bills were introduced in the Senate on Wednesday and it is presumed that with the combined strength of the administration and the State oragnization back of them they will be passed. While not so far reaching as many had hoped they would be they are, nevertheless, a long step in the right direction. The three principal features are the power to open ballot boxes upon petition of any five electors of a county, the restrictions as to assistance to voters and the limitations of money to be spent on primary campaigns.

-An Italian aviator has made a non-stop flight across the Atlantic. He took off from the Cape Veide Islands and reached the coast of Brazil, his destination, but could not make a landing there because of high seas. This forced him to return to the island of Fernando Noronha, two hundred and seventy miles off the Brazilian coast. Just another step toward the time when non-stop flights across the ocean will be as common as those on the trans-continental air mail route today .

-In Philadelphia they used the water to flush the snow off many of the streets. While it was soft and slushy on Monday and Tuesday the fire department turned out and was very successful in reducing the snow to water washing it into the sewers. That might be worth trying in certain sections of Bellefonte.
