Thirty years ago, on Washington's birthday anniversary, we had the greatest flood ever recorded on Spring Creek. Mrs. Amanda Lukenbach, widow of the late A. Lukenbach, of Bellefonte, and who for some years has made her home with her son, Frank K. Lukenbach, in Tyrone, celebrated her 91st birthday anniversary on Wednesday last week. Notwithstanding her age she is enjoying remarkably good health.

A good-sized audience was present in the Presbyterian church, last Thursday evening, to hear Rev. W. K. McKinney tell the story of his trip through the Holy Land last summer, and as most of those who were there were personal friends of Dr. McKinney during the years he filled the Presbyterian pastorate in Bellefonte, they later attended a reception given him in the chapel. From his talk it was evident that Rev. McKinney missed nothing of interest on his trip and he has a faculty of telling it in a manner which made his talk extremely interesting.

This has been a good winter for wild life, so far. At no time has the snow been very deep and there have been only a few days when the temperature dropped to zero or below. While the natural food was not very abundant in the woods last fall game birds and animals have so far encountered little difficulty in getting something to eat. In various sections of the county game protectors and members of sportsmen's associations put out food for the birds so that they should come through the winter in good shape. This will help a lot toward assuring a good crop of birds next hunting season.

The Bellefonte Woman's club met in the High school building, last Monday evening, with Mrs. Witter as the presiding officer. After the reports of the various committees the discussion of the matter of keeping children off the streets at night took up some of the time as well as that of the borough ordinance that prohibits scattering sale bills promiscuously on the streets. The sub-normal child engaged the attention of those present for a while and it was reported that there are very few such in Bellefonte. At the close of the business session the club was most delightfully entertained for an hour by A. M. Krader, directress of music in the Bellefonte schools.

CRIMINAL CASES TRIED IN COURT THIS WEEK

Notorious Horse Barn Cases Aired Before Old and Young

When the regular session of court convened, on Monday morning, a number of petitions were heard, the jury list was gone over and excuses noted and the civil list for next week checked up. Three cases were continued, namely:

Ralph A. Smith vs. J. Clyde Thomas, Raymond S. Howard and Martin Dunlap, an action in ejectment.

Sadie W. Schaeffer and H. P. Schaeffer vs. Borough of Bellefonte, an action in trespass.

C. E. Knisely vs. Roy Wilkinson, guardian of Ross Griffin, an action in trespass.

The following cases have been disposed of: Commonwealth vs. William Swanser, charged with violation of liquor laws. The defendant pleaded guilty and was sentenced to pay the costs of prosecution, a fine of $250.00 and go on probation for a period of three years.

Commonwealth vs. Thomas Shay indicted for a statutory offense. Prosecutrix, Elizabeth Horan, Verdict on Monday afternoon of guilty and the usual sentence imposed.

Commonwealth vs. Clarence Benner, indicted for seduction. Prosecutrix, J. F. Krumrine for and in behalf of his daughter Esther. The case went to trial and resulted in a verdict of guilty.

Commonwealth vs. Rosa Ward, indicted for malicious mischief. Prosecutrix Emma Nelson. The case was tried without a jury and resulted in the defendant being convicted. She was sentenced to pay the costs of prosecution and undergo probation for a period of one year.

Commonwealth vs. Mike Mittal, indicted on a statutory charge. Prosecutrix, Anna Warholic. When the defendant was arraigned he pleaded not guilty and also pleaded the statute of limitation, the indictment not having been found within a period of two years from the time of the alleged crime. On Tuesday morning the district attorney moved the court for a nol pro which was allowed.

Commonwealth vs. John Reed, charged with violation of the motor laws. Prosecutrix C. I. Gross, State highway patrolman. This prosecution grew out of an accident by the defendant's car colliding with a car belonging to Mr. Ulrich, at Pleasant Gap, and it was discovered that the defendant was under the influence of intoxicating liquor. He entered a plea of guilty and was sentenced to pay the costs of prosecution, a fine of $100.00 and imprisonment in the county jail for a period of three months.

Commonwealth vs. Mike Mittal, indicted for wantonly and playfully handling fire arms. Prosecutrix Leo Boden, county detective. The prosecutrix, with other officers, went to Taylor township to serve a search warrant and defendant pointed a revolver at two of these officers, after night. The defendant fought strenuously that the men had no right to enter his home and castle and it was not proven that he knew who the parties were. The jury rendered a verdict on Tuesday afternoon of not guilty and put the costs on the county.

The notorious horse barn cases occupied the attention of the court all of Tuesday and Wednesday. These cases date back to a year ago when seven men were arrested on the charge of enticing a female child—Caroline Downing—to the horse barn at Coleville for immoral purposes. On April 30th, 1929, two of the men entered pleas of guilty and were sentenced, one to the penitentiary and the other to the county jail. The other five cases came up for trial this week. The defendants were Donald Davis, Earl Breen, Harry Cox, Paul Fanning and Clifford Davis.

When the first man was tried Judge Fleming told the district attorney that he couldn't sustain the charge of "enticing" and would have to confine himself to "taking" only. Donald Davis, Earl Breen and Harry Cox were convicted in the order named and were promptly sentenced to pay the costs of prosecution, $150 fine and placed on probation for five years.

Paul Fanning was acquitted and the costs put upon the county. Clifford Davis was the last man tried, the jury returning a verdict yesterday morning of not guilty but pay the costs.

Additional court news will be found on page 3.

This has been a wonderful week in filmdom at State College. The programs offered at the Cathaum and Nittany theatres there really seem like a Big Parade of the best. Tonight at the Cathaum "Chasing Rainbows" will be shown and tomorrow night there will be "The Big Party." At the Nittany tonight "Dynamite" will be shown and "Chasing Rainbows" will be moved to that house for another showing tomorrow night. You will make no mistake in going to see either or both of these pictures. They are really outstanding productions. And week after next March 10 and 11, the Cathaum will show George Arliss in "The Green Goddess." Mr. Arliss has probably been seen in the silent by most of you, but think of what a treat it will be to hear him in the dialogue of the powerful drama.

One year ago last Tuesday, February 25, 1929, Andrew R. McNitt checked out of the Bush house in this place. He was generally supposed to have been starting for the Sharky-Stribling fight at Miami Beach, Florida. Since that time he is said to have been seen only once.

Miss Eleanor Gettig, daughter of S. D. Gettig Esq., and stenographer in the law offices of Gettig & Bower, suffered an attack of appendicitis while at work last Thursday. She was taken to the Centre County hospital and underwent an operation on Friday. She is recovering nicely. During her absence Miss Elizabeth Barnhart is filling her position very satisfactorily.

Half Moon Gardens will open its new down town show room tomorrow. It will be located in the room on High street just vacated by Davison's candy shop. Mr. Tabel extends you a cordial invitation to visit his new place tomorrow, especially, and as often as you need any of the beautiful products of Half Moon Gardens. For the opening he will have music and dainty souvenirs for all who visit the new show room.

A large Folkier plane piloted by Colonel Mackie and Bert McGrath, which passed over Bellefonte Monday morning on its way from Roosevelt field, Long Island, to Tulsa, Okla., was compelled to make a forced landing near Clearfield about noon, that day, owing to fog and low visibility. The plane landed on a muddy field and nosed over. Both men suffered bruises but no serious injuries. The plane was only slightly damaged.

The Guggenheim Foundation for aeronautics has listed Bellefonte as one of the communities having a proper air-way location marker. In recognition of this the Foundation forwarded its certificate bearing the signature of Harry P. Guggenheim and Col. Charles Lindbergh to Bellefonte and at its Tuesday luncheon Kiwanis presented the trophy to Robert F. Hunter. Mr. Hunter was the person most interested in having the marker erected.

The coming week showings at both the Richelieu and State theatres offer a wide variety of screen entertainment. Everyone of the offerings are above the average and several are unusual attractions. "The Kibitzer," which will be shown next Wednesday and Thursday evenings, is the screen version of a stage play that created a sensation when it was brought out. As we have intimated you will not be disappointed on going to any of the shows that are advertised, but we recommend "The Kibitzer" especially.

After spending Sunday at his home at Pennsylvania Furnace Edgar J. Rossman started, on Monday morning, to motor to Cumberland, Md., where he is employed. A short distance west of Bellwood he was forced over a steep embankment when Sam Zackey, of Munson, attempted to pass a truck on a curve and headed straight for Rossman's car. To avoid a headon collision Rossman took the embankment. His car was wrecked and he sustained a cut on the scalp which required twelve stitches to close. After his injuries were dressed friends took him to Cumberland. Zackey was given a hearing and fined, and being unable to pay, was sent to the Blair county jail.

Only a handful of people gathered in the court house last Friday night to hear the debate between the teams from Asbury College and State. The subject was "Resolved, that modern advertising is more detrimental than beneficial to society." Asbury argued the affirmative side of the question. There were two men on each team and for an hour and a half they threw problems and answers at one another. It was a very pleasant fight the college boys engaged in but a very subtle one. Both sides argued their case so intelligently and came into the rebuttal so effectively that it is well that the debate was without decision for judges might have had a difficult matter in deciding which team really won.

Business men on Allegheny street between High and Howard are after borough council to fix up Pike alley from Allegheny street to Spring, so as to provide better traveling enroute to the postoffice. They claim that the alley should be paved, and more and stronger lights installed. That the telephone and electric light poles should be removed and all parking prohibited except cars and trucks loading and unloading or those using the garages along the alley. Some of the councilmen favor improving the alley but the removal of the poles is a rather difficult matter. All told there are twelve poles in that one block of alleyway, and they carry large cables as well as many wires. And there is no other place to put them unless they be placed in an underground conduit.

FATHER AND SON BANQUET AT Y. A GREAT SUCCESS

Just 255 fathers and sons sat down to the annual father and son dinner in the gymnasium of the Bellefonte Y. M. C. A., last Friday night at 6 o'clock and just two and one-half hours later they left the banquet board—everyone of them—with a spark of fellowship burning far brighter in their hearts than it had ever burned before.

After they had gathered about the tables that covered the entire floor of the gym J. Kennedy Johnston Esq., president of the Y. M. C. A. invited them to be seated and introduced the toast master, Rev. Robt. Thena, pastor of St. John's Reformed church. An hour was devoted to dispensing with the food which the ladies of the Y. Auxiliary—those devoted women—under the leadership of Mrs. Heine-man, had to serve. It was more and more palatable than anyone had a right to expect and because it was so surprisingly bountiful and good it was no wonder that the great gathering settled happily back into their chairs when Rev. Thena called them to listen to the oratorical flummery that followed the ice cream, cake and coffee.

First, Hon. James C. Furst was introduced and assigned the duty of proposing a toast to "Our Sons." He spoke about "honesty" the thing most desirable for youth to remember as the one solid foundation on which to build. It was a peculiarly appropriate thought to inject into that gathering and when his own son, Elwood, arose a few moments later, to respond to the toast "Our Dads" and told his father and every other father that the REAL boys of today are thinking more of that virtue than their Dads give them credit for those present realized why the guest speaker was so impressed with the spirit of it all that it was with difficulty that he could concentrate on the message he had to deliver. Dr. E. S. Malloy and his son, Eddy, followed former Judge Furst and his son, in response to the same toasts and added to the fire that had been kindled in the hearts of the dads and their sons.

Then Dr. A. B. Van Ormar, professor of biology, at Juniata college, Huntingdon, Pa., was introduced—and such a talk! For almost an hour he held the attention of old and young alike while he developed the thought of "two in one." It was the expression of a man who evidently knows and loves youth and while some who were there might take most to heart his story of the boy in the Huntingdon Reformatory who had never heard a kind word until he was sent to that institution we believe that the most constructive thought in his splendid talk was his appeal to save the "C" in Young Men's Christian Association.

Shieves, Mrs. Francis McGowan, Mrs. Sinclair, Mrs. E. Burns, Mrs. Coudret, Mrs. E. Leighly, Mrs. Al Leighly, Mrs. Peter Devlin, Mrs. M. J. There are few left of the names that were familiar there fifty years ago. The Webers moved to Boalsburg in 1855 or '56 and he still lives in the house in which he was born. At that time the village comprised scarcely more than eight or ten families and the descendants of a number of them are scattered now to the four points of the compass.

Harry, who was glad to learn, has about recovered from the severe case of ulcerated stomach which threatened to end his career about a year ago. He came through it without an operation, the cure having been effected by a brief regimen of milk and blut. Harry is looking fine, taking on weight and feels like new man.

John M. Boob, Millheim's fine, up standing young butcher, was in Bellefonte last Friday attending to some business and calling on friends. As the people would say: He's "a Natural!" for he is of the type that when met for the first time one feels that there is a fellow who is worth knowing and I'm going to like him a lot. Mr. Boob is an overseas veteran and saw a lot of fighting on the other side. He is head of the district "40 and 8" organization and takes great interest in the American Legion. While it is by no means a certainty it would not be surprising if he should decide to enter the race for nomination for sheriff. He is being urged by many of his friends to seek the office, but for what we were able to learn during our chat with him he figures that there is lots of time to make answer to their insistence and, meanwhile he is taking good look before he leaps.
