Racial Mark Plainly Seen in Place Names

While most of the states of the Mississippi valley, besides countless rivers and lakes in all parts of the country, bear Indian names, but a small number only of the towns that are the work of the white man have adopted names borrowed from the original owners of the land. Not one in ten, it is claimed, of the 150 large cities has an Indian name, if we except Chicago, and among those that have it is usually an adaptation from some neighboring lake or stream. The early explorers and settlers have left their racial mark. Up the Hudson and Mohawk the trail of the Dutchman is pretty clear. The French influence in northern New York and Vermont and along the line of the Great lakes is familiar in many names. Mississippi has no "saints" in its list, whereas across the river Louisiana, by nine parishes and many towns, rivers and lakes, perpetuates the religious tenets of its early fathers. Kentucky and Tennessee evidence the vocabulary of the hunter and trapper, Montana and Idaho that of the miner. All the region acquired from Mexico, particularly southern California, maintains in its place names the memory of its Spanish explorers and settlers. There are relatively few Indian names on the Pacific coast, strange to say. North of the Spanish belt capes and towns frequently reflect the loyalty of early settlers to the older states of the Union; for example, Portland, Ore., which was named after Portland, Maine. The story is that two settlers to whom the task of selecting a name for the Oregon settlement fell were easterners, and that they tossed a coin to determine whether the town should be called Boston or Portland.

Nature's Kindness to People of Green Isle

Among other benefits of being an Irishman there is to be listed, it is asserted, an ability to break one's bones with relative impunity, as compared with Englishmen or persons of other races. At a recent coroner's inquest a Camberwell, England, Dr. Reginald Larkin, a police surgeon familiar with accident cases, took occasion to report his experience that broken bones of the Irish heal more rapidly and strongly than similar fractures, the victims of which are English; thus justifying, perhaps, the Irishman's traditional preference for the shillalah, a plaything relatively harmless to his countryman. In all animals the repair of broken bones is the duty of millions of tiny living cells which accumulate at the place where the bone is broken and cement the severed ends together with stiff, cartilagelike tissue which then slowly hardens into bone by deposit of compounds of lime.—Baltimore Sun.

Birdhouse in Prison

Sing Sing prison has so many tamed birds that an imprisoned architect is now supervising the construction of a circular birdhouse of stucco and wood to care for 100 pets. The birds belong to the institution and there are a good many singers and handsome ones among them. There are several parrots. The birdhouse is nearly forty feet in diameter and provision will be made to accommodate 1,000 birds.

AARONSBURG

Miss Mabel Crouse went down to Sunbury last week, thence up to Geneva, N. Y. Mrs. Leonore U. Burd, of Millheim, was in town, Sunday afternoon, and called on Mrs. J. W. Bower and Mrs. Thomas Hull. Mr. and Mrs. O. P. Smith, and daughter Leila returned home, recently, from their western trip, which extended to South Dakota. Mr. and Mrs. Ellsworth E. Ardery, of Bellefonte, and Mr. Long, of Akron, Ohio, spent several days last week, guests of Mrs. Ardery's sister, Mrs. George Weaver, in Main street. H. E. Crouse and A. S. Stover motored to Harrisburg, left their car there and went by train to York, where they attended the York county fair. While in York they were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Stambach. Mrs. William Guisewitz took advantage of Saturday night's excursion to New York city, where she will remain for two weeks with her daughter, Mrs. Fred Rachau, and her two sisters, Mrs. F. I. Pierce and Mrs. C. W. Eby. Mr. and Mrs. E. G. Mingle have with them for an indefinite stay Mr. Mingle's only brother, Thomas Mingle, who came east from Minneapolis, Minn. It has been forty years since he was home and needless to say, it was a happy meeting. Mrs. Charles Cummings, after a visit of ten days in Philadelphia where she was the guest of Mrs. George McKay and her daughter, Miss Florence, has returned home. Mrs. W. H. Phillips has also been the guest of her daughter, Mrs. McKay. Rev. and Mrs. G. H. Fred Griesing left, Monday morning, for the eastern part of State. Rev. Mr. Griesing attended the Eastern Synod of the Reformed church, held in Philadelphia. Mrs. Griesing stopping in Allentown where she visited among relatives and friends until the close of Synod when they returned home. Mrs. Anna M. Stover and niece, Mrs. W. E. Orwig and son Harold, whose driving guests they were, motored to Madisonburg recently. They called at the George Z. Kern home while in town. Mrs. Kern's father Samuel R. Gettig, a former resident of this town and well known, who lives with his daughter, is ninety years old and enjoying very good health.

Human Emotion Based on Electric Current?

In love simply the result of electrical attraction? Is the human body an electric battery and our life, energy, and vitality dependent on how strong a current we create? A doctor has stirred up tremendous discussion by declaring that chemical activity in the cells of the human body produces electricity, that this electricity maintains the life process, and that lack of it finally causes death. He believes the human current has a great influence over all our emotions, including love, and thinks this may explain why certain people are attracted to one another, or vice versa. A famous electrical expert says: "We have never isolated this current, and the laws of electrophysiology are not well known, but we have many proofs that this current exists. The body produces electricity in a score of different ways. At every muscular contraction or irritation of a nervous center there are vibrations that liberate this mysterious power. "The least movement of a muscle produces electricity. For every heartbeat there is a corresponding oscillation of the galvanometer needle."

Durability of Leather Shown by Recent Find

The durability of leather was proved by the discovery, in the course of excavating for the foundations of the new Bank of England, of soles of Roman shoes, one of which bore clearly the impress of the official Roman eagle. The soles evidently were those of the sandals worn by women and children. Bronze rivets were used to hold together two or three thicknesses of leather and no doubt accounted in part for the life obtained from the footwear, which must have been much greater in weight than present-day shoes. The old leather was in about the same state of preservation as might be expected of a modern shoe that had been on a rubbish heap for a couple of months. Although nowadays leather is produced with more speed and less mechanical roughness, the processes of preserving, toughening, and softening it are not materially different from those practiced by the Romans in England about 2,000 years ago.

Perfect Mother-in-Law

She has a marvelous talent for timing her visits. She always arrives the day you need her and never stays a day too long. She always brings cheer and helpfulness and a big basket of things from the old farm. She gets along beautifully with her sons and daughters-in-law. She knows how to please her grandchildren without spoiling them and ruining their digestions. She knows how and when to write a check and when to make beaten biscuits and fry a chicken. She has perfect health and a young mind. She is the perfect mother-in-law. There is always the chance that you will get her if you marry often enough.—Kansas City Star.

Peculiar State of Mind

"It may be a complex, a phobia, or a neurosis," said the street-car rider, "but there's just one thing on my mind when I take an open car. I usually sit on the back seat, or on an inside end seat. In either place I have a good view at the slot, which protects the live wire in the street below. I've been tossing my cigarette butts at the slot, wondering if they'd ever go in. It's really become an obsession, since they never seem quite to make it. I'm meditating getting off and pushing one in some time. So I'll be able to get my mind on other matters while I ride."—New York Sun.

Nation's Fur-Bearers

Among the states producing the most fur-bearing animals it is probable that Louisiana ranks highest on account of its large muskrat catch. Martens appear most plentiful in Northwestern states. Minks are plentiful throughout the wooded areas of this country where trapping has not been carried on extensively. Blue foxes do not occur wild in the United States. Red foxes are common throughout the greater portion of this country, most of them being in the Northern wooded regions. Fishers are found almost exclusively in the Northern states where civilization has not disturbed their haunts.

No Easy Task

English is one of the most difficult languages in the world to master, according to a young Frenchman, who is studying auto mechanics in a Detroit factory. "American tourists abroad protest against the 'unreasonableness' of the French language but consider your own," he said. Ordinarily you pronounce the suffix 'ough' with a long 'o' sound. But when you place an 'r' before it, getting 'rough,' you say 'rau.' Then when you make it 'through' you say 'thru.' It's almost too much for me."

Money's Real Meaning

Money in itself means nothing. It is only a medium of exchange. How much you get in your pay envelope each week depends on what you have to offer and are willing to give in exchange for it. You are your own paymaster.—Grit.

Dentist Cheaper

Moscow, U. S. S. R.—American toothpaste costs dearly in Russia. Six tubes to be mailed to an American newspaper man here were held up at the soviet post office for minute examination and then the correspondent was assessed a duty of $11 a tube.

Creaking of the Stairs

The creaking of the stairs at night is due to the change of temperature, which makes the woodwork contract or expand or something, but it's terribly hard to remember that when they creak.—Ohio State Journal.

BELLEFONTE COOKS ELECTRICALLY ... here is why!

Good results are certain ... when you cook electrically

Electric cooking saves you all the worry of having to remember to adjust the oven heat at just the right moment ... the bother of having to keep turning and basting the food. The oven, itself, takes all the responsibility of producing deliciously cooked meals. When you set the clock and thermostat on the electric oven, you automatically solve the problem of the correct time and temperature for whatever dish you are cooking. And because you are cooking with real scientific precision, you can always duplicate your fluffiest cake or most beautifully browned roast. Flavor is enhanced too! For electric ovens are so thoroughly insulated that very little evaporation takes place. Meats retain their rich juices and vegetables their valuable mineral contents. Everything goes much farther than in the days when the most nourishing and healthful part of the food went up the chimney in steam. Cook electrically for economy.
