Is He a Very Resourceful Boy or Just a Clever Fabricator?

The approach of the open season time for fish stories to emerge from hibernation. We have a new one to tell you as

A few days ago warden Tom Mosier was patroling Spring creek and noticed a small boy sitting on the bank fishing. As it is lawful to catch suckers only now and as Spring creek is also a trout stream the warden stopped to give the boy the once over and asked him: "Are you catching any?" The lad replied: "I am now."

Upon being requested to show them a string of five or six fish were pulled up to the surface of the water for an instant and then immersed again. The eagle eye of the warden noticd that one was a nice trout and said to the youthful fisherman: "Boy, one of those fish has spots on it. It is a trout and don't you know you are not allowed to catch trout

"Yes," replied the boy, "I know I'm

"Then why don't you let it go." "Well, you see, Mister, it was this way. I come up here early this morning and caught that trout the very first time I throwed in. I throwed him back all right and before long I caught him again and throwed him back. Then I caught him two times more and couldn't get a bite from a sucker. That darned trout was eating my bait as fast as I could throw it in, so the next time I caught him I decided to tie him so the suckers could have a chance and I've caught six suckers in the last twenty minutes. "I'm keepin' him alive and I'm going to let him go after I catch a mess of suckers." We haven't heard what Mosier did in the matter, but he certainly must have been impressed with the thought that there was a mighty resourceful kid or one who could trump up a slick story on the spur of the moment.

Raymond Shade, 16 year old motherless boy who has made his home with Mr. and Mrs. George Grove, in Benner township, going on four years, shot himself in the right breast with for trout suggests that it is about a 38 calibre revolver, about five o'clock on Tuesday evening, and at this writing is still alive though admittedly in a very critical condition. As no one saw the shot fired it is impossible to sisters, Mrs. Lichten and Mrs. Alfred determine whether it was an attempt at suicide or the result of an accident. The boy is a con of Collins Shade, of Hollidaysburg. His mother died when he was quite young leaving the father with a large family of children. Raymond was placed in the Williamsburg home where he lived until several years ago when he was taken by Mr. and Mrs. Grove. During the time he has been with them he has been the average normal boy. He went to school and did the chores that naturally fall to a boy on a farm.

On Monday evening, after the Grove family had retired, the boy got up and went downstairs and it was then that he took Mr. Grove's revolver and two cartridges out of his desk. One cartridge he secreted at the barn and the other one and the gun he took along to school with him. Another boy had a 44 calibre revolver and one cartridge with him at school, and at noontime the two boys were in the cloak room fooling with the revolvers when Shage's was accidentally discharged, but fortunately the ball went through the floor and didn't hurt anyone. On the way home from school the boy with the .44 shot off his cartridge at

When the Shade boy reached the Grove home he promptly began his work of doing up the evening chores and was thus engaged when Mr. Grove started to Bellefonte on an errand. It was after five o'clock when the latter returned home and going into the barn floor he found Shade lying on the floor with a bullet hole in his right breast. A physician was hastily summoned who pronounced the wound as very critical, with death probably imminent. An hour later the boy had apparently passed away but under persistent rubbing respiration again set

As stated above, it is not known whether the lad attempted suicide or is a very unfortunate affair for which Mr. and Mrs. Grove are in nowise to blame. The boy's father was promptly notified and he and two brothers came down from Hollidaysburg to see him but in his unconscious condition he did not know of their presence.

Telephone Company to Reconstruct Lines in Centre County.

ter county by the Bell Telephone company of Pennsylvania will soon be made, according to the announcement of F. L. Richards, manager. The money is to be spent in going over and rebuilding both out-of-town lines and those lines within the towns.

About 7,000 telephone poles throughout the county have been inspected, Mr. Richards said, and work will soon begin on them. All the pole lines will be gone over and replacements of poles will be made where necessary. Some poles will be removed altogether, while others will be reset, re-inforced or treated in some other fashion.

The plans also call for the replacement or straightening of cross arms visit with their aunts, Mrs. George F. on the poles, replacement of pins and insulators, removal, replacement or addition of guy wires on poles, and similar work. The trimming of trees in connection with maintaining a clear right-of-way is included in the work planned.

While the business of keeping telephone lines clear of tree limbs or other obstructions would not appear to be a very arduous one, Mr. Richards says that this is a most important part of rendering telephone service. Wherever a telephone line stretches telephone men must see that there are no branches or limbs to interfere with the wires. A tree limb swaying in the wind will rub against a wire or cable and, eventually, cause a break or damage the wires in some other way. For this reason, all such obstructions must be removed, yet the natural beauty of trees kept unimpaired. Men who look after this important work have received training in tree trimming, and are careful to trim and cut in such a way that the trees are not injured or disfigured.
