Gas Refrigerators Now On Display. How They Operate.

The first gas refrigerators in Bellefonte are now on display in the Gas company's store on the Diamond.

Ammonia gas in evaporating from the liquid state produces a temperature reduction. This is what takes place inside of the refrigerator.

There are no valves, no openings to the outside, no moving parts at all. As the whole unit is completely welded, there is no chance of its contents escaping and no necessity of ever replenishing it.

The gas consumption is about 1000 cubic feet of gas during the hottest month of the year, the cooling water necessary amounts to about four gallons per day.
