

NEWS ABOUT TOWN AND COUNTY.

A son, the first grand child of Mr. and Mrs. Myron M. Cobb, was born Saturday, to Mr. and Mrs. Arnold C. Cobb, at Fort Wayne, Indiana. The little lad has been named, Warren Calvin Cobb.

Another case of scarletina having developed among the children in the North ward primary school building, the school room and all the books were thoroughly fumigated on Monday night to prevent any possible contagion.

The Harry C. Valentine house on west Curtin street, adjoining that in which Mrs. Valentine and Miss Mary Valentine now live, has been rented by the L. C. Heisenman family, who will move there from east Bishop street.

Don't overlook the fact that to-night is the time for the Bellefonte Academy football dance at Hecla park. It will be a semi-formal affair and open to the public at the price of $3.00 per couple. Good music is promised.

Hugo Bezdek, director of the school of physical education at the Pennsylvania State College, has been named a member of the committee that will select the men who will represent American college boxers in the next Olympic games.

The new inter-urban motor bus line at State College is in operation. Buses are being run on regular schedules. All routes center on the campus and times are being worked out as nearly as possible to conform with college class schedules.

A gymnastic team has been added to intercollegiate sports at the Pennsylvania State College. In a few years, we presume, they will be turning out circus performers up there, as well as coaches and prize fighters. The gymnasts will show their stuff in competition with Temple University on the gymnasium floor at State tomorrow.

The average deficiency in rainfall in Pennsylvania in 1930 was 13.61 inches. Carbon and Schuylkill counties fared worst with a deficiency of 18 inches, while Cambria was short 17 inches. The normal average for the State is 48 inches a year. Snow helps, but not as much as you might think, for 10 inches of snow is equivalent to only 1 inch of water.

The February meeting of the Woman's club, of Bellefonte, was held in the High school building Monday evening, at 7:30 o'clock. Mrs. Jacob Hoy presided at the business meeting. It was voted to contribute $5.00 to the Pine Mountain settlement and $5.00 to the Red Cross for relief work in the drought areas. At 8 o'clock, in the High school auditorium, Mrs. F. W. Hall, of State College, gave a most interesting and instructive illustrated lecture on the "Passion Play at Oberammergau."

The Clearfield Taxidermy every year awards prizes for the best specimens of deer heads received for mounting, and the judging of the heads submitted as the result of the 1930 season took place recently. In the neighborhood of 1200 heads were included in the collection, which was the finest ever received in any year. The second most perfect head submitted, according to the judges, was by Frank Irvin, of Pleasant Gap. It had 8 points, 18 1/2 inch spread, one quarter inch maximum variation.

In the neighborhood of ninety officials and employees of the West Penn Power company in Bellefonte and at State College celebrated Washington's birthday, Monday evening, with a baked ham supper, in the P. O. S. of A. hall, in the Potter-Hoy block. During the evening it was decided to organize a local branch of the National Electric Light Association and forty-two names were promptly placed on the membership roll. This number will likely be increased by the time the association is ready to perfect a permanent organization.

Bellefonte friends of Miss Margaret Miller will regret to learn that she fell in her room, at the Presbyterian home in Hollidaysburg, early Monday morning, fracturing her collar bone and sustaining other injuries. Last November Miss Miller celebrated her 98th birthday anniversary and guests at the home have already been planning a big celebration for her when she rounds out a century. It is because of this fact that her injury now is especially deplored, and also because she is reported as being one of the most cheerful of all the guests in the home.

John W. Hess, who has been a patient in the Centre County hospital since December 4th as the result of a gunshot wound in the hip while hunting in the Seven mountains with the Modock Hunting Club, of which he is a member, was taken to his home in Altoona, on Tuesday. While he has not entirely recovered and will likely be confined to his home for some time, his condition was enough improved to permit of his being moved. A small party of Bellefonte friends were at the railroad station to say good bye and express a wish for his early permanent recovery.

IRENE SCHROEDER PAID THE DEATH PENALTY. Walked to the Electric Chair, Monday Morning, Without Flinching.

Mrs. Irene Schroeder, who was a front page headliner ever since that afternoon on December 27th, 1929, when she and her illicit lover, Warren Glenn Dague, figured in the killing of State highway patrolman, Brady Paul, held steadfastly in the spotlight until her final ignominious end in the electric chair at Rockview on Monday morning. And whatever she may have been in her brief life of 22 years those who condemned her most could not but admire the iron courage with which she met her fate.

With a step unflinching she walked the short distance from her cell in the death house into the chamber of horrors and spurning assistance virtually climbed into the death chair, as she was too short to sit down in it naturally. She was attended to the chair by two nurses and it was one of the latter who strapped the electrode fast to her left ankle. It was just one minute after seven o'clock when Robert Elliott manipulated the switchboard which meant death to the blonde gun woman, and four minutes later she was officially pronounced dead by the attending physicians.

Dague went to the chair at 7:08, exhibiting the same fortitude and courage as did his paramour, and at 7:13 he, also, was pronounced dead. The bodies were both claimed and turned over to funeral director E. E. Widdowson. Dague's body was shipped to Wheeling, W. Va., on Monday afternoon, in a shipping case only, while the body of Irene was shipped to Wheeling, on Tuesday afternoon. It was also enclosed in a shipping case only.

The crime for which the woman and man paid with their lives was the killing of a highway patrolman on December 27th, 1929. That afternoon a report was flashed to the patrol barracks at New Castle that a grocery store had been robbed near Butler. Patrolmen Brady Paul and Ernest Moore were sent out to apprehend the robbers. Three miles from New Castle they took a stand and challenged all traffic. When a car came along carrying two men, a woman and a boy they stopped it and asked the man at the wheel, who proved to be Dague, for his driver's license. Both Dague and Mrs. Schroeder got out of the car and both drew guns and ordered the patrolmen to stand off. When the latter attempted to draw their guns there was a fusillade of shots. Paul fell mortally wounded and Moore was also badly wounded. Dague and the Schroeder woman reentered the car and sped away.

They went to Wheeling, W. Va., where they left the boy, Mrs. Schroeder's son, then started west together. At St. Louis, Mo., they kidnapped a deputy sheriff, took his gun and threw him out of the car by the roadside. They finally reached Arizona where they had several conflicts with the authorities, mortally wounding a sheriff and shooting a deputy. They were finally captured in the Ostrelia mountains, on January 14th, 1930.

They were brought back to New Castle, tried and convicted, with the death sentence recommended. An appeal was taken to the Supreme court which, in December, refused to recommend a new trial. Governor Fisher named January 12th as the date for their electrocution. An appeal for commutation was then made to the Board of Pardons, but at a meeting, on Wednesday of last week, the Board refused to intervene. Applications poured into the Governor's office imploring him to intervene, or at least grant another respite, as no woman had ever been electrocuted in the State, but the Governor was obdurate and refused to intervene in any way.

In the meantime preparations had been under way at Rockview penitentiary for the electrocution of the pair. Warden Stanley P. Ashe came in from Pittsburgh and took personal charge of the arrangements. The time of the removal of Dague and Mrs. Schroeder from New Castle to Rockview was kept secret as possible and it was not until 11:40 o'clock Saturday morning that Sheriff Harry Johnston, left that city to bring the condemned pair to Centre county, Dague and Mrs. Schroeder were handcuffed together, and the sheriff was handcuffed to the woman. The sheriff's wife, a matron and several guards accompanied them. Several carloads of newspaper men trailed along.

The trip was made by way of Kittanning, Ebensburg, Hollidaysburg, Water Street and up Spruce Creek valley and through State College to Rockview, where they landed at exactly 5:20 p. m. Mrs. Schroeder was one of the most unconcerned in the entire party.

During her brief stay in the death house Irene never lost her composure, ate heartily, slept well and was game to the last. The double electrocution was a feast for yellow journalism and wild and vivid imagination ran riot with truth and veracity. Newspaper writers vied with each other in an endeavor to turn out the most vivid story in order to satiate the public appetite for all the morbid details of the blonde gun woman's tragic exit.

Interest in the details were not confined to the home locality of the principals or western Pennsylvania, where highway patrolman Brady Paul was shot down while in the performance of his duty. It was general all over the United States and cabled abroad by the press associations.

Newspaper correspondents and staff photographers invaded Bellefonte last Friday and by Saturday evening the number had swelled to twenty-nine men and three women. Under the pressure of this avalanche of writers penitentiary officials yielded a heretofore obdurate point and permitted the Western Union Telegraph company to establish a branch office in the residence of deputy warden W. J. McFarland, where four expert operators were installed to help handle the press of news dispatches.

Another point yielded by prison officials was that of giving out a flash as soon as the execution of Irene was completed and another when Dague was pronounced dead. For these flashes a complete circuit of one thousand miles of telegraph wire, from New York to Chicago, were kept open and a score of newspaper offices were connected up with telegraph operators alert at their keys to catch the dots and dashes announcing the electrocution, and not a single office missed the call.

All told approximately 150,000 words of news dispatches were sent out from Bellefonte from Saturday morning until Monday evening, and not a hitch of any great importance occurred. It was the biggest news event ever to happen in Bellefonte.

All the newspaper men spoke with appreciation of the courtesy and fair treatment of warden Ashe and deputy warden McFarland, as representatives of the Commonwealth they did everything possible under the law to assist the news writers and at the same time protect the two condemned persons placed in their charge.

Most of the men appreciated this fact while a few of them, especially the photographers, were unduly persistent. This was emphasized when five of them attempted to invade the undertaking establishment of E. E. Widdowson to take pictures of the dead bodies of Irene and her lover, and had to be forced to leave by highway patrolmen on guard.

Nothing daunted they proceeded to the railroad station and took shots at the shipping case containing Dague's body was transferred from the hearse to the train on Monday afternoon. A large crowd of the morbidly curious were also present to see the body being shipped.

Rev. H. O. Teagarden, of Piedmont, Ohio, Dague's spiritual advisor, was made custodian of the last wishes of the couple. He claims to have a complete statement of Dague's life, about 24,000 words in all, which he is figuring on having published with a view of liquidating some unpaid expenses in connection with the long fight for life, as well as a benefit for the children of both Dague and Mrs. Schroeder.

The first meeting between Dague and Mrs. Schroeder took place several years ago. She, an estranged wife and mother, was working as a waitress in a Wheeling restaurant. Dague conducted an automobile bonding and insurance business in the same city and was superintendent of a Sunday school. One night, while driving in the suburbs of Wheeling, he came near to running down a woman. It was Mrs. Schroeder. Taking her in his car they crossed the river to Belleaire, Ohio, and spent the night together at a hotel. That was the beginning.

In due time Dague gave up his business, left his wife and two children and joined Mrs. Schroeder in a career of crime. Stealing automobiles was a specialty and at one time they had five of them parked in one garage in Wheeling. From stealing automobiles to robbery was a short step, and it ended in their downfall.

Rev. Teagarden, of Piedmont, Ohio, spiritual adviser of the pair was early in life a coal miner. Later he became an evangelist and Dague made his acquaintance when the preacher held evangelistic services in Wheeling back in 1917. The minister came with the pair to Rockview and stayed with them to the end.

Mrs. Schroeder's father and brother, Joseph and John Crawford, came to Bellefonte on Saturday, and after a final farewell visit with Irene left for Wheeling on Sunday.

Another conspicuous figure in the double electrocution was Robert Elliott, of New York, legal executioner. Elliott shuns newspaper men and being informed that Bellefonte was full of them he left the train at Milesburg, Sunday morning, was brought to Bellefonte by automobile and went into seclusion at the home of a friend until taken to Rockview early Monday morning. Elliott has been legal executioner for Pennsylvania since the latter part of 1925, and Dague, the last to go on Monday morning, was the 67th electrocution he has performed at Rockview.

It cost the taxpayers of Lawrence county $23,658 to capture and convict Irene and Dague, for the slaying of Corporal Brady Paul, of the State highway patrol. One thousand dollars reward was paid for ERIE TRAVELING MAN A SUICIDE IN PHILIPSBURG.

Jack B. McFarland, of Erie, traveling salesman for the National Gypsum Co., of Buffalo, N. Y., shot and killed himself at the door of one of the apartments in the Brown Boot Shop building, Philipsburg, at an early hour Sunday morning. McFarland, it is alleged, during his frequent trips to Philipsburg, became enamored with a young woman of that place, who believed him a single man. Recently she learned that he was married and had two grownup sons.

When he called to see her on Saturday, she rebuffed his advances with the result that a quarrel followed. The man left. Early Sunday morning he went to the apartment and aroused the woman. She went to the door and opened it and as she did so he drew a revolver and shot himself. Coroner W. R. Heaton held an inquest which resulted in a verdict of suicide. The remains were sent to Butler for burial.

DOUG FAIRBANKS COMING TO CATHAUM NEXT WEEK.

Dashing, dynamic Douglas Fairbanks comes to the Cathaum theatre, State College, on Monday and Tuesday of next week, in his latest production, "Reaching for the Moon," and at last you will get Doug in a modern story—a three-mile-a-minute tornado of action, fun, high jinks and romance. It is a new Doug you'll never forget—a dashing, daring, dynamic devil-may-care Wall street marketeer! matching wits with millionaires! racing, romping, leaping through countless thrills and risking everything for the love of a girl he had seen but once.

"Reaching for the Moon" is the best Fairbanks production of recent years. Bebe Daniels reaches new heights as the girl for whom Doug risks everything. Edward Everett Horton, Jack Mulhall, Claud Allister and others are in the cast.

The Bellefonte Academy basketball team will play the Colgate freshmen, on the armory floor, at 7 o'clock this evening. Go down and see the game. The Colgate boys will stop here on their way to State College and while in Bellefonte will be guests at The Markland.

THEIR CAPTURE BY THE COUNTY COMMISSIONERS.

Mrs. Schroeder was the twenty-sixth woman to pay the death penalty and the tenth to die in Pennsylvania for a crime. The first execution of a woman took place in this State in 1871, when Mary Hall was put to death for burglary, which was then a capital offense.

She and Dague made the sixth execution of a man and woman together in the United States.

The other five couples who have figured in double executions had murdered the spouses of one of the principals. Dague and Mrs. Schroeder, however, were sentenced to death for killing a State Highway patrolman, who had pursued them after a robbery.

The first execution of a man and a woman was at Preston, Ga., in 1873, when Mrs. Susan Eberhart and Enoch Spann were hanged for the murder of Spann's wife. In the other four "triangle" cases, which resulted in murder and then double executions, wives conspired with lovers against husbands.

George Smith and Catherine Miller paid with their lives in Lycoming county, Pennsylvania, in 1881, for murdering her husband.

While only nine States have legally executed women, there have been lynchings in other States where notorious females aroused popular indignation. "Cattle Kate" died at the end of a lasso in Wyoming in pioneer days, for cattle rustling, and Juanita, a Mexican girl, was hanged by a mob in San Francisco in the gold rush days.

Besides the ten legal executions of women in Pennsylvania, eight in New York and two in New Jersey, there has been one in each of the following States: Alabama, Arizona, Georgia, Vermont, Louisiana and Virginia.

LIST OF WOMEN EXECUTED.

A list of the recorded executions of women in the United States follows:

- Pennsylvania—Mary Hall, 1781; Elizabeth Rimby, 1808; Elizabeth Moore, 1809; Susanna Cox, 1809; Mary Twigg, 1858; Charlotte Jones, 1858; Martha Gunder, 1866; Leona Miller, 1867 and Catherine Miller, 1881; Irene Schroeder, 1931. New York—Margaret Houghtaling, 1817 (hanged for murder of her baby, but a year later a neighbor woman confessed on her deathbed that she had committed the crime); Elizabeth Van Valkenburg, 1846; Mrs. Runkle, 1849; Ann Hoag, 1852; Roxalina Druse, 1887; Martha Place, 1899; Mary Farmer, 1909; Ruth Snyder, 1925. New Jersey—Bridget Durgan, 1867; Martha Meierhofer, 1874. Alabama—Silena Gilmore, Negro, 1930. Arizona—Eva Dugan, 1930. Georgia—Susan Eberhart, 1873. Louisiana—Ada Bonner Le Boeuf, 1929. Vermont—Mary Rogers, 1909. Virginia—Virginia Christian, Negro, 1912.

NEWS PURELY PERSONAL.

Mrs. Harry Dunlap and her brother, Andrew Saylor, went to Wheeling, W. Va., Sunday to attend the funeral of Mrs. Lewis Berchey.

Dr. Walter Stewart returned to Wilkes-Barre, Monday, after having spent the greater part of last week in Bellefonte, at the Stewart home on west Linn street.

Mrs. C. T. Hennig, a former resident of Bellefonte, was in from Cleveland for a week-end visit with friends here, being a guest at the Markland during her stay.

Mrs. Harry Keller returned to Bellefonte yesterday and for the present will be a guest at The Markland. Mrs. Keller has been spending the winter in New Brunswick, Wyncote and Lancaster, with members of the family.

Mr. and Mrs. John Sommerville, with Miss Lucy Potter as a driving guest, motored to Winburne, Tuesday, for a short visit at the Sommerville home, where Miss Bessie's condition has again become critical.

Miss M. H. Snyder left, Tuesday, for New York to attend some of the spring openings and to do some buying for her hat store. A part of the time she is away will be spent with her niece, Mrs. Daly and the family, in Washington.

Mr. and Mrs. Sid Bernstein will leave, Sunday, to motor to New York City, on a buying trip for the Ritz store, which is fast becoming one of the most popular shopping places of Bellefonte. Mr. and Mrs. Bernstein anticipate spending the after part of the week at Atlantic City.

Miss Anne Keichline left, Wednesday, to go to Cleveland to attend a meeting of the Ceramic Society, of which she is a member and before which she will speak on introducing a new type of insulated wall, numbers of tests of which, have been run at the Pennsylvania State College.

Miss Mary Forbes, instructor of English in the Bellefonte high school, entertained Miss Hildebrand, of Lancaster, and three fellow workers in the schools of Johnstown, over the week-end. Although Miss Forbes is from Chambersburg she had taught in Johnstown before coming to Bellefonte.

Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Talbot having with them Mrs. Talbot's nephew, Tommie O'Brien, drove up from Philippi, last week, for a week's visit with Mrs. George M. Gamble, who accompanied them home yesterday. Upon leaving, Mrs. Gamble's plans were for a two week's visit with her two daughters, Mrs. O'Brien and Mrs. Talbot.

Mrs. Sudie Woodin returned home Saturday night, after spending the winter with her two nieces, Mrs. Seixas, and her family, at Germantown, and Mrs. James Harris and the Harris family, at Reading. Mr. Seixas accompanied Mrs. Woodin to Bellefonte, and after an over Sunday visit with Mr. and Mrs. Jerome Harper, went on to Clearfield for speaking engagements.

Miss Mary Blanchard went over to Huntingdon, Wednesday morning, to attend a meeting of the board of directors of the Huntingdon reformatory. From there Miss Blanchard went on to Lewisport, where she met her sister, Mrs. Beach, for a ten days trip to Philadelphia. During their absence, Mrs. A. Wilson Norris, who occupies a part of the Blanchard home, will live at The Talleyrand.

In order to keep a morning engagement in Altoona, Tuesday, Mrs. David Dale and Mrs. John Shugert went to State College by bus, changed there to the Tyrone bus and from Tyrone finished their journey by rail. Changes in the schedule of the main line train make this necessary, for residents of Bellefonte not having cars cannot get to Altoona by rail before the middle of the afternoon.

We had a pleasant call, last Friday, from our friend G. H. Fike, who lives out in Bush Addition, and we were sorry to learn that Mr. Fike is still more or less "under the weather." While he looks well and is able to get around as usual he just doesn't seem to be able to throw off the effects of that attack of "shingles" he suffered several years ago. We hope with the coming of spring he will be back to his old self again.

Mr. and Mrs. M. I. Gardner, of Clearfield, attended service in the Methodist church Sunday morning, while in Bellefonte awaiting the arrival of Mr. Gardner's son, Harold, from Lewisport, on his way home from Washington, D. C. Harold had stopped in Lewisport for a short visit with his aunt, Mrs. A. Lester Sheffer and the family, whose guest he was on the drive to Bellefonte. Mr. and Mrs. Gardner and Harold went on to Clearfield during the afternoon.

While in town on a little business the latter part of last week Chester M. McCormick, of College township, dropped in for a short chat at this office. Mr. McCormick devotes much of his time to the fine dairy herd he has on his farm up there and was especially pleased with the rain and snows that gave promise of relieving the water famine that he and his neighbors feared so inconceivably. Not that they needed water to put in their milk, but that the less their cows had the less milk they gave.

Murt Cunningham, of New York City, who had been here for a visit of two weeks with his brothers and other friends in Bellefonte, returned to the big city on Monday evening. He came up, primarily, because of the illness of his brother, Edward, but as it had been eighteen years since his last visit home he was very busy seeing the changes time has wrought. Murt was a moulder when he left Bellefonte, but is now a structural iron worker and was looking very well. While here he divided his time between the homes of his brothers, Edward and J. Mitchell Cunningham.

Ernest E. Deml, of Philipsburg, was in Bellefonte on Tuesday. Mr. Deml is a candidate for the Republican nomination for County Treasurer and, judging from what we have heard of him, he is a go-getter. He has been in the garage business in Philipsburg for a number of years, is well thought of there and is one of the kind of fellows who thinks that anything worth going after is worth going after right. There'll be an interesting fight for the office he is after, for there are four hustlers in the field. Anyway he'll have good company for Ollie Morgan, Charley Shuey and Harry Jones are all fine men and will play the game square with him.

Mr. S. E. Weber, of Boalsburg was in Bellefonte yesterday on a hurried business mission.

Mr. and Mrs. Earl Hoffer had as guests for the week-end, Mr. Hoffer's sister, Miss Kathryn and Richard Tyler, both of Philadelphia.

The Allen Hoy family, of Edgewood, Pa., and Mr. Hoy's sister, Miss Eleanor, a student at Geneva college, Beaver Falls, drove to Bellefonte for a Sunday visit home with Mr. and Mrs. S. H. Hoy.

Mrs. John Leopard, of Akron, Ohio, who had been here for a month assisting her mother, Mrs. Edward Cunningham, of Water street, returned home on Tuesday. Her visit was occasioned by the serious illness of Mr. Cunningham.

Mrs. R. J. P. Gray and her sister, Miss Pittman, who has been with the Grays, at the home in Stormstown, all winter, were in Bellefonte for a part of Tuesday, going from here to State College, from there they expected to return home.

Dr. and Mrs. J. J. Kilpatrick's guests, during the week, including Mrs. Kilpatrick's sister, Mrs. Frank Foltz and her two children, Elizabeth and Frank, Jr., of Philadelphia, who came to Bellefonte, Saturday, and visited at the Kilpatrick home until Tuesday.

Among the out of town friends here for the funeral of Mrs. James Kane, on Tuesday, were Miss Ellis DeCan, of Buffalo, N. Y.; Mr. and Mrs. Glen Wilson, of Philadelphia; Mr. and Mrs. George Wilson, Tyrone; Thomas Kane and children, of Williamsport; Mr. and Mrs. Miles Hoy, of Lock Haven, and Thomas Brown, of Oil City.

Mrs. Rachel Noll and her sister, Mrs. Hiram Fetterhoff, were in from Pleasant Gap, Wednesday, on a buying trip, spending a part of the day in the stores and with friends about town. Mrs. Fetterhoff left Bellefonte almost a year ago to return to her former home at Pleasant Gap where she is now in possession of her own property.

N. E. Robb, of the Bellefonte Trust company, went to Washington, Tuesday, to attend the Trust companies convention in session there this week. From Washington Mr. Robb will go to Philadelphia to see his daughter, Miss Lela, and the Nevins Robbs, for his first visit with their five month's old daughter, who is Mr. Robb's only grand daughter.

ACADEMY BOXERS WIN ANOTHER TILT.

In seven matches, all marked with keen fighting, the Bellefonte Academy mittmen defeated a fast Western Maryland junior variety, Saturday night, on th Y. M. C. A. floor. The score was 5.5 -1.5.

"Skeets" Gallagher, Bellefonte bantamweight, gave a ten pound weight advantage to Meyer, his Western Maryland opponent, and was handed a well earned draw.

"Chic" O'Day scored a technical knockout in the first round of his fight with Carra when he landed a hard right to the jaw.

"Hack" Wilson, newcomer for the Academy, won a decision from Crowthers, of Western Maryland, in the closest battle of the evening.

The feature fight came in the 160-lb class between Nils Althing, the terrible Swede, and Hunter from the southern college. Althing handicapped by his opponent's greater weight, landed terrific rights and lefts to the body to win the nod after three fast rounds.

Wallace, of Western Maryland, suffered a bad cut in his right eye when this member collided with the "Red" Hurst's head when the two clinched. He was forced to retire from the fight and Bellefonte won on a forfeit.

In the unlimited class there were two matches. Demshar, Bellefonte, defeated Wentland on points after three rounds of hard fighting, while McFadden lost to Barnett, of Western Maryland.

"Ship" Stahley, former Penn State stellar athletic performer, who is now assistant to Dick Harlow, director of athletics of Western Maryland, was in charge of the squad.

BRIDGE LUNCHEONS GIVEN BY BELLEFONTE WOMEN.

At Mrs. W. T. McCormick's bridge luncheon, given at The Talleyrand last Thursday evening, in celebration of Washington's birthday, the following guests were present: Mrs. H. G. Witter, Mrs. Charles R. Beaty, Mrs. S. Claude Herr, Mrs. George I. Purnell, Mrs. John M. Bullock, Mrs. Hayes T. Darby, Mrs. Oscar Harm, Mrs. Charles T. Mensch, Miss Winifred M. Gates, Mrs. H. C. Yeager, Mrs. W. M. Bottorf, Mrs. F. W. West, Mrs. R. S. Mallory, Mrs. S. M. Nissley, Mrs. S. Kline Woodring, Mrs. M. W. Williams, Mrs. A. C. Hewitt, Mrs. Harry Murtorf, Mrs. G. M. Gamble, and Mrs. Clarence McCormick, of State College.

On Tuesday evening Mrs. R. L. Mallory gave a bridge luncheon at the Talleyrand with the following guests: Mrs. H. C. Yeager, Mrs. W. M. Bottorf, Mrs. E. E. Widdowson, Mrs. S. Kline Woodring, Mrs. A. C. Heverly, Mrs. M. W. Williams, Mrs. Harry Murtorf, Mrs. Charles T. Mensch, Mrs. G. M. Gamble, Mrs. H. S. Taylor, Mrs. James Clark, Mrs. W. D. Zerby, Mrs. W. Harrison Walker, Mrs. H. G. Witter, Mrs. Henry Kahms, Mrs. John M. Bullock, Miss Winifred M. Gates, Mrs. George I. Purnell and Mrs. W. T. McCormick.

Bellefonte Grain Markets.

Table with 2 columns: Grain type and price. Includes entries for West, Corn, Oats, Rye, Barley, and Buckwheat.
