Our Record of the Vote on Amendment No. 2, in West Harris Was Wrong.

Boalsburg, Pa., Nov. 12, 1928. Editor Democratic Watchman:

My Dear Mr. Meek:—In your issue of last week I notice you stated that vote on Amendment No. 2, on the State College bond issue, was 25 yes and 89 no. This is a misstatement, as this vote was on Amendment No. 3. The vote on No. 2 was 154 yes and 15 no.

In justice to those voters who work at State College and who live in the West Precinct of Harris Twp. we would kindly ask you to make this correction as it puts us all in a wrong status with the Institution for which we are working.

Your respectfully, H. M. HOSTERMAN.

DORNBLASER FAMILY FETES DISTINGUISHED MEMBER

In its issue of February 24, last, the Watchman published a letter from Rev. Dr. T. F. Dornblaser, of Nowawes, Potsdam, Germany.

It was much commented on, both because of the insights it gave into post-war life in that country and because of the reminiscences of the early days in Nittany valley.

Dr. Dornblaser was born at Mackeyville nearly eighty-eight years ago. After serving in the Civil war, where he was wounded twice, he studied for the ministry of the Lutheran church, which he served with fruitfulness and distinction until he retired, four years ago, and went abroad to look up the grave of a son killed in the world war. He was so impressed with living conditions there that he remained to make his home in Germany.

His first wife was a daughter of the late Alex Shannon, of Centre Hall. While residing in Germany he married a war nurse and, together, they are now in this country for a visit.

While in the ministry at Topeka, Kansas, he performed the ceremony that united the Vice President-elect, Charles K. Curtis and his wife, in marriage. While he came, primarily, to visit his daughter, Josephine Dornblaser Walters, in Chicago, the trip would not have been complete without a visit to the old friends and scenes in Clinton and Centre counties. Accordingly he arrived in Lock Haven, on November 9 and his coming has been one round of fetes, until yesterday afternoon, when he left for New York to sail, tomorrow on the George Washington.

In the freundschaft are the Harters, the Knechts, the Herrs, the Schaeffers, Swartzs, Dumms, Rickards, Longs, Beckes, Harshbargers, Hayes and other well known Nittany valley families. For a week they have been doing little else than entertain in honor of their distinguished visitor and there has been so much pleasure in it all that family ties have been drawn just a bit closer and all have come to be just a bit prouder of the blood of sturdy, upright ancestry that flows in their veins.

BANQUET AT NITTANY INN.

The festivities of the week had their climax in a banquet at Nittany Inn, last Tuesday night, when forty-seven relatives and friends sat down to the sumptuous dinner "Mine Host" Strunk had prepared. After an hour devoted to the various courses Dr. J. M. Dumm, of Mackeyville, called all to order and in an exceedingly pleasant and, we might add, facetious address turned the party into a symposium of reminiscence. L. A. Schaeffer, of Bellefonte; Charles Harter, of Lock Haven; Hugh Hayes, of Mackeyville; William Shaffer, of Lewisburg; P. M. Dornblaser, of Clintondale; Mrs. Josephine Dornblaser Walters, of Chicago; J. Franklin Long, of Flemington; Rev. W. O. Ibach, of Snyderstown; the venerable William Kiester, of Clintondale, and Geo. R. Meek, all contributed expressions of reminiscence or felicitations of the honored guest. Dr. Dornblaser then spoke. For half an hour he carried the party back well into the past century while recalling scenes and incidents of his boyhood. He is so fluent as a speaker, so hopeful in his vision and so mentally alert that it was with genuine regret that time called a halt to his dreams of the past and his prophecies for the future.

Retiring to the parlors of the Inn the party was entertained with fancy dancing by Miss Peggy Stouck, of Lock Haven, whose accomplishments are such that she might be destined for a premier danseuse. Roger W. Walters, of Chicago, contributed several excellent piano solos and Mrs. A. F. Stouck paid tribute to the flag in an effective recital.

At this juncture the party was thrown into a pandemonium by the arrival of a hastily organized band of calisthumpians who appeared to serenade Mr. William E. Shaffer and his bride of only a few hours. They had decided to hasten their marriage so that Dr. Dornblaser could perform the ceremony and surprised all of their friends by making the testimonial banquet also a wedding supper.

Those present were Dr. T. F. Dornblaser, his daughter and her husband, Mr. and Mrs. Roger W. Walters, of Chicago; Dr. and Mrs. J. M. Dumm, Mr. and Mrs. P. M. Dornblaser, Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Hayes and Isabel C. Hayes, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur S. Dornblaser, Harry L. Dornblaser and E. Verna Dornblaser, Mr. and Mrs. A. F. Stouck, Peggy Stouck, Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Loveland, Miss Edna D. Rich and Mrs. J. A. Schreckengast, Mr. and Mrs. J. Boyd Richard, Miss Florence Richard and Mr. and Mrs.

Franklin Long; Chas. S. Harter, Rev. and Mrs. W. O. Ibach, Mrs. A. N. Knechtman and Mrs. J. Wiley, Mrs. Kate Ralph, W. T. Knecht, Misses M. Lillian and Mabel E. Knecht, H. Beck, L. J. Beck and Mrs. G. B. Harshbarger, Mrs. Walter Herr, of Steubenville, Ohio, L. E. Swartz and Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Shaffer, of Mifflinburg; L. A. and Miss Helen M. Schaeffer, Mary Gray Meek and Geo. R. Meek.

The venerable William Keister, of Clintondale, sat at the right hand of his wife for he had served with him throughout the Civil war.

NOT A WEALTHY MAN Then it will be back to his beloved New York City that the defeated Democratic nominee will turn. It will be a return to the "Side-walks of New York." His return should be unheralded, at least that is the way he desires it, for he will go back to New York seeking a job just as he once sought jobs down on Oliver street, a searching that then led him to the Fulton fish market and thence to a trucking corporation. The Governor is not a wealthy man. His long service to the people has precluded his amassing a fortune to retire on. Therefore New York soon is to see the former fish salesman, ward assemblyman, sheriff, Governor and presidential candidate theoretically doffing his derby hat in the outer office of some concern, asking that he be employed.

PLENTY OF JOBS Naturally, there are many places open to Smith. One report said he would become chairman of a new $55,000,000 banking corporation of which John J. Raskob, the Democratic National Chairman, will be interested. This was denied by some of the backers of the new bank. George Goetz, of Chicago, who once hired Smith in a trucking corporation, said: "If Al wants a job, I'll give Al a job." But the "happy warrior" continued happy. Many of the weary creases that had appeared in his jovial face in the last days of the campaign had disappeared. His cigar was tilted at a typically Smithian angle. His voice radiated good humor. And despite his defeat and the fact he was passing from public office after twenty-five years, he seemed to reflect on the joke he thought of yesterday that only one man ever drew a greater popular vote for the Presidency, and that was Herbert Hoover.

CONGRESS IS DRIER THAN EVER The Congress, according to the latest figures from the Congressional districts, will be drier than at any time since prohibition came. The Hoover landslide carried with it the dry candidates in most localities. This appears to be the outcome of the first election in which the wet question was made a leading issue of the campaign by a candidate of one of the major parties.

With the election of Herbert Hoover, who has committed himself to a retention of the present system, and the defeat of outstanding "wet leaders" in both Houses of Congress, virtually all hope of amending or rescinding either the eighteenth amendment or the Volstead act appears to have gone by the boards for at least another four years.

With few exceptions there are no family names in Egypt. Thousands have exactly the same names, which makes identification a matter of great difficulty for the authorities.

THE HAPPY WARRIOR THROUGH WITH POLITICS RASKOB TO STICK UNTIL DEBT IS PAID. Graduated from his twenty-five-year school of politics, Governor Alfred E. Smith has started on the course all graduates must take—that of looking for a job. There was no trace of disappointment about the Governor as he started packing Wednesday morning preparatory to returning to Albany, where for four terms he has served the voters of New York State. He seemed as eager as almost any school boy to find his job. What that job will be depends on the "Boss," Mrs. Smith, the former Katie Dunn, who has followed him in all the vicissitudes and glories that have led him from East Side New York obscurity to becoming a candidate—albeit unsuccessful—for the Nation's highest office. And Mrs. Smith smiled through her regrets that he Al, the same Al who rode miles on a bicycle to court her, had failed to be elected President.

LAST CAMPAIGN Depend on it, however, that Smith is through with running for office. Rested after his strenuous campaign and the disappointment at hearing Tuesday night that even his own State had not endorsed his presidential candidacy, Smith told newspapermen that his name had appeared on the New York State ballot for the last time.

"I certainly do not expect to run for public office again," the governor said. "I have had all I can stand of it. I have given a quarter of a century of my life to it. I will never lose interest in public affairs, that is a sure thing. But as far as running for office again—that's finished."

NOT A WEALTHY MAN Then it will be back to his beloved New York City that the defeated Democratic nominee will turn. It will be a return to the "Side-walks of New York."
