

NEWS ABOUT TOWN AND COUNTY.

This number of the Watchman will be late reaching you, not through any lack of energy in this office. The Keystone Power on which we rely for electricity to run machines failed, as it has a habit of doing, just when we were to the point of getting to press. And we want to say right here that the West Penn Co., which has just taken over the Keystone Power has its work cut out for it, if it doesn't render more dependable service in Bellefonte.

The Spring township school case has been appealed to the State Supreme court, from the decision of Judge Furst, as handed down several weeks ago.

Mrs. Alice Robb celebrated her 78th birthday anniversary on July 4th at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Mark W. Williams, on east High street. All of her nine children were present.

Senator Jim Reed has failed to get the ballot boxes of Delaware county in order to investigate possible corruption in the Ware-Wilson election for the United States Senate. The United States District court has ruled that it has no jurisdiction and that the matter is one exclusively concerning the Senate. Senator Reed's committee will appeal to the Supreme court, of course, but that seems a very tortuous burden when it is made necessary to investigate so sacred a matter as the sanctity of the ballot.

Fear of Electric Chair Prevented Escaped Prisoner Pleading Guilty.

Milan Dackrack, a Serbian who escaped from Rockview penitentiary on the afternoon of July first, while at work on the big impounding dam in McBride's gap, and was caught at State College the following night after being trailed by the penitentiary bloodhounds, refused to plead guilty to breaking and escaping when brought before Judge Furst last Saturday for fear he would be sent to the electric chair.

How he came to get that idea into his head authorities were unable to determine. During the week Dackrack told sheriff E. R. Taylor that he was willing to plead guilty and take his sentence. It was upon this information that a special session of court was held on Saturday morning. But when the man faced Judge Furst he changed his mind and refused to sign the indictment drawn up by district attorney John G. Love, giving as his reason that if he did so the judge might send him to the electric chair.

On being interrogated by the court Dackrack said he had been sent up from Cambria county in April, 1927, for two and a half to five years for felonious assault and battery, and that he had been at Rockview only about twenty days when he "just walked away," intending to go home to Cambria county, where he had been employed in the mines. Judge Furst tried to explain to him that he could not be sent to the electric chair and whether he plead guilty or stood for a trial the sentence would be the same, but the man did not appear able to comprehend that fact and he was taken back to jail to await trial at the September term of court.

On Monday morning Albert Mooney, a negro, of Allegheny county, serving a four to eight year sentence for robbery, made his escape from the sand plant and it was not until several hours later that his absence was discovered. He was traced some distance by the bloodhounds but the latter finally lost the trail.

Mahoney was captured over near Boalsburg at 12:30 o'clock on Tuesday night and brought to the Centre county jail. He had served about seventeen months of his minimum term.

The new home of the Farmer's National Bank and Trust Company, at Millheim will be formally opened for business and public inspection from 8 a. m. to 9 p. m., tomorrow.

The new institution is the result of the merger, made some time ago, of the old Millheim Banking Company, a private institution formed in 1872, and the Farmer's National of that place. The combined banks have resources of over a million and a quarter and represent one of the leading financial institutions of this section.

The present officers and employees include Dr. G. S. Frank, president; C. L. Gramley, vice president; A. A. Frank, vice president; L. W. Stoner, cashier; S. W. Gramley, trust officer; J. R. Miller, assistant cashier; S. L. Hubler and P. H. Musser tellers. The board of directors is composed of G. S. Frank, C. L. Gramley, S. W. Gramley, A. A. Frank, L. E. Stover, F. M. Fisher, R. S. Stover, H. E. Crouse, L. W. Stover.

The new building occupies a lot 75 x 35 at the corner of Main and Penn streets, the site having formerly been used for a building which S. Ward Gramley erected there in 1911. Work on demolition of the old structure and erection of the new one was begun about a year ago. It is exclusively a bank building, very substantial and dignified in architecture. The construction is of cast granite, buff brick, steel and concrete. Every appointment necessary to modern banking and the comfort of patrons has been carefully worked out so that the institution has a home that is outstanding and very unusual for a town of the size of Millheim. It is estimated to have cost about $80,000.00.

Did You Find an Over-night Bag.

While in Bellefonte on the Fourth of July Miss Louise L. Hoffer, of Philipsburg, lost her over-night bag and is very anxious that the finder return same either to her address or to this office. It is a black bag with out any identification marks and contained among other things two children's crepe-de-chene dresses and a woman's blue dress. It was dropped from John Bullock's car, after leaving the Bullock home on Curtin street, for the Sycamore club above Snow Shoe Intersection. The route taken was Curtin to Allegheny, to High, to Water and thence directly to Milesburg. A reward will be given for its return.

For the first time in many years Mrs. Louis Grauer is now enjoying a life devoid of all business cares and responsibility. Going into the Lyon & Co store as a girl she quickly became an expert saleslady and while yet quite young in years assumed the responsibility of co-manager of the store. In this capacity she continued for more than a quarter of a century, or until her recent sale of the store to Harry Bernstein. As this sale was absolute and total, and she is in nowise connected with the store now, she is naturally enjoying the freedom and relaxation to which she is justly entitled.

Mouse Makes Nest of Valuable Stock Certificate.

Owing to the merger of the Keystone Power corporation with the West Penn Electric company, all the Keystone corporation stock has been called for redemption or conversion into West Penn stock at the option of the holders. Among the stockholders is Mrs. Grace Elder Henry, of Pine Grove Mills, who had a certificate for either four or five shares, value $100 per share.

When she purchased her stock she placed the certificate in a small drawer in her bureau and locked it up. Her dividends came regularly and she had no occasion to look up the certificate. But when she received the letter calling the stock for redemption she went to her bureau to get it but instead of the nicely engraved stock certificate she found a mouse nest. The valuable paper had been chewed into fragments so tiny that not enough could be found to tell the number or the amount of the certificate.

As the certificate was naturally registered on the company's books Mrs. Henry will undoubtedly be able to recover its value, but it will mean going through the usual red tape procedure always necessary in such cases.

Last Installment of Dr. L. M. Colfelt's Interesting Biography.

The Watchman this week publishes the last installment of Dr. L. M. Colfelt's very interesting personal biography, and we know that those of our readers who have been following the doctor's life story since it began in this paper last October will regret its ending as much as we do. Few men have had the varied experience of Dr. Colfelt and fewer yet would be able to tell the story in the fascinating and attractive style which has characterized his writings. In announcing the closing installment the doctor wrote as follows:

This one will mark the end of my story. I thank you for the painstaking and correct manner of typing it, and I unhesitatingly pronounce your weekly to be the best printed, most comprehensive, versatile, interesting and informing weekly newspaper in the State. Wishing you deserved prosperity in the teeth of many adverse conditions governing the issue of all country newspapers, I am sincerely,

LAWRENCE M. COLFELT.

Marine Flier Escapes Injury when Plane is Wrecked.

First Lieut. V. W. Guymon, of Quantico, Va., escaped injury when his plane was wrecked out at the Bellefonte aviation field at noon on Saturday. Lieut. Guymon, piloting a DeHaviland plane, was enroute from Brown field, Quantico, Va., to Buffalo, N. Y., and stopped at the Bellefonte field for a supply of oil and gas. When he was ready to leave he attempted to take off to the northeast instead of the west as mail pilots usually do, and the heavy plane did not lift as quickly as the lieutenant calculated it would, with the result that one of the wings caught the fence just east of the big flood light and the machine was catapulted into Harry Tressler's wheat field.

The men at the field ran to the wreck with fear and trembling for Lieut. Guymon's safety but when they approached he crawled out of the wreck with no injuries worth mentioning. The plane, however, was badly smashed. The lieutenant admitted that he had misjudged the taking off qualities of the big ship, which was much larger and heavier than the navy plane he has been used to flying.

The crew at the aviation field salvaged as much of the wreck as could possibly be saved then burned the rest of it.

Other guests at the luncheon included eight members of the Huntingdon Kiwanis club, one of the number, Dr. J. B. VanOrner, being the speaker of the evening. His topic was "four boys and some more boys, all good scouts." He compared the life of the boy of today with that of Washington, Lincoln, Garfield and Roosevelt, and declared that if there had been Boy Scouts in their day they surely would have qualified. He further stated that the Boy Scout movement is one of the finest things of modern times and he congratulated the Bellefonte Kiwanis club for getting back of the boys here. It is needless to say that all the Scouts enjoyed the luncheon and evening with the Kiwanians.

It was about seven o'clock in the evening when the plane reached Osceola Mills, and believing that town to be Bellefonte the pilot attempted to land for a supply of gas. He landed on a hill and broke a portion of the running gear of his plane with the result that he was laid up all night. Repairs were made on Tuesday morning and the pilot took to the air and came on to the Bellefonte field, reaching here about noon. He proceeded in his flight to New York in the afternoon.
