

NEWS ABOUT TOWN AND COUNTY.

County auditors Robert D. Musser, Samuel B. Holter and O. J. Stover began work on auditing the county accounts on Monday morning.

Recent contributions bring the fund for the purchase of the new armory site to a total of $2185, which is not far from the total of $2500 needed.

Mr. and Mrs. W. I. Johnston-baugh, of Axe Mann, have taken over the Blackford restaurant, on Bishop street, and will conduct same in the future.

Carpenters have about completed repairs in the register's office in the court house and officials will probably be able to occupy it some day next week.

Bellefonte firemen were called out twice, on Monday, by fire fires on west High and north Thomas streets. Fortunately no damage resulted in either case.

Clearfield had a $75,000 fire early Monday morning when several stores in the heart of the town were destroyed. Firemen from DuBois and Curwensville assisted in extinguishing the flames.

The condition of Fred B. Healy, who recently underwent an operation at the Johns Hopkins hospital, Baltimore, is gradually improving, and there is every indication of a permanent recovery.

Having reached the age limit W. F. Minary, a well known passenger conductor on the Tyrone division of the Pennsylvania railroad, has been retired from active service. He was in the passenger service for forty years.

Governor Fisher has re-appointed Mrs. W. F. Reynolds, of Bellefonte, and Mrs. Charles McGirk, of Philipsburg, as members of the mother's assistance board for Centre county and Miss Mary Miles Blanchard a member of the board of trustees of the Huntingdon reformatory.

On January 4 the board of health of Jersey Shore ordered the picture shows, churches, schools and Y. M. C. A. of that town closed until the spread of influenza there can be curbed. All fraternal organizations and other societies were requested not to have any general gathering of members until the epidemic is checked.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Shaw, of Blue Ball, Clearfield county, are anxious to know the whereabouts of their daughter, Gladys Shaw, aged 15 years, who disappeared on December 8th. The girl who was a student in the Philipsburg High school, left home on December 8th, on a shopping trip to Philipsburg and never returned. So far all efforts to trace her whereabouts have been without result.

Lyman L. Smith, Centre county's very efficient county treasurer, is embarking in the stove business in Bellefonte. He has leased the room in the old Ammerman building, on Bishop street, formerly occupied by Alex Morris, and is stocking it with a full line of up-to-date stoves. One of his leaders will be the Stewart super-heater heatrola, that will warm your house like a furnace. He will also have the most modern gas stoves, a combination of gas and coal, gas heaters, coal cookstoves and ranges. When in need of a stove give him a call.

Ivan Walker, trustee in the estate of Mary C. Harris, will this week mail to the depositors of the defunct Centre County Banking company checks for a second dividend amounting to ten per cent. The total fund to be distributed is $36,000, and this will make a total of 25 per cent. to be paid the depositors on their accounts in the bank when it closed its doors on May 23rd, 1922. The present receivers have another 15% in hand which they would have distributed long ago had it not been for uncertainty as to their authority under pending litigation.

Edward Orwick, of Kylertown, and Emory Fink, of Taylor township, will probably have to stand trial at the February term of court on the charge of arson. Orwick owns a farm in Taylor township the barn on which was destroyed by fire last October. Last week Fink, who is now serving a term in the Centre county jail for violation of the liquor laws, confessed to the sheriff that he had been paid $30 in cash and given a note for $100 for the purpose of burning the barn so Orwick could collect the insurance. Orwick was arrested and posted $1200 bail for his appearance at court.

Sheriff Harry E. Dunlap went out to Philipsburg, on Sunday, and took into custody E. C. McFeaters, as he was released from the western penitentiary after serving a five year's sentence for embezzlement. The arrest was made on an indictment for embezzlement found against McFeaters by a Centre county grand jury in 1922, when he swindled the First National Bank of Spring Mills out of $5000 worth of bonds. That was the beginning of the now celebrated bank case which has been in the Centre county court and the Supreme court, and will again be heard before the higher court this month.

NEW MILK ORDINANCE READ FOR FIRST TIME.

Borough Council Hears Provisions for Purer Lactical Fluid Supply.

Just five members were present at the regular meeting of borough council on Monday evening, the absentees being Messrs. Emerick, Reynolds, Mignot and Kline.

Secretary Kelly read the minutes of the last meeting and before their approval Mr. Cunningham called attention to the action of council at its last meeting in voting to take out compensation insurance for the year 1929 in the Pennsylvania Threshermen and Farmers' Protective Mutual Insurance association, of which Isaac Underwood is the local agent. Mr. Cunningham stated that he had been informed that there is a State law prohibiting municipalities from taking out insurance in a mutual company of any kind. Mr. Cobb stated that borough solicitor N. B. Spangler also told him that the borough has no legal right to insure in mutual companies of any kind. Mr. Cunningham further called the attention of council to a court hearing in the western part of the State where two firemen were killed while fighting fire outside the limits of the town in which they lived and their families were unable to recover anything because they were outside the jurisdiction of their residence. Mr. Cunningham stated that such a contingency ought to be looked into before definitely placing compensation insurance on firemen.

Burgess Harris was present and called the attention of council to the rubber "Stop and Go" signs, which, he said, were being generally recognized by auto drivers and were doing more good than any signs put up. These signs were secured on approval and eighteen of them placed on the streets. The cost is to be $7.50 per sign and he thinks they are worth the price. Council agreed with the burgess and the bill for same will be paid when received.

Burgess Harris, in behalf of the members of Troop B, asked council for a contribution of $100 towards the fund for the purchase of a new armory site. President Walker stated that the matter of making a contribution would have to be referred to the borough solicitor as to council's right to do so.

Fire marshal John J. Bower turned over to the borough a check for $10, being two-thirds of a contribution made to the Logan Fire company by Clarence A. Garbrick for the company's service at a fire which destroyed his barn on May 27th, 1928. Mr. Bower also submitted his annual report as fire marshal for the year 1928, which is published in full in another column.

The Street committee reported repair work on various streets and the collection of $32.00 from the Central Pennsylvania Gas company for the use of the road roller, brick, etc. The Water committee reported some minor repairs made and the collection of $1.50 for stone, $11.75 on the 1925 water duplicate, $125.29 on the 1926, $112.50 on the 1927 and $625.46 on the 1928, a total of $876.50.

The Fire and Police committee recommended that the regular annual appropriations be given the two fire companies and a motion to that effect was passed.

The Special committee presented the completed draft of the new milk ordinance which provides for doing away with a local board of health and the appointment of a combined health officer and milk inspector at a salary to be fixed by council. The only suggested addition to the ordinance after it was read for the first time was a clause placing the health officer under the jurisdiction of the Sanitary committee of council.

The matter of repairing the Undine steamer so it could be used in an emergency, as suggested by fire marshal John J. Bower in his annual report, was referred to the Fire and Police committee with power.

Returning to the matter of the compensation insurance Mr. Cunningham made a motion, which was seconded by Mr. Cobb, that the resolution passed at last meeting of council be rescinded, and the motion passed. Another motion was passed providing that the insurance be placed in a stock company as heretofore.

Bills totaling $6567.61, which included the $2000 appropriation to the sinking fund, were approved for payment, after which council adjourned.

West Penn Meter Readers to be Uniformed.

In line with the practice of the most progressive power companies throughout the country the meter readers of the West Penn Power company are now attired in new uniforms. With the meter readers in this distinctive uniform there is no question as to their identity and appreciably better service will be rendered the customers.

The uniform consists of dark gray whipcord coat and trousers, gray flannel shirt, black leather puttees, leather overcoat and a cap, matching the coat and trousers, carrying the company badge. It is the hope of the company that the people in this district will approach the meter readers with any questions bearing on electrical service. The reader will gladly furnish or procure the desired information.

First National Bank of Bellefonte Holds Annual Meeting.

The annual meeting of the shareholders of the First National Bank of Bellefonte was held in the banking house on Tuesday, January 8th, 1929. All the old directors were re-elected as follows: Charles M. McCurdy, W. Fred Reynolds, Charles C. Shuey, James C. Furst, Henry S. Linn, Thomas B. Beaver, David Dale, L. Frank Mayes.

The board organized by electing Charles M. McCurdy, president; W. Fred Reynolds, vice president; James C. Furst, secretary, and reappointed Mr. McCurdy as president of the bank; James K. Barnhart, cashier; C. E. Robb, assistant cashier; Charles MacC. Scott, trust officer. Louis Schad was also appointed an assistant cashier.

In his report of the operations of the year president McCurdy said that it had proved to be one of the best in the long history of the bank, both in respect to earnings and new business. During the period quarterly dividends had been paid and a substantial sum carried to profit and loss, increasing this fund to $79,120, in addition to the surplus fund of $250,000. The deposits showed a gain of $158,196 during the year, while the total resources were increased by $188,000.

Trust business, said Mr. McCurdy, is necessarily of slow growth, but this department is expected to show gradual and material improvement during the coming years. More and more thoughtful persons are naming banks with large resources and experience their executors, feeling assured that the important business of settling an estate will better be performed by such an institution than by an individual.

FARMERS NATIONAL ELECTS OFFICERS.

The stock holders of the Farmers National bank held their second annual meeting in their bank building, on Tuesday afternoon, at two o'clock.

There were a large number of the stock holders present in person to hear president Reed O. Steely's statement of the condition of the new institution. And several of the stockholders, themselves, spoke in commendation of the management that has brought the resources of the institution to such a gratifying condition in the short time that the bank has been open. It will be recalled that the Farmers opened its doors just a little more than a year ago and while it has undertaken no special campaign for business, both in the number of depositors and amount of deposits it has had a sound and very encouraging growth.

The election of directors for the ensuing year resulted in the choice of Reed O. Steely, W. C. Smeltzer, W. M. Bottorf, Dr. S. M. Nissley, Dr. S. S. McCormick, Wm. H. Brouse, John P. Eckel, Edward F. Garman, A. F. Hoekman, Dr. F. K. White and Jacob A. Weaver Jr. At the meeting of the newly elected directors they organized by selecting the following officers: Reed O. Steely, president; W. C. Smeltzer, vice president; W. M. Bottorf, secretary.

Pennsylvania Hoisery Corporation to Open Plant at Milroy.

The Pennsylvania Hoisery Mills corporation will put in operation a plant at Milroy on or about February 1st. According to report the company will start with fifty employees with expectation of increasing that number to one hundred, just as soon as another unit can be completed and machinery installed.

The present plant was completed about a year ago at a cost of a million and a quarter of dollars, but has remained idle owing to certain conditions existing in the affairs of the company. C. F. Hassinger, of Millheim, where the company has another mill in operation, has been appointed superintendent of the new mill at Milroy.

The machines for manufacturing full-fashioned hoisery cost approximately $10,000 each without installation and the building, officials said. The new operation will be separate and independent of the former corporation, the plant at Millheim.

High Wind Blows Roof Off Ice Cream Factory.

Bellefonte and Centre county were struck by the blizzard which swept in from the west on Sunday. While there was no snow to amount to anything there was more than enough of high wind and cold on Sunday and Monday. On Tuesday morning thermometers were down close to the zero mark, the coldest weather of the winter.

Up at Snow Shoe Intersection, on Monday, the wind was so terrific that it blew the roof off of Lew Davidson's ice cream factory and tore out a portion of one side of his barn. The destruction happened about nine o'clock in the morning, and fortunately no one was near at the time so that no casualties resulted. Ordinarily school children congregate outside the ice cream plant to wait for the bus which hauls them to school but it so happened that none were there when the roof was blown off, else it might have resulted in a tragic affair.

The new plant of the Spring Mills Dairyman's League was formally opened for business last Saturday.

ROBERT H. HUNTER HONORED BY FELLOW TOWNSMEN.

The dining room of the Bush house was crowded, on Tuesday evening, with representative men from every profession and business in Bellefonte. They were there to participate in a testimonial dinner given for their fellow townsman, Robert H. Hunter.

It was a signal honor, for not often are such things done in Bellefonte. It was done years ago for Daniel G. Bush, pioneer in the effort to make this a bigger and better town. It was done in appreciation of the Collins brothers, Philip, Tom and Peter, when they gave us the Bellefonte Central R. R., and the Bellefonte furnace. It was done again when the town wakened up to realize that the late J. Wesley Gephart had, almost single handed, rekindled the dying sparks under the stacks at the Nittany Iron furnace and built a railroad, the C. R. R. of Pa., from Bellefonte to Mill Hall. We mention these incidents following undeniably epochal eras in the history of Bellefonte in order that our readers and Mr. Hunter, himself, might fully realize the significance of the honor that was his Tuesday evening.

It was, as we have said, an "appreciation dinner." An expression of the esteem in which men interested and concerned about the welfare of the town they call home, hold one of their fellows. It was a tribute such as happens in the lives of few men but, deservedly, always should in the lives of those who mean as much to their respective communities as Mr. Hunter does to Bellefonte.

Because Robert H. Hunter had of his own initiative and without seeking any financial assistance from Bellefonte promoted and completed the installation of a gas plant to serve Bellefonte, State College and intermediate points Mr. Jas. H. Potter suggested the idea that some expression of public appreciation of Mr. Hunter's work in giving us such a valuable public utility, as well as for his many other public services, should be made. It was decided that an appreciation dinner would prove the best outlet.

Accordingly the dinner was held at the Bush house and one hundred and nineteen representative men of the town were there. A splendid dinner was served and there was much of the fine spirit of unselfishness and enthusiasm that makes for the building of real towns—and real towns are not measured nearly so much by the amount of their population as by what one gets out of living in them.

W. Harrison Walker Esq. was toastmaster and reminiscences recalled the things the guest of honor has done for Bellefonte since he came to make his home among us. They have been many, but all are so prone to forget that few realized that there have been so many. During the past prandial hours many rose to personally express their appreciation of Mr. Hunter, as a useful and public spirited citizen, a friend and neighbor. Among them were Chas. E. Dorn, Secretary of Forests and Waters for Pennsylvania, Burgess Hardman P. Harris, Rev. Father Wm. E. Downes, Bent L. Weaver, Dr. Geo. P. Bible, the Hon. M. Ward Fleming, Geo. R. Meek, W. F. Reynolds, Maj. H. Laird Curtin and Arthur H. Sloop. The latter held the surprise of the evening for in the name of the town he presented Mr. Hunter with a beautiful Hamilton watch appropriately inscribed to commemorate the unusual occasion.

The guest of honor was naturally overwhelmed with the tribute but responded with one of his characteristic speeches and that ended another memorable evening in Bellefonte.

U. S. Supreme Court Refuses to Reconsider Centre County Bank Case.

The United States Supreme court, last week, refused to grant a certiorari for a hearing and reconsideration of the Centre County bank case on an appeal from the federal court of appeals taken by the three alleged partners in the bank, George R. Meek, Mrs. Florence F. Dale and Andrew G. C. Breeze, and the three trustees appointed by the court of Centre county, Rev. Reed O. Steely, John S. Dale and John S. Ginter.

The appeal was merely one of testing the right of the petitioners, George A. Beezer, Gorge H. Yarnell and Josephine Grenoble to take the case out of the jurisdiction of the local courts and place it in the federal court.

The case was originally heard in the federal court and was decided in favor of the alleged partners by the U. S. Supreme court. Action was then started in the local courts but following the appointment of the three trustees above named another petition was presented asking that the case be again heard in the federal court. Judge Albert W. Johnson, of the federal court, granted the petition, and was sustained by the court of appeals. And now the Supreme court has declined to further review the case at this time.

The alleged partners have a certain time limit in which to file an answer they may see fit to make.

The Centre county commissioners, at their meeting on Tuesday, fixed the county millage for 1929 at 8 mills, the same as last year.

NEWS PURELY PERSONAL

Miss Mande Hale was over from Philipsburg, Saturday, having motored to Bellefonte, to spend the day here with friends and in the shops.

Miss Mary Cooney has accepted a position at the Hotel Chelsea, at Atlantic City, and has gone there expecting to be at the shore indefinitely.

Mr. and Mrs. Millard Hartswick went over to Clearfield, Tuesday, Mrs. Hartswick entering the Clearfield hospital as a surgical patient under Dr. Waterworth.

Mrs. Norman Calvert and her son Norman Jr., came up from Williamsport, Friday, visiting here until Sunday, with Mrs. Calvert's mother, Mrs. Della Miller, of east Bishop street.

Mrs. Jenks, who has been here from Atlantic City during the past week, is back home for a visit with her mother and sister, Mrs. George Lose and Mrs. Gilbert Boyer, dividing the time between them.

Hugh N. Crider was up from Ventnor a week ago, to spend a day in Bellefonte while looking after some business interests. During his stay Mr. Crider was a guest of his sister, Mrs. Charles E. Dorn.

Miss Celia Moerschbacher arrived home Monday night, from Pittsburgh, called here by the sickness of her sister, Mrs. Bertha M. Austin, who has been among those very seriously ill in Bellefonte, during the past week.

Mrs. William S. and Nannie Glenn, of State College, left yesterday for their usual winter sojourn in Florida. They had planned to depart last Thursday, but both were stricken with influenza and all reservations had to be cancelled.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Londo and their small child, who had been in Bellefonte spending the holidays with Mrs. Londo's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Beezer, of Bishop street, left a week ago to return to their home at Green Bay, Michigan.

Mrs. Margaret McFarlane Lohr, who was in Bellefonte, between trains last Friday, is located in Newark, N. J., where she is a registered nurse. Mrs. Lohr is a daughter of Mrs. J. Kyle McFarlane, of Lock Haven, and a native of Bellefonte.

S. A. Rishel, of Johnstown, for many years the Hardman piano people's representative through this section of Pennsylvania, spent this week in Nittany valley, visiting relatives at Clintondale and also at Howard, being a native of the former place.

Mrs. Edward Nolan is a patient in one of the city hospitals, of Chicago, suffering from a broken hip, the result of a fall in her room, at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Levy Johnson. Mrs. Nolan is well known to many here, being a native of the town and a resident all her earlier life.

Mrs. Fannie Baum Metz and her son Horace, who came to Bellefonte from Princeton, Ind., a year or more ago and have been living at the Landsy annex, left Bellefonte yesterday, Mrs. Metz to return to Princeton and Horace to Columbus, Ohio, where he will locate while studying law. Since being in Bellefonte Horace has been with the West Penn Power Co.

Called to Pittsfield, by illness in her son's family, Mrs. J. K. Barnhart left Bellefonte Wednesday, for Massachusetts, where she will take charge of the Philip S. Barnhart home and her grandson, Philip Jr., while Mrs. Barnhart is entered at one of the city hospitals to undergo an appendicitis operation. Mrs. Barnhart will be away from Bellefonte for an indefinite time.

Guy McEntyre, who for the past several years has been located in St. Petersburg, Florida, where he has become associated with the business interests of that city, stopped in Bellefonte Tuesday, while north on a business trip. Mr. McEntyre is a native of Bellefonte and through his occasional visits back keeps in touch with his boyhood associates and affairs about town.

Mrs. Saul Auerbech with her daughter, Lenore, and Carol Swartz, returned to New York City, Monday, after having spent the holiday season in Bellefonte, as house guests of Mrs. Auerbech's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Cohen. Mrs. Cohen entertained for her daughter, Josephine and Carol Swartz on New Year's day, quite a number of the younger set of Bellefonte being their guests.

George Ertley, Luther Fisher and Edward Vonada, three of the leading residents of Jacksonville, drove to Bellefonte in Mr. Vonada's car Tuesday, and spent a part of the day looking after some 1929 business. Mr. Ertley, a Watchman reader for forty-nine years, is a native of Marion township though has lived in different parts of the county, his longest time away from Jacksonville was spent at Scotia, where he lived during all its booming period.

Mr. Jacob Meyer and his son, of Boalsburg, were in Bellefonte, Saturday, and we were delighted when they dropped in for a little call at this office. We hadn't seen the elder gentleman for so long that our surprise was great indeed at noticing that the passing years have touched him so lightly. His son is located up in New York State, in the threshing and baling business and was back home to Boalsburg for a little visit, which explains why the gentlemen happened here at the same time.

Samuel M. Hess, of State College, was in town on a little business on Wednesday. He brought the rather unpleasant news that his father, Newton E. Hess, is in the Gehinger hospital in Danville, for observation. Up in Alaska last year, the big game hunter got what athletes would call a "Charlie horse" in one of his knees and while it is not thought to be anything physically serious those of you who know the gentleman will understand that he loves to go about and hunt far too much to take any chances on having one of his motors go back on him. We've known three generations of the Hess family and we seize this opportunity to record that among all of our many, many acquaintances we have never seen more marked traits of heredity follow through. As a young man we thought the now departed Michael Hess one of the most gracious and altogether likable men we had ever known. We're not going to say that Newton E. is as fine as his father was, nor are we going to puff Sam up by saying he is as fine as his father is, but we are going to say that when you meet a Hess you're coming mighty near meeting up with "the salt of the earth."

Mrs. William Dillon, of Braddock, a sister of the late Michael I. Cooney and Joseph Cooney, of Carrollton, his son, were both in Bellefonte last week, for Mr. Cooney's funeral.

Miss Ella Wagner, of Milesburg, who has been spending the week in Bellefonte, returned Monday night from a two week's Christmas visit, with her niece, Mrs. William Pollock, at Houtzdale.

Gilbert King, a son of William King, of Valley View, was in town Saturday, looking after some business for his father. A visit to the Watchman office, was on the list of the business transactions for 1929, of Mr. King.

R. Cummings McNitt, came north from St. Petersburg, Fla., this week, to attend the funeral of Miss Louise McMullen, Wednesday, and will remain here for several days, as a guest of Lawrence McMullen, at his home at Hecla.

Miss Janice Steimez, of Harrisburg, was a week-end guest at the N. E. Robb home on Curtin street. Miss Steimez is a friend of Miss Mary Robb, whose vacation from Wilson college has been extended on account of the flu epidemic.

Mrs. Wells L. Daggett left Wednesday morning for one of her frequent visits with Mr. Maynard Munch Jr., in Cleveland. During her absence the Daggett home on east Linn street, will be in charge of her niece, Miss George Daggett, who has been here from New York, visiting with her aunt.

HISTORIC KNITTING MILLS CLOSED PERMANENTLY.

After ninety years of continuous operation the Thompson Brothers knitting mills at Milroy and Lewis-town closed their doors for all time on Tuesday of last week. Three generations of the Thompsons played an important part in this old-time industry. Hosiery was the chief product manufactured, although at one time they did include blankets and other woolsen goods.

The original mill at Milroy was established in 1808 when the supplies, including the raw material, were gathered up over a territory of hundreds of miles by wagons drawn by mules.

The last of the three generations, four sons, who operated the plant, Reed, George, Walter and Andrew, died within a short period of time, leaving the business without a ruler. The four sons had an agreement that the surviving brother was to automatically inherit the good-will real estate and machinery in order to perpetuate the business under the firm name of Thompson Brothers. Andrew M. Thompson, who died about a year ago, willed the good-will, machinery and real estate to Albert Thompson, a son of George Thompson, and aged fourteen years; Mrs. Helen McCartney, manager of the Milroy mill, and T. C. Williamson, who married a niece of the Thompsons, but failed to make provision for stocking the mill other than to say that the beneficiaries of the trust fund which was left to nephews and nieces, may loan $30,000 to cover the initial cost of operations. Albert Thompson, the 14-year-old boy, was the only beneficiary interested in the real estate who was also interested in the trust fund, the only one to profit in the event of success or loss in the event of failure. His guardian, the Harrisburg Trust company, Harrisburg, refused to enter into the partnership, and the courts sustained their verdict.

Milroy was founded by the Thompsons. About fifty men and women were thrown out of employment by the closing of the mill.

Former Centre Countain to Get New Berth in Altoona.

Altoona is now completing legal technicalities for the annexation of Juniata and other outlying suburbs, and when that is completed a number of the present officials of Juniata will be out of a job. But one man who is slated for a new berth in Altoona is Will H. Baird, for the past nineteen years city clerk in Juniata.

Mr. Baird is a former Milesburg boy. When only eight years old he accompanied his father to the Milesburg freight depot. While the parent was attending to matters of business the lad found pastime in jumping on cars that were being shifted until a slip caused him to fall under the wheels and lose his right leg. His course in life thereafter was directed to accounting and secretarial work and in these lines he is in Juniata regarded as an efficient servant of the people.

"Billy," as he is familiarly called by all his friends, went to Juniata from Milesburg in July of 1906. For three years he was a clerk in the Juniata post office for W. N. Boyles, then postmaster in the borough by presidential appointment and now best known as a justice of the peace. Under the civil service rules Mr. Baird was obliged to relinquish this position when the office became a branch of the Altoona postoffice in July of 1909 by reason of physical disability.

He was then appointed town clerk and during his nineteen years tenure of office he has instituted a number of systems in keeping and filing accounts which vastly simplify the work of his office. In Altoona he is to be given a berth in the office of the city clerk.
