"HELL'S ACRES" AND "AVIATOR'S GRAVEYARD"

Coming to the editor's desk, last veek, was the following: December 11th, 1929

Democratic Watchman. Bellefonte, Pennsylvania. I am doing my Christmas shopping early which explains the en-closed check for two year's advance I enclose a clipping from the New York Times, which you may have seen, and from which it would ap-pear that your cowboy nitwit joker is getting back at Bellefonte for the little squib you handed him some months ago as to the distinction between a fool and a clown. This unfortunate accident to the aviator happened many, many miles from Bellefonte and could have been saddled onto many other towns as well. To the best of my recollection Bellefonte has not contributed to so many fatal accidents as to compare with the sudden deaths, murders, etc., of Rogers' own immediate vicinity, which of course includes Holly.

With best wishes of the season, I am

Sincerely yours. C. B. WILLIAMS

The clipping to which Mr. Williams refers was Will Rogers' tribute to the lost air pilot, Thomas P. Nelson, published in the New York Times of December 7th, and was as follows:

Beverly Hills, Cal., Dec. 6 Our foreign friends always accuse us of being a loud, boisterous na-tion. Well, if you don't think Amer-ica can stand still and keep its mouth shut you just watch it as I have today when Hagen and Diegel are putting. The morning paper states, "An-other mail pilot found crashed on a hillside." Well, he might have been just another pilot to that newspaper, but he was more than that to me. This same boy Nelson, and right out of that same grave yard of aviators, Bellefonte, Pa., tried to get me through those mountains to New York one stormy night. He set he and I down that night in a bare spot no larger than a film actress's living room in my first forced landing, and without a scratch. So you wil pardon me if I look on him as a little more than "just an-other pilot." He was my first hero.

Yours, WILL ROGERS

Bellefonte and the Allegheny mountains have repeatedly been re-ferred to as "Hell's Acres" and the "Aviator's Graveyard," phrases coln-"Aviator's Graveyard," phrases coin-ed by a certain newspaper man at the time of the tragical crash of Charles H. Ames. The airmail has been carried over this route eleven vears and during that time fewer pi-lots have lost their lives in the Alle-gheny mountain section than have fallen to their death on the plains of Ohio, Indiana and Illinois or the low-lands of New Jersey.—ED. low-lands of New Jersey.-ED.

CASH GIFT APPRECIATED Mr. Editor:

One of the most delightful surprises ever experienced by the writer was a donation of $25.00 recently mailed to him by the Moose Lodge, of Bellefonte, to help defray the heavy expenses involved in maintaining the athletic life of the Bellefonte Academy. The spirit that inspired such a generous gift is beautiful and all interested in the success of the Academy will feel most profoundly grateful to the Moose Lodge for the real inspiration the gift will afford. It is a pleasure to publicly acknowledge such a splendid illustration of the Yuletide spirit. Very cordially yours, JAMES R. HUGHES.

The electric oven takes full charge of cooking delicious meals

An electric range does exactly what a cook would do ... relieve you of cooking responsibility after the food is prepared. It does the tedious watching and waiting. It automatically keeps the temperature just right for the most perfectly browned and deliciously tender result. You can be out of the kitchen during the entire cooking period.

All you have to do is place the food in the oven and set the time and temperature regulators. The current comes on at just the right moment and is shut off at just the right heat. So little evaporation takes place in the tightly sealed oven that there's no need to baste meat or add water to vegetables.

And everything goes farther, too! Home economists have estimated that about twenty per cent less shrinkage takes place in an electric oven. And the savory juices that are retained enhance flavor and make the simplest of electric-oven cooked meals both appetizing and nourishing. Cook electrically for economy!
