of the work being done in the counties represented and legislative plans for the coming year will be the main topics for discussion. Arthur Dunham, secretary of the child welfare division of the Public Charities Association of Pennsylvania, will be present and will discuss the State-wide educational and legislative campaign being undertaken by that organization in the interest of securing an adequate appropriation from the State for the Mothers' Assistance Fund for the next two years.

Mrs. Lella C. Gardner, president of the Centre county board of trustees, is making arrangements for the luncheon to be served the delegates at the Brockerhoff hotel at noon. The meeting will convene at ten o'clock this morning and will continue until about three-thirty this afternoon.

The counties which will be represented are Centre, Clinton, Clearfield, Columbia, Cambria, Blair, Jefferson, Indiana, Huntingdon, Juniata, Union, Lycoming, Northumberland, Potter, McKean, Montour and Tioga.

Miss Mary Saylor has secured an apartment in the Benner property, on the southwest corner of the Diamond, and is making arrangements to move there in the near future from her present location in the Bush Arcade. The rooms she now occupies will be taken by the Bell Telephone company, as they are overcrowded in their present quarters and have been anxious to secure the additional space.

The Rosenhoover bread which when on the market in Belleville has always been considered as the best to be had, will again be offered for sale next week. Mr. Rosenhoover has had an oven built on Pike alley and a sales room adjoining it, from where the bread will be marketed by a bread truck, which will serve the entire town.

Christmas Cards.

We have three very fine lines of Christmas Cards which we would be pleased to have you call and see.

They can be had in lots from 25 up, either engraved, embossed, printed or blank, so that you can write your own greeting and give it a bit more of the personal touch.

Two of the lines are from the most exclusive makers of Christmas Cards in America. The other includes cards less expensive but just as useful in carrying your greeting—for, after all—is the fact that you thought of your friend at the Christmas Season that counts—not the price of the card that carries your thought.

Come in and see our Cards. They are all attractive. We will not sell them, however, in assorted lots or accept orders for less than 25.

$47,000 in Christmas Savings Funds to Go Out this Week.

The Belleville banks will this week send out checks to their Christmas savings fund depositors to an approximate amount of $47,000. The checks will run from fifty dollars up and will come in nice to the lucky depositors who have saved during the year in order that they may have money to spend for Christmas.

The First National bank will send out checks tomorrow to an aggregate amount of $15,000, to its various savings fund depositors, and the Belleville Trust company will also send out this week a total of $32,000 to 451 depositors. The distribution of this amount of money among the people of Belleville and vicinity will doubtless result in increased holiday trade to the merchants of Belleville, though it is hardly likely that all of the money will be spent for Christmas gifts. A certain per cent. of it will doubtless be returned to the banks in permanent savings accounts.

For mother, let the gift be worthy of your thoughts of her. Solid mahogany Martha Washington serving tables, Windsor chairs, spinnet desks, tea wagons, gate-leg tables and easy rockers at W. R. Brackbill's.

Centre County Supervisors will Meet in Court House Next Tuesday.

The annual meeting of the Centre County Supervisors' association will be held in the court house, Belleville, on Tuesday, December 7th, in conjunction with officials of the State Highway Department. The meeting will convene at 10 o'clock a. m., and sessions will be held in the morning and afternoon. The late Harry P. Austin, until his death a member of the board of County Commissioners, was president of the association and until a permanent organization is perfected the secretary, Harry Breon, will likely preside.

The purpose of the convention is to discuss the township road problems and to devise ways and means to advance the improvement of township highways. The Department of Highways will be represented at the meeting by N. A. Staples district engineer, and F. W. Curtis, assistant engineer, of Belleville, and C. D. Felton, district engineer, of Harrisburg.

Polecats Prowling for Chickens on Willowbank Street.

On Sunday morning Peter Keichline was aroused by an unusual fuss among his chickens and hastening out to the hen house he surprised a large polecat in its endeavors to capture a chicken for its Sunday dinner. Keeping at a respectable distance Mr. Keichline was able to frighten the animal away.

As evidence that this was not a stray skunk that had wandered into town is the fact that other residents in that locality have had similar experiences, but have been more successful in putting a stop to the raids as three half grown skunks have already been killed in that locality. It is quite likely that a whole family of skunks lived within commuting distance of Willowbank street and the young ones have now been killed and it was probably papa or mamma that visited the Keichline hen house on Sunday morning.

For Dad or Jack we have twenty-eight different styles of smoker's cabinets. An easy rocking chair and foot-stool, a reading lamp or a Globe-Wernicke book case. W. R. Brackbill's furniture store.

American Company Erects Lime Bunkers in Record Time.

The Warner-American News, a publication of the American Lime and Stone Co., is authority for the statement that a new concrete pebble lime bunker has just been completed at Plant 19 of the Company, in this place, in record time.

The excavation for the bunker was started on September 27, the concrete pouring began Oct. 25 and continued night and day until Nov. 1, when it was finished.

This bunker stands beside one of the same kind built last year and will hold approximately twenty-four hundred tons of lime. Lime will be conducted to the new storage bin on a conveyor that passes over the top of its companion bunker and another conveyor in a tunnel underneath it will carry the lime back to the general elevator used for loading.
