A VISIT TO THE HOSPITAL.

"I have been so short sighted that I never realized before what a real blessing it is to our Community."

Her clear, blue eyes grew a shade brighter and a faint smile mingled with pain crept across her features as she watched immaculate nurses, clad in white and blue uniforms, slipping in and out among the beds, bearing trays of tempting viands, or carefully taking temperatures and recording their messages of good or evil for the guidance of the physicians.

"My only regret is that when I had good health I failed to do so many things I could have done to make it better," she said sighingly. "If the people of Centre county could see what I have seen during my illness, their hospital would not want for any good thing, I am sure."

For the life of me, I could not understand why she was so self accusing; for I remembered her many humane activities and enthusiastic service in the Ladies Auxiliary; but I mildly assented with the comment that we had all been very negligent and could probably appreciate the benefits of the hospital better if we were compelled to partake of them personally.

My mind ran hastily over the early history of the institution when Bellefonte caught the vision of the great need for a community hospital, and made the modest little beginning in a building which the late Dr. R. G. H. Hayes gave free of charge. It was at the rear of his home on Spring street and had been used by him as a private sanatorium. The experiment soon proved the need, for patients came so fast that more room was needed and at the end of a year after untold labor and sacrifice the McKee property, revamping the old house installing a few beds, organizing a medical staff; a little later securing funds to build a very creditable brick structure in which the people could secure proper medical treatment. The names of many departed citizens of hallowed memory are still fresh in the minds of our townsmen, such as; Col. William F. Reeder—the first secretary of the board, who until his death was so enthusiastic as to never miss a meeting; also, Dr. R. G. H. Hayes, H. E. Fenlon, A. Lukenbach, Dr. George F. Harris, Frank Clemson, F. W. Crider, Col. James P. Coburn, and other public spirited citizens who have passed to their reward, but who have left us a mighty heritage of which we can be justly proud. Then there are those worthy citizens who still survive, who also have labored many years without remuneration, to make accessible the very best scientific medical treatment for the people of our county. Some of these are; Dr. J. L. Seibert, Dr. M. J. Locke, Dr. David Dale, Dr. John Sebring, George R. Meek, W. Fred Reynolds, W. Harrison Walker, C. C. Shuey, Mrs. M. S. Brouse, Mrs. D. H. Hastings, Mrs. John N. Lane, Miss Mary Blanchard, Mrs. Joseph Ceader, Miss Mary Linn, and many others including the present Board of Trustees, Medical Staff and Ladies Auxiliary.

A quarter of a century has lapsed since that notable little meeting of socially minded citizens back in 1902, for the purpose of devising ways and means to provide a hospital for our community. Tremendous strides have been made in the science of medicine since that day, and all the available facilities and learning have been brought to our very door yard to prolong our lives and to inspire us with confidence that in the time of emergency we will have the best and most modern medical attention. When those men held their first meeting the average span of life was little more than thirty three years—today, by reason of increased medical and surgical skill and the general dissemination of health measures, the average length of man's life is fifty years. Of course, we cannot claim that this improvement is due altogether to advanced hospitalization, but that has contributed its share and is in keeping with all the other prophylactic and therapeutic measures so generally recognized by all awakened communities for the preservation of human life.

It was as far back as 1833 when the scientific discoveries of Pasteur, of France, and Koch, of Germany, started the whole world with the possibilities of disease and prevention and cure by combating the death bearing microbes by means of medication and anti-toxins. Some of us remember distinctly the wave of relief which swept over the world when Emil August Behring announced that he had cured a number of pronounced and seemingly hopeless cases of diphtheria by means of the now famous anti-toxin. That was Christmas of 1891; and since that renowned day millions of lives have been spared. Today, by means of Toxin-Anti-toxin, we have the promise that the diphtheria germ will disappear from the face of the earth.

Our hospital is in complete harmony with such movements as this and through it we and our loved ones profit from numerous inventions, such as the pulmotor, X-ray, Basil-metabolism, and numerous other appliances by means of which many lives are saved.

As I left the hospital that day I took a lingering and admiring look at the splendid equipment in the Pathological laboratory for blood testing, and various kinds of physiological analysis for the purpose of learning the ailments of the patients. I also had a brief but very enlightening conversation with Miss Keck, laboratory technician, and Miss MacLeod, dietitian, finally leaving the institution in much the same mood expressed by my good friend back in the ward. I was heartily ashamed of myself that I had lived in Bellefonte all these years and had lent so little assistance to such a splendid cause. * * * *

Permit Required to Move Cattle Into Tuberculin Tested District.

Under a recent ruling of the director of the bureau of animal industry, State Department of Agriculture, farmers who intend changing their location this spring will have to get a permit if they desire to move untested herds of cattle into a tuberculin tested district. A full explanation of how to go about getting such permit is contained in a circular letter from the bureau, which is as follows:

If tenant or other farmers who are obliged to move their herds into quarantined tuberculin tested townships will file with the Bureau of Animal Industry at Harrisburg, an area application blank (Form A1-19), and will agree to pay the local accredited practicing veterinarian for applying the initial test, also retest of infected herds, the Bureau will promptly authorize the tuberculin testing of such tenant owned herds and will pay indemnity for any cattle that may react.

IT MUST BE DISTINCTLY UNDERSTOOD.

First: That herds must be tuberculin tested before being moved into the quarantined tested townships.

Second: That in order for the tuberculin test to be official the owner to receive State and Federal indemnity the tuberculin test must have been authorized in writing by the Bureau.

Third: That each tenant farmer must file an area application blank (Form A1-19) with the Bureau of Animal Industry at Harrisburg, before the tuberculin test will be authorized by the Bureau.

Fourth: That each owner (tenant farmer) must agree to pay the local accredited practicing veterinarian for his services for applying the initial tuberculin test and retest for infected herds.

Area application blanks may be procured from the Bureau of Animal Industry at Harrisburg, Pa., the Bureau District Agent in charge, any local accredited practicing veterinarian or the County Agent.

Persons who move untested cattle into tuberculin tested quarantined areas will be vigorously prosecuted by the Bureau for violation of the State Quarantine Law.

The Associated Business Men of Bellefonte will give a banquet to the business men and clerks of the town, at the Brockerhoff hotel, on Monday evening, March 14, at 6:30. Frank I. Heisey, president of the retail merchant's association of Philadelphia, will be the speaker of the evening. Every business man in town is invited and at liberty to take one clerk with him. There will be a charge of $1.00 per cover.

BOALSBURG.

Mr. and Mrs. George Mothersbaugh spent Wednesday in Bellefonte.

Mrs. John Horner, who was quite ill with pneumonia last week, is improving.

Mrs. Charles Segner and daughter, Mary and Rachel, spent Wednesday in Bellefonte.

Charles Fisher and son, Charles Jr., of Danville, were visitors in town Friday night.

Miss Daisy Rowe and father spent the week-end at the Harry Kuhn home in Williamsport.

The tavern is again open to the traveling public. Miss Esther Callahan is the landlady.

Twelve pupils of the local High school participated in an oratorical contest on Friday evening. After music by the school choir the following orations were given in a pleasing manner:

- "A Leak in the Dyke," Sarah Bohn.
- "In Return," Jane Ross.
- "Over the Hill to the Poor House," Madeline Folk.
- "The Constitution," Emma Eliza Stuart.
- "Bingen on the Rhine," Catherine Smith.
- "Pirate Rivers and Their Prizes," Elizabeth Mothersbaugh.
- "The Gospel Ship," William McClellan.
- "Critics of Main Street," Margaret Gingrich.
- "Kentucky Belle," Nannie Bell Stuart.
- "The Wizard of Schenectady," John Shuey.
- "Abraham Lincoln," Sarah Ross.
- "Dr. Grenfell," Mildred Jacobs.

The judges, Messrs Heckman, Graves and Spotts, of State College, awarded the prizes to Jane Ross 1st, John Shuey 2nd, and Margaret Gingrich 3rd, with honorable mention for Nannie Bell Stuart. All the contestants acquitted themselves creditably and the program being interspersed with music proved a delightful evening's entertainment to the patrons and friends of the school.
