A Woman Asks Pointed Questions.

Bellefonte, Pa., May 14, 1929.

Dear Mr. Editor:

I am asking you to publish in your paper some true facts in regard to the Eckley and Billette case. For some reason these two seem to have been picked out of a large number of married and single men to answer for the charges committed while a minor child stayed at the army barn situated at Coleville for several days and nights.

I ask the public to consider who carried her food there to her. Neither Billette nor Eckley did that. And where were the officers in charge of the place while such behavior was carrying on? And why was a girl of her character harbored there for that length of time and where were the ones who promised to take her in charge. When the juvenile authorities went to do so before, she wasn't in their care.

Mrs. ARTHUR ECKLEY.
