A great drama of the Canadian wheat fields, where a shift in the wind means the difference between wealth and ruin. Illusion Often Lost

by Personal Contact

The best authors should be read, not known. Even if a poet has written an epic, one hour's association with him may destroy the most idolatrous reader's illusion of him.

Your favorite humorist may turn out to be an ordinary person, dull in the use of the spoken word. Or what you believe to be the greatest living novelist may prove to be a little peevish man whose false teeth do not fit, made intolerant by nervous indigestion or egotism.

In any case, says Corra Harris in the Saturday Evening Post, some writer whom you have admired for his high notes in the purpling shadows of a great poem is almost sure to give vent to some meanly critical views of men quite contrary to the noble sentiments he bugled in that martial epistle, because he was in a divine mood when he wrote it, and the thing merely interprets his mood, not his normal mind, which may be a mean little snail.

Early Altars Ablaze

With Human Sacrifices

Throughout the ages man has made human sacrifices whenever they were under adversity and felt that the gods were athirst. H. G. Wells paints a graphic picture of a scene that may have occurred in the dawn of a prehistoric day about the vast stone altars on the Wiltshire uplands at Stonehenge, in England—the Druid priests with horribly painted masks, the air of festivity among the people who have come wearing their very best skin garments for the occasion and the helpless victims gazing toward the distant smoking altars upon which they are to die.

As time went on, the practice of human sacrifice became more elaborate. The reasons and occasions for human sacrifice were codified. The most civilized races decided that an entire community might be cleansed of an epidemic or saved from other calamity by this barbarous means.

Seek Synthetic Rubber

The Amazon district of Brazil is the great rubber-producing country of the world, for more than half of the total supply comes from there. The federated Malay states, the Congo region, Portuguese West Africa, the east coast of tropical Africa, Rangoon, Penang, Borneo and Mexico, the West Indies and Central America are the other rubber-producing districts. About one-tenth of the total yield comes from the Congo.

The rapidly increasing cost of the article has aroused experimenters who have produced substances that have some of the qualities of rubber. It is not improbable that they may ultimately succeed, as the chemists did in producing artificial indigo, in making real rubber by synthesis.

Columbus Promised Much

In a letter to Columbus on the discovery of America, facsimile edition, 1892, of the four Latin editions belonging to the Lenox library, is the following passage: "Finally, that I may compress in a few words the brief account of our departure and quick return, and the gain, I promise this, that if I am supported by our most invincible sovereigns with a little of their help, as much gold can be supplied as they will need, indeed, as much of spices, of cotton, of chewing gum (which is only found in Chios), also as much of alewood, and as many slaves for the navy of their majesties will wish to demand." The date of this letter is March 14, 1493—more than 400 years ago.

Precocious Children

Dante wrote a sonnet to his Beatrice at nine years; Tasso wrote poetry at ten, and Pascal was a profound thinker at the age of thirteen. Jonathan Edwards was famous at twelve. Goethe wrote a story in seven languages when he was ten; Voltaire was busy as a writer at thirteen, and Calderon was writing poetry at the same age.

Victor Hugo composed "Istamene" at fifteen, and by the time he was twenty had published four of his volumes. Pope wrote his ode to "Solitude" at twelve, and his "Pastorals" four years later. Moore translated "Anacreon" at thirteen, and Byron was already writing verses at twelve, and by the time he was eighteen years of age he had published his "Hours of Idleness."

Easy to Fix Clock

A commercial traveler staying at a small hotel wished to catch an early morning train, and asked the proprietress for the loan of an alarm clock.

She produced the clock and remarked: "We don't often use it, sir, and sometimes it sticks a bit, but if it doesn't go off just touch the little hammer and it'll ring all right."—London Tit-Bits.

Alcohol in the Seas

The ancient seas were huge alcohol wells. The primeval ocean, with its huge masses of sugar-containing seaweed, was a fermentation vat. So says a Berlin scientist, Professor Lindner. These immense alcoholic seas stimulated delicate forms of early life, he explains, and adds that the plants today which produce sugar, later to be converted into alcohol, are marked by their splendid coloration and intricate structure.

Chicken.

The minister and his bride were preparing to eat a bite at a luncheonette. They were busily engaged with the bill of fare when the waitress, who was a much calmed and peroxidized young miss, came up to take their order. Suddenly the young minister looked up from the bill of fare, smiled sweetly at the waitress, and said: "How is the chicken to-day?" "Pretty good, kid," she retorted, "How are you?" —Exchange.
