"Jack I am beginning to believe the baby looks like you."

"Are you dear?"

"Yes; I noticed it more and more every day."

"I'm so glad."

"Do you really want him to look like me?"

"Of course I do. I've been sorry ever since we had him christened that we didn't give him your name."

"Sweetheart, you don't know how happy you make me by saying that."

"And Jack dear, I found the loveliest hat today. I don't believe I ever saw anything that was so becoming to me. It's $25. Do you think I ought to pay that much for a hat?"

DOWNIE BROS. CIRCUS COMING ON MOTOR CARS.

It won't be long now, the big show will soon be here. The advance agents of Downie Bros., the largest motorized circus in the world, have just announced the coming of their big three ring circus for two performances, afternoon and night, in Bellefonte on June 20.

And every mother's son of us will be mighty glad to be young again or will we look around for a youngster to give us an alibi to be there as close to the center ring as possible. To laugh at the funny capers of the ever funny clowns, to marvel at the daring of the trapeze artists. Just to get another look at the glaring spangled robes, craning our necks and straining our eyes to be sure we miss none of the hundreds of wonders that are going on around us.

Or perhaps our fancy would be to wander through the menagerie, to feed peanuts to the elephants, to gaze at the strange and curious animals that the Downie Bros. agents have gathered from every corner of the globe.

Downie Bros. circus furnish all of this and at a price that is within the reach of all. Twenty-five and fifty cents general admission. Prices that since before the war have been unheard of.

And to make it a complete circus holiday, Downie Bros. provide at noon an old fashioned free street parade that is a mile in length. All the old ideas of a circus parade made modern and a mile splendor mounted on motor cars offer a sight not soon to be forgotten.

It requires over one hundred great motor trucks to transport this great amusement enterprise from town to town. Elephants, horses and everything are carried on motors instead of railroad trains.

IDENTIFICATION TAGS FOR BELL WORKERS.

A new method of identifying those of its employees whose duties necessitate their entering homes and business establishments has been inaugurated by the Bell Telephone company.

The company has issued to each employee whose work brings him in contact with the public a card bearing his photograph, typewritten name and signature. The cards replace the familiar metal, bell shaped badge which installers, repairmen and others in the company's service had worn for many years.

In addition to the employee's photograph, name and signature, each of the new identification cards bears the signature of the head of the department with which the employee is associated. While the photograph on the card serves to establish the identity of the bearer in homes and commercial establishments, the additional check of having the possessor of the card furnish his signature also can be made, if believed desirable. The old bell-shaped badges have been gathered up and destroyed by the telephone company.

Asker—Do you think the candi. date put enough fire into his speech? Teller—Rather. The trouble was he didn't put enough of his speech in the fire.

FARM NOTES.

The home garden will provide for winter use a good supply of vegetables which may be canned, dried, stored or cellar forced.

A widely recommended ration that has been extensively used by duck raisers, is as follows: As a starting ration a mash made up of equal parts of rolled oats and dried bread is fed. It is found desirable to add a small quantity of sand, one part to twenty parts of the mash, and moistened. As much as the ducks will clean up readily is fed five or six times daily. After the ducks are six days old equal parts of bran, yellow corn meal, rolled oats and dry bread can be fed.

Artificial brooding of turkey is a means of avoiding worms, lice, mites, and possibly blackhead, if the poults are kept away from infected areas.

Fruit thinning is more profitable on trees carrying an excessively heavy crop than on those where the set is slightly more than what is wanted. The return is likely to be greater on fancy varieties like Jonathan and McIntosh than on Ben Davis and Baldwin.

Good breeding stock and proper care are ton litter principles which should help to grow any litter of nine or more pigs to a weight of 2000 pounds at six months of age.

Dipping the sheep flock after shearing will save feed later because the operation will kill lice and ticks which annoy the lambs and keep them from making proper gains. Any good coal tar preparation or stock dip can be used.

Farmers' Weekly and Dairy Exposition at State College, June 17 to 19, will present a complete program of farm and home information. Entertainment will be provided in addition to the educational features.

As soon as the early garden crops are harvested, succession plantings can be made without interfering with the crops which will occupy adjoining ground all the season.

It is sometimes necessary to stake up the larger flowering peonies. This may be done by a support which will encircle the whole plant.

Now is the time to inspect the binder for needed repairs. If the knottor hook is rusty, polish it with fine emery paper.

Turkeys can be brooded successfully on platforms and the method is advocated where no range free from contamination is available.

All the summer flowering bulbs may be set out late in May. Setting gladioli out at bi-weekly intervals will provide a continuous supply of these flowers. The rule is to plant all bulbs twice as deep as their diameter.

Ton litters in Pennsylvania have averaged 10 pigs each. The smallest number was seven and the largest 18. As the cost per pig at weaning time depends largely on the number of pigs raised per sow, it is very important to use ton litter methods, save a large number of pigs, and have them as big and thrifty as possible at weaning time.

Numerous markets in the State make small fruit production a profitable venture. Cumberland and Plum Farmer are recommended black raspberries; Lathan, Cuthbert, Ontario, and Viking are the best red raspberry varieties, and Columbian is the leading purple raspberry.

Cabbage root maggots can be controlled by using corrosive sublimate. Make up the solution with one ounce of powder in eight gallons of water. Apply one-half tea-cupful around each cabbage plant. It should be mixed and used in stoneware or wooden receptacles instead of metal containers.

Soybeans, oats and peas, Sudan grass and the millets are emergency hays. Of these soybeans are the best. They are nearly equal to alfalfa in feeding value. Wilson is the standard variety but Manchou is best for northern Pennsylvania.

The use of cod liver oil in feeding hens during winter months and in raising young chicks during the early spring is one of the recent developments in poultry production. Practically every one who has used a good quality has found that it has been helpful in keeping up the vitality of the flock, preventing leg weakness in chicks and securing a better texture of shell with eggs.

The reason for the value of this product is largely due to the vitamin D which it contains. Vitamin D is the substitute for sunshine. It helps fowls to properly absorb the minerals which they consume. Without vitamin D or sunshine, fowls will fail properly to absorb minerals, even though they may be abundantly supplied.

The popularity of cod liver oil has encouraged the use of many substitutes. The fishy odor which is characteristic of many of these products is not a guarantee that they are of any particular value from the standpoint of being a substitute for sunshine. There is even a good deal of difference in the efficiency of cod liver oil, so it is well to buy a product that is either tested for vitamin content or guaranteed to give satisfaction.

Cows like to breathe fresh air. Barns need to be properly ventilated.
