S. artillery as a private. He became an army surgeon in 1901.

SENSATIONAL MAN HUNT FOR ALLEGED MURDERER

Chased to Earth in Hunter's Cabin George Clark Skidmore, of Pittsburgh, Escapes from Officers at Night. Shoots Two Men Saturday and Evades Capture by Large Posse. Life History of the Darling Young Man.

One of the most sensational man hunts that ever took place in Centre county transpired over the weekend and Sunday when a score or more state policemen and highway patrolmen, fifty or more members of the National Guard from Bellefonte, Lewistown and Lock Haven, and many civilians participated in a chase for George Clark Skidmore, a twenty year old Pittsburgh youth wanted in that city for alleged participation in the hold up of a filling station on the evening of September 20th and the murder of the crippled attendant, Charles P. Hammond.

The first intimation that Skidmore was implicated in the affair was obtained by Pittsburgh detectives through the arrest, on Wednesday of last week, of Eugene Batdorf for complicity in the theft of guns and 600 rounds of ammunition from the 176th field artillery of the National Guard. On being given the third degree Batdorf named Skidmore as one of his accomplices in stealing the guns and ammunition as well as a participant in the robbery of the filling station and the murder of Hammond. He also told the officers that Skidmore and one William Dutton had left Pittsburgh and gone into the mountains of Centre county, with which Skidmore had become well acquainted while a student at the Bellefonte Academy two years ago.

Batdorf's alleged statements were broadcasted over the tele-printer on Thursday and state highway patrolmen here at once began a search for the alleged fugitives. It was not until Friday afternoon, however, when they got a trace of the fugitives, who were then believed to be hiding in the mountains somewhere in this section. Later developments showed that Skidmore and William Dutton, traveling in the former's Hudson car, crossed the Point Bridge in Pittsburgh at 1:40 o'clock on Monday afternoon on their trip out of the city. They reached Bellefonte about five o'clock Tuesday morning but where they spent the entire day is not definitely known. At one time during the day their car was parked near the Academy where Skidmore's brother, Leonard Skidmore, who has been at the Academy this session, was seen in conversation with the two men. In the afternoon Skidmore and Dutton bought provisions at Jodon's grocery, laid in a supply of cigarettes and cigars at Garbrick's cigar store, in the Bush house block, and purchased fruit at Carpeneto's.

While no person has yet been found who saw them leave Bellefonte deductions of highway patrolmen point to the fact that they left here late in the afternoon, accompanied by Leonard Skidmore, and drove to the Allegheny mountains, away out along the road leading to Grass Flat and then taking another road to the right finally reached the cabin of Carl Ericson, the taxidermist of Phillipsburg. There George Skidmore and Dutton proceeded to make themselves at home while Leonard drove the car back to Bellefonte and parked it in Wrights' garage.

Leonard Skidmore had a motorcycle at the Academy and the supposition is that he used it in carrying food supplies to his brother and Dutton, but this is merely conjecture. But on Friday afternoon he received permission from Mr. Hughes to take a run to Tyrone on condition that he be back by six o'clock. While he was away two highway patrolmen went up to Hughes field and asked James R. Hughes if he had a student by the name of Leonard Skidmore and where they could find him. Mr. Hughes told them he had taken a trip on his motorcycle but would be back at 6 o'clock. When that time came Leonard telephoned Mr. Hughes that his motorcycle broke down at Port Matilda and he would have to hitch-hike home so would be a little late. He returned, however, about 6:35. About 7:30 in the evening corporal C. I. Gross went to the Y. M. C. A., where Mr. Hughes was attending a supper, and again inquired for Leonard. On being told he was at the Academy he went there and got him. The young man was told that the officers knew his brother was hiding in the mountains and through persuasion or compulsion Leonard accompanied them to the Ericson cabin near the Beaver dam on the Black Moshannon.

Composing the posse were Sergeant W. C. Baer and corporals C. I. Gross, J. G. Olmes and A. E. Beales, of the highway patrol, and Leonard Skidmore in one car. Game protector Thomas A. Mosier, W. J. Aikey and William Delansky, of Osceola Mills, in the other car. Young Skidmore acted as pilot and steered the posse to the location of the Ericson cabin, in one of the wildest spots in the Allegheny mountains.

Some distance from the cabin the officers left their cars and proceeded on foot. Arriving there they opened the door and found Dutton the only occupant. George Skidmore had seen the lights of the approaching cars and taking an army rifle, revolver and lots of ammunition had bolted into the woods. Dutton and Leonard were brought back to Bellefonte and placed in the Centre county jail on a commitment as "suspicious characters" issued by Squire J. L. Tressell. Sergeant Baer and corporal Beales remained at the cabin until towards morning in the hope that George Skidmore would return but he didn't and they finally left.

Along about noontime, on Saturday, the highway patrolmen again went to the mountains in an effort to capture Skidmore. They went up the Unionville road and near the Rattlesnake encountered William B. Fox, keeper of the airmail beacon light at the Rattlesnake, and stopping asked him if he had seen anything of a strange man. On being told who it was the officers were hunting Fox replied "why I know him; he used to come to Point McCoy frequently to see me when I was keeper of the beacon light there two years ago." Asked to join the party so as to identify Skidmore if they met him Fox consented. The party continued on past the intersection of the road from Julian and on rounding a curve they saw a man walking toward them with a gun on his arm. "There he is," said Fox.

Stopping their car the officers got out. Before they could make a move, however, Skidmore darted into the underbrush and opened fire. The first shot hit Fox in the left elbow and another shot hit the revolver stock of J. G. Olmes splitting his thumb and the bullet flying to pieces wounded him in a dozen or more places on the chest. One bullet from Skidmore's gun pierced the cap of sergeant Baer and another tore a hole in the trouser leg of corporal Gross. The officers returned the fire but Skidmore escaped.

Shortly after the fusilage of shots game keeper Elmer Pillings and Burgess John W. Beals, of Phillipsburg, happened along and they took the wounded men to Phillipsburg, Olmes to the State hospital and Fox to the McGirk sanitarium.

The highway patrol returned to Bellefonte for reinforcements and sheriff Dunlap, county detective Boden and about twenty-five members of Troop L, went to the mountains and joined in the search. Several Pittsburgh detectives in command of Lieut. Fran Ferris reached Bellefonte Saturday afternoon and also joined in the man hunt. The search was kept up until dark without finding a trace of Skidmore. Some of the men came in while a good-sized patrol was stationed all around the piece of woodland in which Skidmore was supposed to be hiding.

Sunday morning the searching force was augmented by twenty or more state police and highway patrolmen, as well as increased forces of the National Guard and many civilians. The underbrush was thoroughly combed but no trace of the man could be found, dead or alive.

About two o'clock in the afternoon word was received in Bellefonte of the finding of a gun on a coal car on the New York Central railroad in Jersey Shore, and checking up Pittsburgh detectives asserted it was the gun Skidmore had in his possession. Later a trainman employed in the Jersey Shore yards told of seeing a man in the yards early Sunday morning who tallied with the description of Skidmore, but at that time he knew nothing of the man hunt and made no effort to detain him. He, also, was unable to tell where he went. Satisfied that the man was Skidmore and that he had broken through the cordon of guards in the mountains some time Saturday night and made his escape, the hunt was called off in Centre county late Sunday afternoon and transferred to the country around Jersey Shore, but up to this time not a trace of Skidmore has been found.

Some are inclined to the belief that if the gun found at Jersey Shore was Skidmore's that it had been thrown on the train as a blind and that he is still in the Allegheny mountain section. According to Dutton he still has a revolver in his possession and lots of ammunition for it.

Whether the young man is guilty of the crime charged is not for us to say. Their father was a West Virginia mountaineer and their mother a Pittsburgh girl. After their marriage they went to live in Chicago and because of family disagreements Mrs. Skidmore obtained a divorce from her husband and was given the custody of her children. Later, the two boys were kidnapped by the father and taken to Wyoming. At that time they were but 6 and 8 years old but the father taught them the art of self-defense and also how to handle a gun with the result that both became good shots while only children. When the mother learned the whereabouts of her two boys she recovered them through due process of law and brought them to Pittsburgh where they have since lived with their grandmother, Mrs. M. J. Clark. Both boys entered the Bellefonte Academy two years ago, George remaining but one year while Leonard continued his studies and this would have been his last year.

When George was at school two

TWO PRISONERS ESCAPE FROM CENTRE CO. JAIL.

Centre county had its first jail delivery in years, on Monday night, when two escaped penitentiary convicts who had been recaptured and were being held for trial, broke through the ceiling of their steel cell and with a saw made from a table knife sawed a hole through the roof of the jail. With a blanket rope made from their bed clothing they descended from the roof into the jail yard. They tied a big stone on the end of their blanket rope, heaved it over the jail wall and thus climbed to freedom. The escape took place between one and two o'clock in the morning and was not discovered until four hours later.

The two men are Steve Walters and Joseph Chali, a Cuban, both of Allegheny county. Walters was sent to the penitentiary for 5 to 10 years for the larceny of an automobile, Chali 4 to 10 for larceny. They made their escape from Rockview on Sunday evening, August 31st, and were captured near Spring Mills on Thursday, September 4th. The men have all along refused to plead guilty to escape and it is believed that their reason for doing so is because they contemplated breaking jail, if possible.

While the cell in which the two men were kept was lined with three-eighths inch steel, it is the same cell from which a former prisoner attempted to escape and had partial success. He pried loose one of the steel plates in the ceiling. This plate had never been wholly repaired and it was by prying it loose that the prisoners were able to make a hole big enough to crawl through.

Penitentiary officials have offered a reward of fifty dollars each for the recapture of the men.

W. B. RICH WILL LEAVE THOUSANDS TO CHARITIES.

The will of the late Michael Bond Rich, of Woolrich, who was killed in an automobile accident about a month ago, was filed for probate at Lock Haven last week. He left an estate estimated to exceed a million dollars, the bulk of which is left to members of his family and relatives.

Other bequests, however, included $5,000 to the trustees of the Methodist church at Woolrich as an endowment, the income to be used in paying the minister's salary; $10,000 is to be paid to the board of directors of the Williamsport Dickinson Seminary as an endowment or for purchasing land for the erection of additional buildings by the Seminary; $10,000 is to be paid to the Methodist Home for the Aged at Tyrone for purchasing land for the use of said home. The board of trustees of the Woolrich church will receive the sum of $1500, which income is to be used to maintain the cemetery and burial ground. At the death of Harold S. Rich, the Methodist Home for the Aged will receive $5000; the Methodist Home for Children, Central Pennsylvania Conference, will receive $2000, and $5000 will be paid to the trustees of the Williamsport Dickinson Seminary for a scholarship fund for young men and women who intend to devote their lives to preaching the Gospel or to missions or deaconess work, and this fund will be known as the Rich Memorial.

BELLEFONTE WOMAN MIGHT REAP FORTUNE FROM GAS.

Up in Farmington township, Tioga county, they have just succeeded in harnessing a well that for a week or more spouted forth 22,000,000 cubic feet of natural gas daily. This in itself might not be of much interest to Bellefonte people but readers of the Watchman will be interested in knowing that Mrs. Wells L. Daggett owns 134 acres of land and has a half interest in the mineral rights on two farms which are located within half a mile of the big gas gusher.

Geologists and experienced gas drillers aver that her property is in the gas basin and representatives of the gas company operating in that vicinity have communicated with her regarding a lease of her property, and are expected in Bellefonte most any day to make a deal. Naturally Mrs. Daggett's friends rejoice at this appearance of good fortune for her and hope that spouting wells will be found on her property.

LEWISBURG BARBER WILL SHAVE MAN IN LION'S DEN.

The Union County fair at Lewisburg will open next Tuesday and continue until Friday night, the 10th. Beside the regular exhibits of the products of farm, garden and household products good racing programs are scheduled for Wednesday, Thursday and Friday.

The Excel Animal circus will be the big amusement attraction and will give shows every night. The fair association has offered $100 to any barber and customer who will enter the den of lions and go through with a shaving act. Another $100 is offered for any couple who will be married in the lion's den.

Rumor has it that one Lewisburg barber has entered for the shaving act and has a customer who will let him shave him in the den. The evening shows will continue from 7:15 to 9 o'clock.

—Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert McIlvain were here from Downingtown, recently, for a short visit with Mrs. McIlvain's relatives and friends in the town. Mr. McIlvain, one of the best known architects of the east, was making his first visit to Bellefonte, while Mrs. McIlvain, formerly Miss Betty Breese, having spent much of her life here as a child, was only back home on one of her occasional visits.

—Mr. and Mrs. Allan Garman were in Bellefonte, Wednesday, just returning from a motor trip east where they spent much of the time while away in New York city. For the past several years Mr. and Mrs. Garman are at their home in Tyrone very little of their time, both being fond of traveling and Mr. Garman having retired from business, they are in a position to live where and how they choose.

—Mr. and Mrs. George Horstbeck, who were here from Wednesday until Sunday of last week, were house-guests of the Clayton E. Royer and S. H. Hoy families during their stay in Bellefonte.

—Thomas Patterson, of Seattle, was in Bellefonte between trains, Sunday, for his first visit here with Mrs. Patterson's aunt, Miss Margaret Stewart; having stopped in Bellefonte enroute west from a business trip to New York. Mrs. Patterson recently spent a year at the Stewart home and with other relatives in the east.

—With fall comes the gunning season and then a strange light comes into the eyes of those who love to take down the trusty gun and lie away into the woods. We saw just such a light in friend Bill Zimmerman's eyes last Monday so we started hunting talk. There's where Bill is at home and we might have been talking yet if the little matter of keeping someone waiting dinner for us had not come up. Incidentally, Bill is in the woods every chance he gets and his eyes on bees too. He has eleven marked now that he expects to get a lot of honey out of later in the fall.

—Miss Margaret Cook has been in Philadelphia, this week, continuing her course of treatments under specialists.

—Mrs. George W. Norris and Mrs. Thompson, of Philadelphia, were arrivals here yesterday. They motored up for a visit of several days and are at "The Talleyrand."

—Mrs. M. A. Kirk went out to Meadville yesterday by bus, expecting to be there with her daughter, Mrs. C. H. Young and the Young family, for ten days. When leaving she had made tentative plans for spending a short time in Pittsburgh. Dr. and Mrs. Kirk will have with them this winter their two grandsons and Mrs. Norman Kirk, who anticipate closing their home east of town, the last week in October.

PLANNING WINTER TRIPS TO THE RIO GRANDE

Charles Glenn is in the county representing the American Rio Grande Land and Irrigation Co., of Mercedes, Texas. He is planning a series of trips to that land of opportunity and anyone interested can get in touch with him either by telephone at State College or inquiry at this office.

These trips are arranged for the purpose of selling land in the Rio Grande valley, but those who take them are in no wise committed to buy. All the company wants to accomplish through them is to get people from the north down there to see what opportunities are offered. Their own eyes and judgment are their guides and if they buy, all right. If they don't, it's all right too.

The trips are personally conducted, planned so that the tourist will have every luxury of travel and sight seeing and the round trip for two people is only $150.00 from Altoona. This covers everything for two weeks, car fare, Pullman service hotels and sight seeing side trips.

Mr. Glenn has his first trip of the winter scheduled to start on October 10. If you are interested in this one or any of the following trips get in touch with him at once.

MEMORIAL ENDOWMENT FOR MRS. W. I. FLEMING.

At the last Sunday morning services in the Bellefonte Methodist church Dr. Horace Lincoln Jacobs, the pastor, presented to the trustees of the church a check for $2000.00. It was the gift of Wilson I. Fleming to the Corporation for the purpose of carrying out his deceased wife's plan to create an endowment fund to be known as the "Fleming Memorial Bequest."

Half of the income of the bequest is to go to maintenance of the local church, the other half to general benevolences.

The gift was accepted on behalf of the trustees by S. Claude Herr.

BELLEFONTE ACADEMY LOST TO DUQUESNE.

In a hard fought game, on Hughes field last Saturday, the Bellefonte Academy football team lost their opening game to the Duquesne Freshmen by the score of 7 to 0. The teams were well matched though Duquesne showed a little more development in team work than the Academy.

Tomorrow afternoon the Academy will meet the Western Maryland Freshmen on Hughes field. Game will be called promptly at 2:30 o'clock. General admission, $1.00; students, 50 cents. This, also, will be a game worth seeing.

MORAN AND MACK IN "ANYBODY'S WAR."

Following the signal success of their first picture, "Why Bring That Up?" Moran and Mack's second production has been eagerly awaited by the hosts of movie-goers who enjoyed the hilarious mirth-making of this inimitable pair.

Now it's here "Anybody's War," the second "Two Black Crows" comedy feature, comes to the Richelieu theatre Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday of next week.

"Anybody's War" has been referred to by a Hollywood writer as "All Riot On the Blackface Front."

PHILIPSBURG YOUNG MAN ARRESTED AS FIREBUG.

Henry Johnson, 22 years old, of Phillipsburg, was arrested on Tuesday night on the charge of starting fires in that town which destroyed a quarter million dollars worth of property. In default of bail he was brought to the Centre county jail to await trial at the next term of court. Johnson, it is alleged, made a confession in which he stated that he started the fires because he got a thrill out of seeing the firemen running.
