

Bellefonte, Pa., October 24, 1930.

P. S. C. 75th ANNIVERSARY CELEBRATION IS ON.

Nearly a thousand official guests and many hundreds of visitors are helping the Pennsylvania State College celebrate the 75th anniversary of its founding this week. Attracted by the opportunity to see the entire workings of their State College guests and visitors started to arrive even before yesterday, first of the three-day program, and continued to pour in this morning.

Representing the State at the celebration is Governor John S. Fisher, his official cabinet, and heads of many of the State departments. Governor Fisher speaks at the public convocation this afternoon at which time the buildings erected with $3,250,000 appropriated by the State will be officially turned over to the college.

College presidents are in attendance from every part of the State to participate in the event, as are leaders in secondary education and from the State Department of Public Instruction. Representatives of religious, industrial, and business life are in attendance at the birthday party of the institution to which they look for so much of the fundamental research and information on which they depend.

The celebration opened with discussion of educational needs of the State with particular interest centering on the closer cooperation between colleges and secondary schools. Today the big public participation in celebrating the anniversary of the people's college occurs, and Saturday the alumni return for their annual homecoming and dedication of rebuilt Old Main.

Leaders in Pennsylvania oil and gas production are holding a conference at the college today and Saturday.

Friends of the College as well as strangers have been impressed with the way the natural beauty of the campus has been restored after being torn up for a year or more while the big building program has been in force. They have also been impressed with what has been accomplished in the erection of buildings that has placed the college plant on a par with any in the country.

During the present anniversary proceedings activities of the various schools will be on display for the inspection of all visitors.

Today's program will open with a student parade at 10 o'clock in which manifold activities of the undergraduates will be represented. More than 4000 students will be in line.

At one o'clock a luncheon will be furnished to official guests.

At 2.30 this afternoon there will be an academic procession from the rebuilt Old Main to recreation hall where a convocation will be held. President Ralph D. Hetzel will preside and the speakers will be Governor John S. Fisher, Charles Z. Klauder, college architect, and J. Franklin Shields, president of the college board of trustees.

Tomorrow will be annual Homecoming Day for the alumni and the program is as follows:

8 a. m. to 12 m., inspection of new buildings.

10.30 a. m., Alumni Council meeting in Old Main.

12.15, Alumni luncheon, Old Main sandwich shop.

Pennsylvania State College in 1864

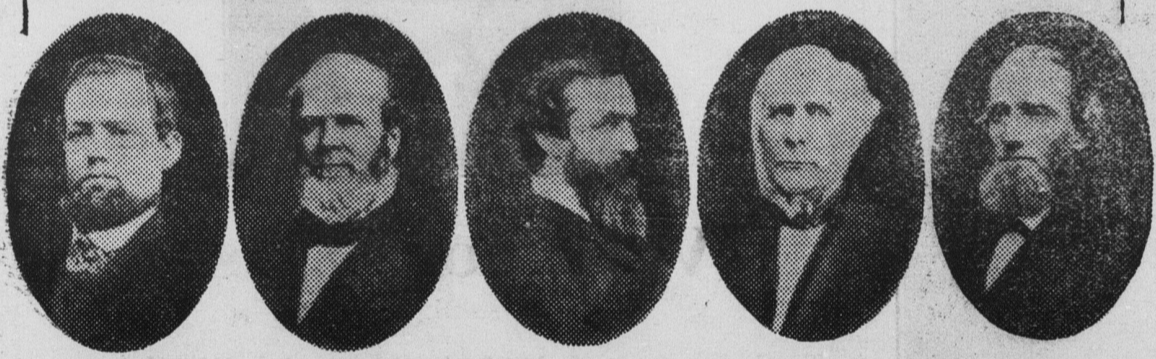

"OLD MAIN"

DR. EVAN PUGH

When Dr. Evan Pugh, 31-year-old chemist, in 1859 became president of what is now the Pennsylvania State College, he found only one wing of this lone college building. Before his untimely death in 1834, the structure had been completed and the institution had become the Agricultural College of Pennsylvania, and designated by Act of the State Legislature as the Land Grant College of Pennsylvania. The building is "Old Main," twice remodeled and finally rebuilt with the same stone, and is to be dedicated on Alumni Homecoming Day, October 23, during celebration of the 75th anniversary of Penn State's founding.

MEN'S DORMITORIES

The wonder that thousands of Pennsylvania boys and girls seek admission to the Pennsylvania State College when student recreational and campus activities there are centered in buildings such as these, provided for the most part by alumni and friends of the college. Principal events of the college 75th anniversary celebration on October 23, 24 and 25 will take place in "Old Main" and Recreation Hall. "Old Main," just completed, will be dedicated on Alumni Homecoming Day, October 25, following the Penn State-Colgate football game.
