Judge Johnson in Conference With Litigants in the Centre County

Bank Case.

Hon. Albert W. Johnson, Judge of the Federal court for the middle district of Pennsylvania, spent last Saturday afternoon in Bellefonte in conference with attorneys and other representatives of parties interested in the Centre County bank case litiga-

Judge Johnson came not to hold court here. His visit was entirely unofficial, made with a view of acquiring more intimate knowledge of the involved affair and with the probable hope that out of such a meeting of the parties in interest might come some plan by which the problem could be solved without further costly litigation.

The conference was held in the law library of the court house. Among last week, the second given in Janu- those present were Rev. Reed O. Steely, John S. Ginter and John S. Dale, receivers of the bank; Ivan Walker Esq., trustee in bankruptcy for Mary C. Harris and the late John M. Shugert; Col. W. F. Reynolds, Robert F. Hunter, Fred Herman. Howard Holzworth, and John Mitchell. representing the creditor's committee; N. B. Spangler Esq., counsel for the committee; Hon. Arthur C. Dale, counsel for the receivers; S. D. Gettig Esq., counsel for Mrs. Harris and the Shugert estate; Hon. Ellis L. Orvis, counsel for George R. Meek, Florence F. Dale and Andrew Breese; John G. Love, counsel for George A. Beezer and Geo. H. Yarnell, petitioners in the new proceeding, and T. H. Harter, editor of the Gazette. The situation was discussed generally by the attorneys interested, with some comments and interrogations by several of the laymen. There was rancor, few pleasantries and an atmosphere so surcharged with personal animosities that nothing but a miracle could have brought anything very helpful out of it. Judge Johnson listened with his customary patience and courtesy until everybody who had anything to say had gotten through, then Mr. Spangler made the proposal that all of the points in controversy between all of the litigants be submitted to Judge Johnson for final adjudication.. And that all parties waive all their rights of appeal from his final finding.

Thereupon Judge Johnson suggested that an agreement to that effect be drawn up, signed by all the parties and forwarded to him. Then he asked the various attorneys whether they would agree to such a proposal. All of them answered in the affirmative but Judge Orvis who said that because of the fact that none of his clients were in the conference he had no way of much inconvenience and sailed from of the public building, on east Howard knowing their wishes in the matter there last week. street, is now being improved with new and was not justified in binding them paper, a new coat of paint and varnish, to a proposal they had no knowledge and when borough council convenes of. Judge Johnson then asked him if Treaster, of Lamar, was he would advise them to sign and he answered in the affirmative.

That is in substance about all there was to the meeting.

It was brought out, however, that the attorney for the creditor's committee is doubtful of the profit of pressing the suit against Florence F. Dale or Andrew Breese any further. Both of them are out of the State and nobody seems to know just where a home on Thursday evening, February sides, what they have to prey upon is process server might find them. Beprobably far less than "the fee bill" would permit the lawyers to charge the creditors for doing the preying.

Another interesting development was the virtual admission that in the nearly five years that have elapsed since the closing of the bank the creditors committee has apparently been so interested in chasing questionable gold mines-two of which seem now to be admittedly "salted" that they of the church. The public is invited had nothing to report as to the $75,-000.00 in stock of the Whiterock Quarries that the late Thomas A. Shoemaker assigned to the Centre County Banking Company. Which stock belongs to its creditors. Col. Reynolds is chairman of the creditor's committee and Col. Reynolds is president of Whiterock Quarries and Col. Reynolds was present at the conference.

> It would seem then that the only person the creditors committee is really after is Geo. R. Meek. What certain of them are after him for will, no doubt, be explained in due time. One of it's blatant members, four years ago, broadcasted the deceiving news that Mr. Meek's holdings in the White-Dugan Coal Co., would amount to a large per cent. to the creditors of the bank. Today Mr. Meek's holdings amount to exactly as much as they ized to say that he, without admitting any liability to the creditors of the bank, will present these holdings to the gentleman if he can convert them in to 1% for the benefit of the credit-

Mr. Meek has also authorized us to say that no matter what the advice of his counsel might be in the matter of subscribing to the proposal made by Mr. Spangler at the conference on Saturday he will not sign any agreement to waive his legal rights in a controversy where unknowing creditors are being exploited by those who seem to be interested more in gratifying personal animosities than serving

Of course there will be another great hue and cry that "Meek is holdand over-stuffed furniture who broadinto the hands of a few machiavelian spirits who want it.

For nearly five years Mr. Meek has Many Motor Accidents Caused by Icy been the red-herring they have drawn across the trail to throw the creditors off the scent of their real interests in this case. Years have been wasted and thousands of dollars in chasing three people. Two of them have apparently turned out to be "deaf nuts." If the third is finally shaken down the creditors are going to find that it is far "deafer" than they have been led to believe.

-Several hundred Kansas rabbits | be have been shipped into Bellefonte during the past month for release in the wooded sections of Centre county, and if they all live and multiply as rabbits usually do there ought to be a good crop of cottontails for the hunters next fall. Coming from Kansas the rabbits ought to be a sober, industrious breed.

-The groundhog may think he controls the weather but he has nothing to do with the Scenic. It will be open every night in the week with big programs of the best motion pictures made in America. Streets.

The unusual condition of the streets in Bellefonte last Friday and Saturday made the operation of motor vehicles a very hazardous matter.

The snow had all melted leaving an underlying coat of ice exposed and the rain of Friday night had washed that clean of all grit that had accumulated Mrs. Warfield since that time, at her aparton it so that wherever there was ice it was about as treacherous as it could

Early Saturday morning a truck of the Bellefonte Fuel and Supply Co. undertook to deliver a load of coal to a patron on Half Moon hill. It had just started up the hill road at the borough home when the rear wheels began to "churn." The truck slipped backwards, brakes and chains were of slight avail and the load slid back down the hill, across South Potter street and through the fence into the borough home yard. Nothing was damaged but the fence.

A little later in the day another truck of the same company was delivering coal to a home on east Linn St. It became uncontrollable on the ice and slid onto the fire plug in front of the Love property. The plug was broken off and the truck had to be jacked up before it could be gotten back onto the street.

On Friday the City laundry delivery truck was going down Allegheny street, from Logan, and becoming unmanageable slid around so on the ice that one of the rear wheels collapsed. The most serious accident reported was that in which Chas. S. Hughes, of the Academy figured. He was trying to turn his Hudson sedan around on the south approach to the Academy building. There were no chains on the wheels and when he backed out onto the ice covered grass to make the turn the heavy car started slipping down over the campus. Realizing that he couldn't stop it and was helpless Mr. Hughes jumped out. The car slid on down over the hill and dropped over a seven foot retaining wall at the rear of Miss Olive Mitchell's home. The area way was not wide enough for it to fall clear down so it landed with the rear end jammed against the side of the Mitchell house and the front critical. up on the wall.

It was necessary to remove the two posts supporting the roof of the backporch before the car could be gotten out. The left side and top of the car were completely ruined.

Brick are now being manufactured by the Red Hart Brick Company and large stocks will be ready for the local market in the course of a few weeks.

The Groundhog Sure Did See His Shadow.

There will be no "ifs" and "ans" about it this year. The groundhog had boundless opportunity to see his shadow on Wednesday, and now, according to old tradition, back he goes to his burrow deep in the ground for another six weeks snooze. We have no protest to make against his hogship sleeping all summer, if he wants to, but if we were superstitious enough to believe that his seeing his shadow had any influence on the weather, and we are in for six more weeks of frigid atmosphere, we would register a kick. But the learned weather prognosticators have given assurance that the groundhog has nothing to do with making the weather; and their predictions are at least as good as the groundhogs. They said it would be cloudy and rain on Wednesday and it wasn't the one and didn't do the other, weeks of winter weather, we refer you to the calendar, which says that winter ends on March 21st, which is al-

State College Student Dies in Clearfield Hospital.

Last Friday a call was sent from State College to Tyrone for an ambulance to convey a student to the Clearfield hospital. The Tyrone ambulance, several months or while convalescing from which was regarded in fair condition, was sent to the College and the student taken aboard. The trip was gone to Lancaster to enter a business col- made without incident until the ambulance reached Bigler, Clearf ty, where one of the rear tires bursted. Another vehicle was secured to convey the student, who was Stanley Kramer, of Reading, the remainder of the trip to Clearfield. On it's trip back to Tyrone the ambulance was badly wrecked.

Kramer, who was only 17 years old, was suffering from an infection of the nose and throat and the disease had so far advanced that he was beyond medical aid and he passed away on Saturday evening. The remains were shipped to Reading on Sunday.
