Talks with the Editor

This column is to be an open forum. Everybody is invited to make use of it to express whatever opinion they may have on any subject. Nothing libelous will be published, though we will give the public the widest latitude in invective when the subject is this paper or its editor. Contributions will be signed or initialed, as the contributor may desire.—ED.

Either or Both, My Dear Gaston

Dear Sir:
When you installed the "Talks with the Editor" feature I thought you had hit upon a grand idea. I had in mind particularly the significance of the preposition used—"with." A lot of us will gladly do some talking "with" you—even though we know you are snappy in the comeback—but we may not be so much entertained with talking "to" you. All right, what is it to be? With or to?

Incidentally, you often publish letters which say that the writer eagerly looks forward to the weekly visits of the Watchman. That isn't news, George. We all do that. Any man who sticks his head up above the crowd as you do is sure to get brickbats and bouquets—and hurlers of both will eagerly read his paper.

A. R. W.

Howard and John Both Will See and Enjoy This.

Scranton, Pa., 2-6-'28

Dear George:
Your "Talks with the Editor" has impressed me with the idea that one could get in touch with old friends very easily—at your expense. What really was in my mind, however, was your reminder that trout season was so many days off, but how about the old times and what went with them as recalled in the following poem?

TO THE DEPARTED.
How dear to my heart are the scenes of my childhood,
When fond recollection presents them to my view;

When Springtime approached—the book beer sign told us
That we didn't have to depend on home brew!

On most every corner the goat picture handbill
Would greet us in season of budtime and bliss;

But now all we hear when a thirst overcomes us
Is the pop of the birch cork or soda's thin hiss.

Oh, the happy book sign, the goat picture book sign,
That told us we never need drink that home brew!

I hope that among many friends that may or may not see this, that Howard Sargent, John Rich, Charlie Griest and other good friends will recall some of the good old days.

H. D. RUMBERGER.

Another, Whom We Work on Futilely.

Williamsport, Pa., 1-30-'28

Dear Mr. Meek:
I can scarcely ever remember being without the Watchman. At College, in the Army, in Pittsburgh and Detroit, Mother always sent it to me and I can never remember our Linn street home without its weekly appearance. So it was quite natural that I should continue to take it in our own home.

I don't pretend to agree with its political editorials but certainly its editors, past and present, could not be included in Heywood's tilt against the recent Hefin-Robinson tilt in the Senate: "Why is it that the Republican party has rather more than its fair share of the rogues and the Democratic party all of the idiots."

And, thinking of the Republicans, I am proud that none of Father's opponents ever classed him as one of the rogues. Fortunately, for both parties, there are plenty of exceptions to Heywood's "wise crack."

Very truly yours,
ELLIS O. KELLER.

DAYS OF THE WEEK THEIR MEANING

The week was unknown to the ancients. It was gradually adopted under the later Roman Emperors, with the growth of Christianity and under the influence of the seven-day creation of Genesis.

It was a principle of the ancient astrology that seven heavenly bodies presided in succession over the hours of the day. The seven so credited were the Sun, the Moon, Mars, Mercury, Jupiter, Venus and Saturn.

From these the Latin designations given to the days of the week have been directly derived, and from the Latin names, in turn, have been chiefly formed the modern names used in various countries, either by literal translation or, as in the Teutonic tongues, by the substitution of the corresponding deity of the Northern paganism for the Latin god.

In Sunday the origin is still unmistakable.

Monday means literally the day of the Moon.

Tuesday takes its name from Tuisco, the Mars of the Saxons, who presided over combats, strife and litigation.

Wednesday is so called from Wodin or Odin, a chief deity of the Northern nations.

Thursday was named by the old Teutons for Thor, their god of thunder.

Friday is from Frea or Friga, a goddess of Saxon myth.

Saturday shows little change from its original form as Saturn's day.

American "Rush" Only Result of Evolution

Many Americans think that other Americans are hurrying pell-mell and getting nowhere. They wish their countrymen would stop stepping on the gas and enjoy the scenery. And even though they drive slowly themselves they complain that the view is spoiled by a billboard.

But they overlook a number of things. America isn't composed of one kind of civilization. You can take your pick. If a billboard spoils your view, you can read a book until your train goes out where they are few and far between. Or, if you are motoring, you can think serene thoughts until the road turns. If you hate to mingle with the cutting-up trade at the rush hour, you can buy an abandoned farm and spend your life before an open fire. The rural free delivery will pass your door to carry your manuscripts to market and bring back the checks.

The conditions of modern American life have simply evolved. They have their roots far back in the motives that brought the early settlers to this country, in the European environment from which they were escaping, and in the obstacles that confronted them.—Roy S. Durstine in the Forum.

Formation of Clouds Defy Fiercest Gales

An odd formation of the mountain of Cross Fell in Westmoreland, England, sets up a peculiar "draft," which in a high wind produces the curious local effect known as the "Helm."

This is a cloud which in the fiercest gale remains, so to speak, anchored immediately over the summit of the mountain, while over another point some miles away another cloud, known as the "Bar," also remains stationary. Between the two points the wind rushes down with extraordinary violence, being sucked up again under the "Bar" in a sort of whirlwind, which before now has been known to lift a man and even a haystack.

At the same time its current produces a shrieking sound extremely uncanny, and it was owing to this that in the old days the mountain was known as Fiend's fell.

Lack of Sympathy

It is in the blunt hand and the dead heart, in the diseased habit, in the hardened conscience, that men become vulgar; they are forever vulgar precisely in proportion as they are incapable of sympathy, of quick understanding, of all that in deep insincerity of the common but most accurate term, may be called the "tact" or "touch-faculty" of body and soul, that tact which the mimosa has in trees, which the pure woman has above all creatures, fineness and fullness of sensation beyond reason, the guide and sanctifier of reason itself.

Reason can but determine what is true, it is the God-given passion of humanity which alone can recognize what God has made good.—Ruskin.

Marriage and Mousetraps

Marriage, as in recent times it has prevailed, might have been patterned on the ancient device of the mousetrap. Like the mousetrap, it was regarded as a piece of mechanism useful to society but not sufficiently attractive unless appetizingly baited; and when the inmates had by their own action become imprisoned and consumed the seductive bait, they were left to their own devices except where humanitarian feeling—going beyond the less merciful pattern—had placed a string in the trap which the door and free the captives.—Have-lock Ellis in the Forum.

Safety First

Mr. Jones had just smashed his thumb with the hammer, while he was driving a nail into the wall beside the cellar stairs. To judge by his remarks it hurt him a good deal. His wife was mildly sympathetic, but a little scornful of his clumsiness.

"There's no need for you to smash your thumb," she said. "I never do."

"You're quite a carpenter, aren't you?" said the irritated Mr. Jones.

"How do you manage so well?"

"I hold the hammer in both hands," replied Mrs. Jones, placidly.—Youth's Companion.

As Requested

A rather supercilious youth entered a barber's shop and asked for his hair to be cut a la mode.

The knight of the shears set to work, and while his customer was engrossed in the contents of a humorous weekly, cut off all his hair.

The youth suddenly caught sight of his shaven poll in a mirror, and was very annoyed.

"What have you done that for?" he demanded angrily.

"I cut it just as you said," declared the barber. "You wanted it all mowed, and there you are!"

Cetacean's Odd Habit

It is a matter of common report that a certain cetacean, probably a grampus, lived for years in Pelorus sound, New Zealand, and had the habit of accompanying vessels through the sound. This animal was so regular in its appearance and so well known that it had received the name of "Pelorus Jack." There seems to be no doubt as to the existence of this animal, and of the fact that it was recognized by the New Zealand government. It appears to have been a large porpoise, or grampus, and was certainly not a fish.

To All Centre County Republicans.

I have been urged by Republicans, representative of all elements in our party in recent contests in Centre county, to become a candidate for Chairman of the Republican County committee. In the hope and belief that I will be able to accomplish much toward re-uniting the party, I have agreed to the use of my name for County Chairman on the ballot at the primaries on April 24th, 1928. My policy will be a square deal to all Republicans, irrespective of past differences among them, and my one aim will be to achieve Republican victory in the county. Upon this basis, I respectfully ask the support of all Republican voters.
