Great English Actor

Vagrant by Instinct

Miss Tidswell, the kindly benefactor of the youthful Edmund Kean, taught him to recite, and read Shakespeare to him. But even kindness and comfort could not ease his hectic spirit. Occasionally he would break his bonds and run away to sleep in barns, to haunt wayside inns-imitating imps and apes, tumbling, dancing, reciting, and singing for his bread and butter.

That Miss Tidswell locked him in his bedroom with his schoolbooks made but Little difference; he would wriggle down the water pipe at his window to wander for days, restless and uncontrollable as an alley cat. Even the device of welding on his neck a brass collar inscribed "This boy belongs to Number 9 Leicester square. Please send him home," had no effect; covering the fetter with his kerchief he defied detection and was happy.

The poor little devil was used to shackles; when he was scarce more than a baby his reprobate father, deciding that Edmund's scandalously bowed legs should be straightened. clamped them into iron braces and in this state of torture sent him to lodge with some humble acquaintance in Soho-a Mr. and Mrs. Duncan. Playing the grand inquisitor did not greatly appeal to Mr. Duncan. It disturbed his slumbers after his "four ale" at the neighborhood pub. He complained: "He used to sleep with me and my wife in his irons, and they hurt us."

Live Comfortably in Canadian Sod Houses

The traveler in the Canadian provinces of Saskatchewan and Alberta is astonished at the great number of sod houses scattered throughout the prairie farming district. These do not occur in the vicinity of the towns, but are out about ten miles or more. One might suppose that such rude structures were the result of poverty. On the contrary, the sod houses denote advancing prosperity.

When the homesteader takes up a section of wheat land in western Canada he plants his crop at the earliest possible moment in order that he may not miss a harvest. Often he is occupled to such an extent with these agricultural operations that he neglects his dwelling house and hurriedly throws together a rude makeshift of sod. Even though it were desired to erect a frame house, this could be done only with great difficulty because of the scarcity of lumber. It is far better to live in temporary quarters until the railroad pushes out into that territory and brings the comforts of civilization. However, these sod houses are by no means uncomfortable, for they are wonderfully cool in summer and correspondingly warm in

St. Denis

St. Denis, the patron saint of France, especially during the cen turies of the old monarchy, is known in history as Dionysius, the first bishop of Paris. In the year 270 he and his companions suffered martyrdom. The bishop's body was buried at a spot about five miles north of Paris Somewhat later a chapel was built over the grave and it was a place for pilgrimages during the Fifth and Sixth centuries. In the year 630 King Dagobert built an abbey there, and later buildings of like kind still stand there. One is occupied by a school for daughters of members of the Legion of Honor, founded by Napoleon I. A town grew up about the spot, known then as now as St. Denis. Once It was held to be the military key of Paris. Today it is an industrial place with a population of 65,000.

Character in Making

Some writers assert that character is formed in the days of childhood. says the Los Angeles Times. They ailege that in infancy the habits of age are formed. If the kid throws mud he is going to be a politician. If he likes to play with dolls he is going to be a movie actor. If he fights with all the other boys in the block he will be a lawyer. If he robs birds' nests he is going to be a promoter. So the argument might go. As a matter of the kindergarten stage. It does not develop until the contacts of life in school, college and business begin to

Far From Perfect

"Why don't you call me a donkey and have done with it? You've hinted at it long enough," said the henpecked husband.

"It wouldn't be quite true," Mrs.

Meek replied. "I suppose not. I haven't ears long enough for that animal," he retorted. sarcastically.

"Oh, yes, you have," she returned. "You don't need longer sweetly.

"What do I need, then?" "Two more legs and a better voice."

Spread of Leprosy America was discovered about the time that leprosy was widespread in Europe and there is evidence that the earliest emigrants from Portugal and Spain carried leprosy with them. Montava states that the first cases in Columbia were all in Spaniards as early as 1543. The African slave trade was a more important factor, however, in spreading leprosy in the western hemisphere, 1,300,000 slaves having beer carried to Central America by the end of the Sixteenth century.

Uselessness of War

Proved by Voltaire

One of Voltaire's most popular books, his history of Charles XII, is devoted to a practical proof of the utter folly of war. The life of Charles XII of Sweden is an example without equal of the colossal futility of war. Charles, one of the world's most inspiring examples of a capable, indefatigable ruler, in a life of self-denial, had but one fault. He spent his entire life making war. Starting his career at the age of eighteen with the successful defense of his kingdom against the combined forces of several of the greatest countries of Europe, within a comparatively short time he was complete dictator of eastern Europe. Many times he overwhelmed forces outnumbering his own five or ten to one. Crowning and dethroning kings almost at will, his aims were usually altruistic. He sought always to be impartial and just. He undertook no offensive war with the intention of bettering himself or his country. Yet when he died he had done no lasting good. He had irreparably impoverished his own and other countries, and had wasted his great life, which might have been so productive of good to the world. In telling this most significant story Voltaire impressed upon the world the terrifying uselessness of the thing he so hated-war.-From "The Young Voltaire," by C. B. Chase,

Small Change of No Interest to Royalty

Louis Philippe of Bourbon, the French pretender, had a royal way of shopping. When the World war was et its height, he stalked into an expensive boot shop in London and orlered a dozen pairs of boots and shoes. The bootmaker wanted to suggest something on account, as the man was a stranger, but his remark that :he bill would run to about $250 met with no response. So his wife tactfully asked for some money toward the cost of buying leather. The stranger pulled out a thick roll of treasury notes and handed it over. A week later he returned and "t ied n." The result was satisfactory and the bootmaker inquired as to where o send the order. "You may consign it to the king of rance," he replied, and named his aotel. The order was delivered by nessenger with a flowery letter in French, in which was enclosed $22.50, epresenting the amount overpaid. A ley or two later a secretary appeared it the shop with the news that the ring was incensed at the refund, addng affably that it would have been all the same if the balance had been on the other side.-Manchester Guard-

The Blue Danube

Iron Gates the speed of the current is from 12 to 16 feet per second-and the British monitor the Glowworm got stymied halfway up it, couldn't go ither forward or astern, and had to hold down her valves to get a high enough head of steam to struggle out of it. It was a question whether she would go up or blew up.

It takes a special towing steamer, pulling itself up on a cable from one and one-half to two hours, to go up this two-kilometer stretch. The Germans used locomotives to flow ships through it during the war. Down below Orsova these dreaded Iron Gates are not one-half so sticky as the sixtyfive miles of rapids and submerged ledges below Drencova. As a matter of fact, the "Schachlet" by Vilshofen is one of the nastiest parts of the river.-Negley Farson in Adventure Magazine.

Pure Air on Market

in Amsterdam, Holland, the municipal electric light works sell air to cititens. This seems an odd by-product of the electric industry until it is considered that the electric ozonation process is one of the most effective means of purifying air just as lightning "freshens" a dank and humid atmosphere, stimulating those who breathe it. The Dutch air is drawn down through a chimney 100 feet high, purified and dried by electricity and compressed into cylinders like those used for soda fountain gas in America. fact very little character is formed in These are sold to homes in the city on an annual contract basis, for about $24 a year. Slow release of the air in bedrooms of people afflicted with asthma is said to bring relief to the sufferers.

Slitting Parrot's Tongue

"It is a widespread superstition that to enable a parrot to talk (in imitation of human speech) it is necessary to split the tongue," says Alexander Wetmore in the Scientific Magazine. "This, however, has no foundation in fact, and when practiced only inflicts an unnecessary cruelty. Birds make sounds in a little organ known as the syrinx at the lower end of the trachea or windpipe, and as the tongue has little to do with the process, splitting it has no connection whatever with the ability to imitate sounds."

A "Show Me" Boy Bobby had his mother's best bread knife out in the yard, where he had been trying to cut bricks. His mother found him at the job and asked him: "How in the world do you expect mother to cut bread with that knife when you get through?"

"I don't know, mother. Show me now," came back Bobby, who handed the knife back to the fond parent .-Columbus Dispatch.

GETTING UP NIGHTS

For Bladder Relief is Nature's Danger Signal. Columbus Minister's Wife Re-

Signal. Columbus Minister's Wife Relates Experience.

Rev. W. H. Mitchell, 824 No. Park St., Columbus, Ohio says: "My wife was troubled seriously with bladder irritation until we used lithiated buchu (Keller Formula). She would have to get up 6 to 8 times each night. Will gladly answer any letter."

Lithiated Buchu acts on the bladder as epson salts on the bowels. Drives out foreign matter and decreases excessive acidity, thereby relieving irritation. The tablets cost 2c each at all drug stores. Keller Laboratory, Mechanicsburg, Ohio. Locally at C. M. Parrish's Drug Store.
