SHOW DECREASE

The average fare rate per mile on air passenger lines in the United States is 6.29 cents, according to the Commerce Department.

This is seven per cent lower than the fare in effect at the beginning of 1932 and is only about half of the average rate in effect on Jan. 1, 1930, and compares with an everage railroad rate of about three cents per mile.

On Jan. 1, 1927, the average rate per mile was 12 cents. The rates announced by the Department were 50,000 miles of air computed on routes in the United States. Air travel rates have become so low that government employees, on official business, are now allowed to travel by air instead of rail.
