SNOW SHOE MAN MIGHT

BE VICTIM OF MURDER

William Pluebell, forty years of age, a resident of Snow Shoe who for some time past has been working at Coalport, was killed in a drinking bout at the latter place, some time on Saturday night, and police authorities are endeavoring to decide whether his death was the result of an accident or murder.

Pluebell was one of a group of a number of men who indulged in the feast of moonshine. According to the police all the men left the rendezvous along about midnight except Pluebell and John Krozell. Pluebell was found dead on Sunday morning and a pronounced bruise behind his ear looked as if he had been hit with a blunt instrument. The man's death was caused by hemorrhages.
