

Federal Judge Johnson Founds Hunting Club.

Early in April Judge Albert W. Johnson, of Lewisburg, who presides over the U. S. court for the Middle district of Pennsylvania, in connection with Judge J. Warren Davis, of the U. S. circuit court, purchased 150 acres of land for a private hunting and fishing preserve. The land is described as lying in the "famous Sugar valley section, between Bellefonte and Lock Haven." About one-third of the tract is fertile farm land and the balance woodland.

Sand run courses through the tract and last Saturday the Judge claims to have caught the limit of trout. During the morning's sport he saw thirty-seven deer. The property is five miles from any habitation and is 1750 feet above sea level, according to the Judge in an interview in Harrisburg on Wednesday.

—One half of Centre county's Near East Relief quota of $8,861 has been raised while no report has been received from a number of the districts. Any one wishing to contribute will kindly send money or pledge to Charles M. McCurdy, Bellefonte.

Mother's Day Methodist Church.

The Methodist congregation invites you to the annual Mothers' Day services, Sunday, May 13th, at 10.45 a. m.

The mothers and boys of the Demolay will be the guests of the day and plans are being made for a very splendid program. Honor your mother by attending church and if you have a mother take her along with you.

An equally important and interesting service is being planned for the evening service at 7.30. The Epworth League anniversary will be observed at that time. Rev. M. S. Q. Mellott, the pastor of the Methodist church at South Williamsport, and president of the Epworth Leagues of the entire Williamsport district, who is a very able speaker, will deliver the address of the evening. Go and encourage the young people in their work.

"Push Button" Latest Device Available in Radio Field.

The "push button" radio, with which one automatically selects stations will be made available to manufacturers who desire to use it, according to control right on the latest radio invention.

McDonald acquired rights to the new radio from H. N. Marvin and A. J. Vassell, the New York inventors. The device, literally, realizes the remark frequently made by radio fans, "pretty soon, all you'll have to do will be to push a button to get the stations you want."

The new sets differ little in appearance from the ordinary ones. However, ten, twenty or more buttons constitute the tuning apparatus.

Lying abed in the evenings the auditor can touch a button and instantly switch in his favorite station or switch stations instantly without tuning.

A panel containing the tuning buttons, may be separated from the radio, according to Irving Hendriott, associated with McDonald and placed at any point in the house, if so desired.

Rights to the new tuning system will be leased to other manufacturers within a short time, according to McDonald.

One of the country's largest manufacturers of radio is understood to have begun negotiations for manufacturing rights to the "push button radio."

Grange Features May Radio at State College Next Tuesday Night.

The third monthly radio program by the Penn State Grange from WPSG at the college will be broadcast next Tuesday night, May 15, at 7 o'clock, eastern standard time. The main speaker will be R. G. Bressler, former vice-dean of agriculture at the college, now deputy secretary of agriculture at Harrisburg. He will speak on "Recreation for Rural People." Other speakers will be C. H. Bruce, of Media, and Jane Creasy, of Catawissa.

Other WPSG features for the month of May include the second annual college fraternity singing contest on May 22, a talk on one of the varied spring sports each Wednesday at 7 by a member of the college athletic coaching staff, a series of informational talks on "Our State Government," and a book review each Wednesday.

Wildcats in Pennsylvania.

Pennsylvania, known throughout the land as the best State for hunting east of the Rockies, has many animals in its woods besides those listed as game. Last month 10,091 noxious animals were killed. The Game Commission says many others were shot, but no claims were made for the bounty.

Wildcats, believed by many persons to be extinct in the State, are still fairly numerous. There were ninety-two killed in March alone, according to the official reports. Two of these were shot in Perry county.

Grant Sheaffer, of Landisburg, succeeded in bringing one of them down, and the other was killed by J. W. Fenton, New German, who is a game refuge keeper. Sheaffer killed three gray foxes and two weasels upon which he collected State bounty and Fenton killed four gray foxes and three weasels.

A Job We'd Like.

In Berlin they tell the story of a German who in the days of the slipping mark came bustling into a fashionable restaurant with a big valise crammed with bank notes.

"Hooley," he cried, "I've got a job on the state railroad, and here's my first day's pay."

"What kind of a job is it?" he was asked.

"Well," he answered, "you know there's a chap at each station who goes the length of the train tapping the axles with a hammer to see if everything's all right?"

"Yes."

"Well, I'm his listener."

Planting Nut Trees New Experiment.

Planting of nut trees is comparatively new in this country, says the American Tree Association of Washington. Until within the last 10 years, except in the regions where commercial nut raising had become established, the individual's proposal to plant trees for the raising of nuts was usually met by scornful comment. In some European countries nut and fruit trees along the roads are sources of material profit.

REQUIREMENTS FOR TROUT FISHERMEN.

Trout season opened at midnight, April 15 and continues until July 31. Sunday fishing is not allowed. Night fishing is permitted.

Use of nets, outlines or explosives is prohibited. Fishing license, costing $1.60 must be obtained from the county treasurer's office at the court house.

License certificate must be signed and carried on person and license button must be displayed.

Penalty for no license is $25 fine. Daily limit of trout six inches long or more, is twenty-five. No limit is set for the season.

Penalty for under-size fish is $10 fine for each fish.

Penalty for exceeding daily limit of twenty-five is $10 fine for each fish over before many fishermen in Wyoming county on the first morning of the season were wending their way to their favorite pools in search of the elusive and delectable brook and brown trout.

The trout season will continue until the last day in July. For the first two weeks of the season it is seldom that fancy flies are used as bait, being forced to wade into the pools after the trout that have become educated to the dangers from hooks and must be tempted to bite at the gaudy bits of feathers wafted back and forth on the surface by the anglers.

The smaller brook variety of trout are more eagerly sought by fishermen than are the larger brown trout which are not so good for food and which hold lower rank in the opinion of the anglers because they get up the bait after a less determined struggle than do the brook trout. An eight inch brown trout is hardly considered worth hauling in by the old time fisherman but a brook trout of the same size will put up a stiff fight for life and provide a more tasty meal than his brown cousin. A twelve-inch brook trout will fight harder before it is landed in the creel than will an eighteen-inch brown beauty.

Encouraged by reports that streams in Northeastern Pennsylvania have been more completely stocked than ever before many fishermen in Wyoming county on the first morning of the season were wending their way to their favorite pools in search of the elusive and delectable brook and brown trout.

Seventeen Year Locust Does Not Eat Foliage.

Many inquiries are going to the Bureau of Plant Industry, Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture, in regard to the damage that may be expected this year from the visit of the seventeen-year locusts.

These locusts are not foliage eaters, the bureau entomologists explain, and consequently the damage will be entirely different from the damage done by the Japanese beetle.

The food of the locusts is secured by sucking juice from living plant tissue, but even this does not particular harm to the plants. The real damage results when the female locusts cut slits in the tender bark of twigs into which they deposit their eggs.

When these eggs hatch, the larvae cause further splitting of the bark which greatly weakens the twig. Damage often starts and the heavy winds of summer with the additional growth of the twigs soon cause the small limbs to break down.

The locusts are expected to make their appearance during the latter part of May, and will likely be most abundant during June and July. They are usually most common in or near wooded areas.

Airships to Travel Years Without A Stop, Rickenbacker Says.

Peering into the future less than a generation away, Captain Eddie V. Rickenbacker, World War Ace, has visioned a world revolutionized by air transportation.

"Many of you will live to see the time when great air liners, many times the size of the dirigible Los Angeles, will travel for two or three years without landing," Captain Rickenbacker told members of the Athenian-Nile club.

"Air traffic is going to revolutionize business. The merchant who now buys on a 30, 60 or 90 day basis, will be able to buy on a 10, 20, or 30 day basis. Losses due to poor buying, obsolescence and seasonal conditions will be reduced to a minimum."

"I tell you we've got to run mighty fast to keep from standing still."

State to Buy Eggs to Propagate Pheasants.

The State Game Commission of Pennsylvania has started an innovation by purchasing ring-neck pheasant eggs and hatching them out on the State game preserves. Officials of the Commission decided to propagate the birds because of their scarcity and difficulty of buying them in the open market.

J. B. Truman, executive secretary of the Commission, has announced that 10,000 pheasant eggs would be purchased, 5000 of them coming from the New York Game Commission. Ordinary barnyard hens will be used in the hatching.

Curiosities in Justice.

Over a century ago the father of Benjamin Disraeli wrote a volume entitled Curiosities of Literature. There is an alluring field open in the United States at the present time for someone to write a volume with a similar title, Curiosities of Justice. As material for such a volume we offer two Associated Press dispatches which recently appeared in the same issue of a New York newspaper. Here is the first:

LIFE TERM FOR 33-CENT HOLD-UP.
 Buffalo, March 2.—Convicted of stealing thirty-three cents in a hold-up, Robert Ayres, a Negro, of Lackawanna, N. Y., was sentenced today to life imprisonment in Auburn Prison as a fourth offender under the Baumes Law. He admitted three previous convictions for felonies.

The second was a dispatch to the effect that Harry F. Sinclair, one of the Unitedsharo tao tao aociii our best known citizens, the man who was branded by the Supreme Court of the United States with the stigma of corruption for his plot to get hold of oil reserves worth untold millions, was planning to take a trip to Europe even though under jail sentence.

Steal thirty-three cents and you may get a life imprisonment. Try to "get away with millions," and you are likely to get a trip to Europe!—Christian Advocate.

Just a little talent, combined with genuine industry and persistence, will carry almost any person to a fair degree of success.
